THE JERUSALEM

Make international connections. 177-100-2727 AT&T

VOLUME LXIII. NUMBER 19204

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1996 • SHVAT 29, 5756 • RAMADAN 30, 1416

Rafael head resigns after pact approved MICHAL YUDELMAN

2 ° 2

1.7.1.7

÷.

۲

£

18-125-2

المراجع والمرو

g 🗐

·.' ·

-¹-¹-¹

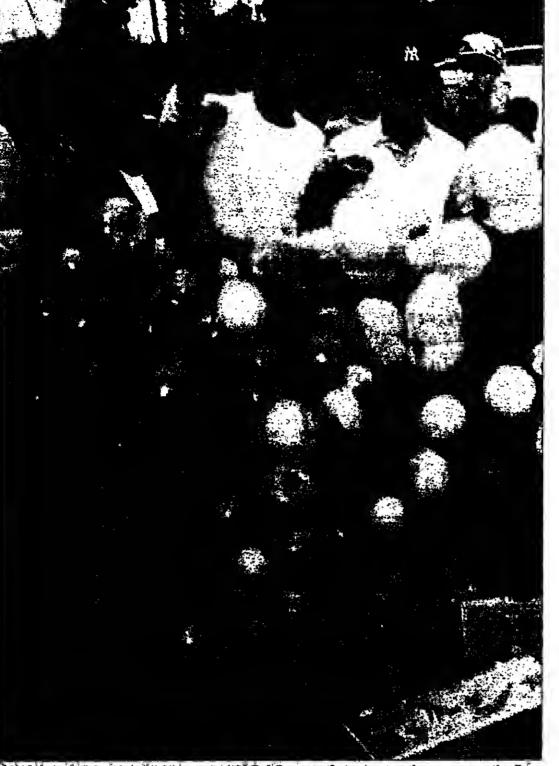

--

. .

FOLLOWING the approval yesterday of an agreement temporarily solving the Rafael crisis, director-general Yitzhak Gart resigned.

Gatt asked Prime Minister Shimon Peres to accept his resignation, but Peres asked him to stay on. Gatt has not given his final decision, Channel 2 reported.

Peres yesterday approved the interim compromise agreement reached Saturday night between the Histadrut and the Treasury. according to which Rafael, the Armaments Development Authority, is to remain part of.

Augry farmers dump crates of tomatoes at Nahaf Oz yesterday to protest the government's allow-ing Palestuman produce to flood the Israeli market. Story, Page 12.

Peres accuses Likud of incitement over Jerusalem

STUNG by a Likud allegation that he would agree to the repartition of Jerusalem, Prime Minister Shimon Peres angrily struck back yesterday. He issued a statement at the weekly cabinet meeting declaring that the charge is not only baseless, but also constitutes "incitement." given public sensitivity to the future of the city. Meanwhile, Jerusalem Mayor

Ehud Olmen again claimed that academics Yair Hirschfeld and Ron Pundak are conducting secret negotiations on Jenusalem with the Palesunians.

Pundak and Hirschfeld received the green light from Minister Yossi Beilin to discuss the future of Jerusalem, Channel 1 reponed last night. This has been consistently denied by the government.

The fact that the talks are taking place is not being contested," Likud leader Binyamin Netanyahu said at the capital press conference at which Olmert made his claim. "What is under dispute is the question of whether they are separate talks by academics or whether they are under Beilin's supervision. We say with complete certainty that they are laying the ground for [an Oslo-style] agreement."

He compared the situation to the division of Berlin, saying: "Physical division follows political division as sure as night follows day."

Peres's statement, read to reporters by cahinet secretary Shmuel Hollander, declared: "Following charges that the prime minister and the government intend, as it were, to divide Jerusalem - and with regard 10 secret talks allegedly being conducted on the matter - the prime minister wishes to emphatically and unequivocally state that he has no knowledge whatsoever of any official persons dealing with Jerusaleni or conducting negotiations on this issue.

DAVID MAKOVSKY and LIAT COLLINS

"Reports of this are baseless. The prime minister emphasized that the entire cabinet is united on the principle that Jerusalem should not be divided, and allegations to the contrary should be considered incitement."

Jerusalem talks, Page 2

Olmen cited two recent meetings between Pundak and Hirschfeld and Palestinian officials in Jerusalem. The first was in November at Orient House and the second at the Palesunian Academic Society for the Study of International Affairs.

The upcoming elections will be a referendum on Jerusalem. Netanyahu said, launching the Likud-Tsomet campaign with posters and stickers bearing the slogan. "Peres will divide Jerusalem."

"If the prime minister means what he told the cabinet, he should prove it by closing down Orient House by March 1," Olmert said. According to the government's own evaluations, he added, closing Orient House would not affect the continuation of the peace process. Both Netanyahu and Olmert rejected a call by Labor Pany secretary-general Nissim Zvilli to sign an agreement to keep the Jerusalem issue out of the election campaign.

Netanyahu dismissed the demand as "ridiculous." "Jerusalem is the most insportant issue in these elecnons. We won't agree to keep quiet now, so that he can yield later. The elections will determine whether the Jewish dream of a united. rebuilt Jerusalem will continue or disintegrate."

Channel 2 reported last night that Internal Security Minister Moshe Shahal called on Foreign Minister Ehud Barak to prevent foreign dig-nitaries from visiting Orient House.

Netanyahu gave a long list of reasons for concern about Jerusalem, including the talks on the permanent status; the secret talks in Europe; the existence of more than 10 Palestinian offices operating in Jerusalem; the plans for an Arab shadow municipality; the presence of Jibril Rajoub's Preventive Security Service agents; Yasser Arafat's declara-tions on the the city; the Palestinian elections in the city; and the government's refusal to support opposition bills calling for a special Knesset majority to endorse changes to Jerusalem's borders and status.

MK Yitzhak Levy (National Religious Party), meanwhile, said he would raise his Jerusalem bill for first reading this week. Under the bill, any changes to the existing Jerusalem Law would require a majority of 80 MKs, two-thirds of the Knesset.

'The bill is compatible with the government's statements on the status of Jerusalem and will be a test of the honesty of those statements," Levy said. Bill Hutman contributed to this report.

the Defense Ministry for at least another two years, before becoming a government corporation.

Besides solving the immediate crisis, the Histadrut considers the agreement no less an achievement for obtaining improved retirement conditions for workers who quit Rafael within the next two years.

According to the agreement, 450 workers will retire voluntarily within the coming year and receive the same benefits as those who retired in July 1993. The first 250 workers are to retire immediately with the signing of the agreement this week, 100 others in September, and 100 more next January. Only civil servants eligible for budgetary pension - those over 40 employed for 10 years - will be included in the voluntary retirement program.

Rafael's management may veto 20% of those who opt for retirement, but then may not fire those workers for three years.

Under the agreement, management canceled the dismissal. notices it gave 90 workers and undertook not to fire others during the next two years. If it finds it necessary to reduce personnel further, the workers who have to leave will join the retirement program with the same improved terms.

Rafael workers who are civil servants, but not employed in research fields, have agreed to take a 9 percent pay cut, which is the average wage bike given civil servants in January 1996.

Call and Speak Your Mind Every Night Sunday - Thursday, 8:30-9:00 p.m. on SHEILA'S SHOW Radio 101 FM Call 02-410848. 410852, 410854 Monday, February 19 Roberta Fahn, Lisa Frydman, Elana Rozemman Women in Politics plus This Week in History -Rabbi Micah Halpern Radio Jerusalem, 25 Rehov Shachrai, lerusalem 91160, Fax. 02-429222,

LABOR now wants the elections to be held on May 14, senior party sources said yesterday. This is two weeks earlier than the date said to have been Prime Minister Shimon Peres's original choice.

Attempts to fix a new election date will be renewed this morning, when the Labor team meets with Peres, then with Likud representatives, followed by representatives of the religious parties.

The Likud and Tsomet issued a statement last night arguing that "Labor's sudden decision to move back the elections even further is evidence of panic in Labor quarters and prevent open discussion of its plan to divide Jerusalem. It is no coincidence that Labor is trying to bold elections three days before Jerusalem Day." Labor responded by saying that the Likud has resumed its incitement, which mandates

SARAH HONIG

Labor proposes May 14 elections that the elections be held as early as possible. But the new date may only be a bargaining chip. Labor has been trying since last week to link concessions on a more suitable date to opposition agreement to ban election propaganda from Channel 2 and to repeal legislation preventing candidate to be shown on television in the month preceding election day. The opposition maintains that this would give an immense advantage to the government parties. Elections on May 14, it is conceded even within Labor, may be impossible for a number of reasons. Interior Minister Taim Ramon has said his ministry cannot complete the necessary preparation for an election prior to May 21. Moreover, a May 14 date could make it impossible for new parties to complete bureaucratic procedures. May 14, however, presents no religious problem as far as Shavuot is concerned. Meanwhile, wrangles inside Labor are preventing the finalization of the campaign team. It is agreed that Housing Minister Binyamin Ben-Eliezer will run the campaign, but both Foreign Minister Ehud Barak and Ramon want to be put in charge of information.

Peres is reported to favor Ramon, but cause of the dispute has put off the abnouncement of his decision. He had intended, according to party sources, to name Barak head of the steering committee, put Internal Security Minister Moshe Shahal in charge of administration, and Minister Yossi Beilin in charge of the polls.

Lias Collins contributed to this report.

PM and ministers targets of death threats

DAVID MAKOVSKY

PRIME Minister Shimon Peres and other ministers bave received. death threats, the cabinet was told yesterday.

Cabinet sources said threats were made against Peres. Internal Security Minister Moshe Shahal, and Environment Minister Yossi Sarid. Information [emerged indicating] ... that the murder of prime minister Yitzhak Rabin did not end the violence and the extremism, but left it alive and well and, some say, even opened the door for further assassinanons," one source said.

According to a security source, there are "hundreds" of people who would like to kill Peres. In a rare interview with a member of his family, Peres's daughter Zvia Walden, a university lecturer. told Israel Radio yesterday that

Eitan (Eito) Shalem Real Estate Broker & Consultant

Dan Panorama, 10 Koytman St. Tai Aviv Tal: 03-5124066 Fac: 03-9731666

Dreams for Sale

* The Dreams Cliff In Jaffa, above the sea, semi detached house. * Mediterranean Dream! Remet Aviv Gimmel, unique, high floor, immediatel

* New Dream Caesarea - housa, awimming pool, greenery, sea view, completely renovated Immediate)

Ask for Elto

· • · · · ·

she bad received death threats against her father and berself. There are threats against the prime minister ... People who oppose him are losing their minds. I think they feel the moment of truth is coming, and the solution finally becoming a reality. "I am also a target for those who find no other outlet but to issue despicable threats," she said. According to cabinet sources, Housing Minister Binyamin Ben-

FOR FURTHER DETAILS, CALL ANY OF THE TRAVEL AGENTS.

IDOS NOT NELLODE HOLDARS

GALILEE TOURS BRANCHES: TEL-AVIV. 42 BEN YEHUDA ST. JERUSALEM 02-258866 TIBERIAS 06-720330 EILAT 07-335145

sination is possible, and everyone should be vigilant. It was Ben-Eliezer who warned the cabinet a he strove for over many years is week before Rabin's assassination that a political killing was a very real possibility.

At that meeting, Ben-Eliezer appealed to Rabin to han guns at political demonstrations, to minimize the risks of an assassination. Rabin, however, turned the appeal aside, saying it was unworkable.

Eliezer warned that another assas-

"We have lived with this problem for more than 25 years; we will continue to do so in the future," a cabinct briefer cited Rabin as saying a week before he was murdered.

Industry and Trade Minister Micha Harish voiced concern that the likelihood of another killing bas only increased now that the Likud has falsely charged that Labor is going to redivide Jerusalem.

Interior Minister Haim Ramon urged that the police act against right-wing activist Avigdor Eskin, who allegedly held up a placard in Jerusalem proclaiming "Yigal Amir is not a murderer."

"If this is not sediuon, I do not know what is," he said.

Over 100,000 illegal foreign workers here

Ramon is to meet soon with

Minister of Internal Security

MORE than 100.000 foreign workers have entered the country over the past decade and have remained here illegally, according to a survey conducted for Interior Minister Haim Ramon,

The ministry announced yester-MICE MER MERSON IN DOUBLE ROOM" DEPARTURES ONLY IN PERFURNIN NOT INCLUDE REDISTRATION FEES, TAX, TIPS, VISA day that those working without per-

Settler leaders launch drive for 'national camp'

HERB KEINON

WITH his mustache, barrel chest, pointer, and large green charts, Aharon Domh struck a field commander's pose while addressing a Jerusalem meeting of "nauonal camp" campaign acuvists yesterday. "Whoever thinks he can force someone to think like him through an aggressive manner is mistaken." Domb said. Then he unveiled Council of Jewish Communities in Judea, Samaria, and Gaza's campaign for Binyamin Netanyahu and the "national camp." Domb spoke like a military man, stressing the bonom line of goals, umetables, even "protecting the rear." Behind him at the Tikvatenu Community Center were banners with the slogan he hopes will be ubiquitous on the country's roads: "I feel secure in the national camp."

"Contrary to press reports, we are not running a negative cam-paign against Shimon Peres." Domh said. "And the reason is because we want Netanyahu to be the next prime minister.

Referring to the Rabin assassi-nation, Domb said, "Since something happened in Israel - and we can not ignore that something happened in Israel - we must pay attention and not give our enemies Eretz Yisrael on a silver platter. Even beyond taking a life, or taking the life of the prime minister, what happened has given Eretz Yisrae) to our enemies."

A solo voice then shouted out, 'And that is why he [Rabin] was killed." Domb and public relations man

Dov Harel explained that the objective of the first phase of the campaign is to create an atmosphere where the 10 percent of the population targeted as "undecided voters" will see that there is massive support for the Right.

After the Rabin assassination, Harel explained, many people wbo sympathized with the Right went "underground," were embarrassed, took bumper stickers off their cars, and abandoned the street to the Left.

The campaign's immediate goal, according to the brochure 200 handed out to some activists, is "to unify and solidify the national camp, with all its parties, and create a public atmosphere of identification with the Right." In the second stage the campaign will then try to convince the undecided to vote for Netanyahu.

One number repeated over and over by both speakers was 83,987 - the number of votes "wasted" in 1992 on small right-wing parties that failed to pass the electoral threshold. These votes, had they gone to one of the right-wing parties that made it into the Knesset. would have tipped the balance of power.

"If it wasn't for these votes," Dontb said, "we would not be caught in Oslo's dire straits."

soon. The present model has been

Old IDF boots get the boot of bener quality material. Some 400 pairs are to be field tested

THE IDF is to introduce a new, improved infantry boot within the coming year.

The new footwear is supposed to be more comfortable and made mits come from Asia (20,000). Moshe Shahal and Minister of Africa (25,000), the CIS (25,000), Labor and Social Affairs Ora Eastern Europe (15,000), and South Namir to develop a policy to deal Africa (15,000). Additional illegals with the situation. In the meantime, Ramon decided to issue come from Western Europe and arriving foreign workers with a North America, the ministry said.

in use for 30 years.

special identity card which they must carry. Jerusalem Post Staff

On Levy

NEWS

Monday, February 19, 1996 The Jerusalem Post

Unofficial talk on Jerusalem

BACKGROUND DAVID MAKOVSKY

SENSITIVITY to the idea of informal discussions about Jerusalem has been significantly heightened hecause of the similar discussions that led to the Oslo agreement. During the five months hefore the secret talks were upgraded to an official level in May 1993, the Rahin government could plausibly deny talks were under way, as they were heing conducted hy two academics.

Yair Hirschfeld and Ron Pundak, who enjoyed close personal ties to deputy foreign minister Yossi Beilin, were not "officially authorized" to conduct talks, nonetheless they were meeting Palestinians at the behest of Beilin. Their talks subsequently continued with the approval of Shimon Peres and Yitzhak Rabin.

Peres and Beilin strategized with the two on several occasions. To ensure plausible deniahility, many steps were taken. For example, Beilin insisted that draft papers, written with their Palestinian counterparts, he on the stationary of the Norwegian Institute for Applied Social Sciences.

Regardless of whether talks are now being held, it remains far from certain that Jerusalem, as it has evolved since 1967, can be repartitioned.

Meron Benvenisti, a former deputy mayor and a leading researcher on the city, declared yesterday that partition is no longer feasible.

GRACE BALLAS

passed away on February 18, 1996

Loving mother of

Jacob Ballas

of Singapore

With deep sorrow, we announce the death of our dear wife, mother, mother-in-law, grandmother and sister

"The current debate about a division of the city is meaningless," he said. "You cannot surgically divide Jerusalem today, as the ethnic groups are all mixed together. Nobody wants to divide the city anyway, including the Arabs.'

For Palestinians, Benvenisti said, there is already the start of a "functional division of the city. The Palestinians living in Jerusalem are essentially part of the Palestinian Authority's educational system. I think it is only a matter of time hefore Palestinians living in the city have Palestinian passports, as their Jordanian passports will be withdrawn."

But Dr. Dore Gold, who just concluded a study on Jerusalem for Tel Aviv University's Jaffee Center for Strategic Studies, said he does not believe the Palestinians will be satisfied with the borough arrangements favored by former mayor Teddy Kollek. Furthermore, he dismissed idea that the Palestinians will settle for a capital in Abu Dis, which was part of Jordanian-controlled Jerusalem metropolitan district, hut is just outside of the post-1967 municipal boundaries,

It is estimated that 320,000 Jews and 170,000 Arabs live in the city.

There has been no talk of re-If, however, one speaks of a dividing Jerusalem, according metropolitan area stretching to sources involved in what from Bethlehem to Ramallah, ingovernment apologists prefer cluding Jewish settlements in the to term "informal negotiaarea, the ratio between Jews and tions" on Jerusalem and other Arabs becomes roughly 50:50.

final stage issues. Whatever you call them, however, the fact remains that, for several months, govern-

ON the issue of Jerusalem's future, the public is being treated to campaigns of disinformation hy

hoth the government and

The Likud would have us believe Prime Minister Shimon

Peres is going to redivide Jerusa-lem. If Likud leaders are basing

this allegation on information they have about the talks already under way on the city's future,

they may have been misled.

opposition.

RUTH WOHLFARPH 5" née Bier about beloved wife of Uri (Helimuth) mother and grandmother, passed away on February 18, 1996.

The funeral will take place today, Monday, February 19, 1996, at 12:30 p.m., leaving the deceased's home, Rehov Habroshim 8, Nahlat Yehuda A, Rishon Lezion, for the Old Cemetery of Rishon Lezion.

Likud leader Binyamin Netanyahu (right) and Jerusalem Mayor Ehud Olmert, at a press conference yesterday, charge that Prime Minister Shimon Peres plans to redivide Jerusalem. (Isaac, Harari) closely affiliated with the government have been talking about Jerusalem with their Pal-

These talks have created an atmosphere in which both Israeli and Palestinian officials have the strong feeling that despite the government's public pronouncements to the contrary, on Jerusalem, there is something to talk

"The final stage talks aren't going to collapse because of the Jerusalem issue," Hassan Asfour,

the director of the Palestinian

Authority's negotiations department, said in a recent interview in estinian counterparts.

Disinformation on both sides ment ministers and academics

COMMENT BILL HUTMAN

which he outlined the positive feedback he was receiving from Israel on Jerusalem,

Former foreign ministry director-general Reuven Merhav, now with the Jerusalem Institute for Israel Studies, described "the confidence that has been created between the two sides that will go toward moving forward the formal negotiations."

A few of the subjects being talked about: Exactly what each

PA shuts

Islamic Jihad

paper in Gaza

JON IMMANUEL

GAZA police yesterday closed down the weekly newspaper of Islamic Jihad in Gaza, because of an editorial which suggested that

Yasser Arafat lied on the Koran

when he was sworn in as president of the National Authority

last week.

side considers as Jerusalem; possible border adjustments in the Jerusalem area; status of Jewish. neighborhoods in eastern Jerusalem; and authority at the Temple Mount and Al-Aksa.

What's been agreed: Most imiportantly, that there is something ers be expanded in both, as has to talk about on Jerusalem. Gencral understandings have also been reached on which formal negotiations will be based. One of the points of general understanding is that Jerusalem must remain a united city. . .

But just what type of united city will Jerusalem be after the election. Are Umm Tuba in the demand the answers.

neighborhood councils become the basis of agreement on Jerusalem's future? These are some of the questions politicians generally prefer to avoid, particularly just before an election. It's the public's job to

NEWS IN BRIEF

Report: France buying Israeli drones France is buying five Israeli-made pilotless spy planes, a source at Israel Aircraft Industries said yesterday. The French Defense Ministry has bought five Hunter unmanned spy planes and a ground station to operate them, the source said. (AP)

Rabin grave site to be closed Following a decision last month by the Ministerial Committee on Symbols and Ceremonies, a new monument to the late prime minister. Yatzhak Rabin is to be built, designed by architect Mosbe Safdie. Due to construction work, Rabin's Mt. Herzl grave site will be closed to visitors for two weeks beginning today, through Monday March 3. Jerusalem Post Staff

Gush Katif trauma unit dedicated ts of Gush Katif was dedicated in Neveh Dekalim yesterday. The unit, which will provide emergency first-aid before a patient can be taken to a hospital, was funded by Irving Moskowitz through the One Israel Fund. Herb Keinon

Who's working on Jerusalem? BILL HUTMAN

FOLLOWING is a list of the main academic organizations working on the Jerusalem isspe. The work of these groups is being used, and sometimes directed, by both the govern-ment and Palestinian Authority:

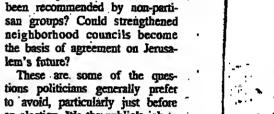

Economic Cooperation Foundation (Tel Aviv, run by Ron Pundak and Yair Hirsch feld, the academics involved. in the secret pegotiations that led to the Oslo agreement) The Jerusalem Institute for Israel Studies Israel/Palestine Center for Research and Information (Jerusalem) American Academy of Arts and Sciences (Boston) Palestinian Academic Society for the Study of International Affairs (Jerusalem) Arah Studies Society (Jerusalem)

Truman Institute of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem south and the Shuafat refugee camp in the north areas Israel sees as part of its eternal capital. Does the demand to close Orient House, the PLO headquarters in the city, imply that the Moslem Wakf, also controlled hy the PLO, should also be closed? Could Wadi Joz have a council like Gilo, and the councils' pow-

uman

closed indefinitely and its editor Ala Siftawi was arrested. It is the third time the newspaper has been closed in the past two years. The front-page editorial quoted Arafat's remarks at his swearing-in that he vowed to uphold the interests of the Palestinian people. It added, "He knows very well he is responsible before God. He can misicad or terrorize the people hut God will never forgive him. To swear on the Book of God is a heavy responsibility. The editorial was particularly incensed hy Arafat's promise to uphold the covenant. "Which covenant did he mean, a hidden one or the charter he has promised to revoke?"

Siftawi was arrested Saturday night and the doors of the newspaper office sealed.

Meanwhile Palestinian police arrested three Hamas memhers in Jenin over the weekend, suspecting them of planning suicide attacks, sources close to the police said.

Jailed Jordanian peace critic reelected union boss

AMMAN (Reuter) - A detained Jordanian, now on trial for opposing King Hussein's links with Israel, was swept to reelection yesterday as head of Jordan's largest labor organization.

Union memhera said Laith Shubailat, who has been in prison since December, won $1 percent of the votes, trouncing three other candidates for leadership of the Jordanian Engineers' Union.

RHODA GOLDMAN 5"T

The Board of Directors, Management and Staff of BETH HATEFUTSOTH

The Museum of the Jewish Diaspora extend their deepest condolences to > Dr. Douglas Goldman and his family.

Arafat sends pre-election pledge to Peres Palestinian Council President Yasser Arafat sent assurances to Prime Minister Shimon Peres yesterday be would continue to try to curb violence by Islamic militants as Israel heads towards general elections, Palestinian Economy Minister Ahmed Qreia said. Arafat also said at a meeting in Gaza with chief Israeli peace negotiator Uri Savir that he is preparing to convene the Palestinian National Council to amend parts of the PLO charter that call for Israel'a destruction. Reuter

Shahal foresees peace with Iraq

Internal Security Minister Moshe Shahal said yesterday it is possible to reach a peace accord with Iraq. Shahal, himself of Iraqi origin, said overtures had been made over the past few years and that he had reported this development to the late prime minister Yitzhak Rabin. Israel had been unable to take steps toward accommodation with Iraq due to American opposition, Shahal told a Labor Party parlor meeting. Greer Fay Cashman

Jericho closed to israells

Jericho will be a closed military area from 8 this morning, the IDF Spokesman announced last night, citing security reasons. The army said it would issue an announcement when the town is reopened to Israelis. Jerusalem Post Staff

IDF, Palestinians clash In Hebron IDF troops fired tear gas at stone-throwing Palestinians in clashes in Hebron yesterday, injuring scores of demonstrators, witnesses said. They said the clashes erupted following a dispute between families. Hundreds of Palestinians streamed into the area to throw rocks at the troops, who shot tear gas and percussion grenades to disperse them. Reuter

AUSTRALIAN FEDERAL ELECTIONS

The Australian Government will hold a General Election for the Federal Parliament will hold a General Election for Australian citizens wishing to vote in the elections should contact the Australian Embassy at the following address for advice and further information:

Beit Europa

37 Shaul Hamelech Bivd., Tei Aviv 64928 Tel: 03-6950451 • fax: 03-6968404

ATTENTION TOURISTS: Your vacation dream come true! And a profitable investment too! SHIRAT HAYAM ASHKELON An apartment notel is being erected on the magnificent beachfront,

- for observant families. You'll enjoy full services of a lixing hotel with full bank gnarantees. Call Nof Real Estate, 050-259919, 02-375161. I bedraom from $110,000 • 5 bedrooms fra

÷.,

HAKIKAR

Stel submits ?

Annines for ARtigious (our

- (C) -

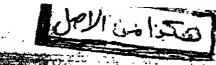

1 - Carlor

1.11

÷...

11

ا در را ا

The Jerusalem Post Monday, February 19, 1996

NEWS

Internal Security Minister Moshe Shahal, accompanied by Palestinian Police chief Razi Jabali, reviews an honor guard of students at the Palestinian Police academy in Jericho yesterday. Bringing up the rear is Saeb Erekat, Palestinian Authority minister of local government affairs. Accompanying Shahal on the visit were Inspector-General Assaf Heletz, Judea and Samaria district palice chief Alec Ron, and Jerusalem police chief Arye Amit. They met with their Palestinian counterparts and discussed cooperation between the two forces. (Text: Bill Flutnam; Photo: Ariel Jerozolimski)

Yirka man kills sister, hangs himself

A DRUSE resident of Yirka, near Acre. apparently killed his sister over family honor late Saturday night, then committed suicide. According to police, another resident of the village called at about 11 p.m. to say that Radwan. Muabi, in his 30s, told him he killed his sister Nuseira, 21, a stu-

his car. Police began searching for the same grove, him, and shortly thereafter found his abandoned car. The searches resumed yesterday morning, and at about 9 a.m., the body of Nuscira was found in an olive grove. She had been hit in the head, apparently with a rock. Shortly thereafter, Muabi's body dent at Safed College, then fled in ... was found banging from a tree in

According to Hebron Tarbelsi. the director-general of Safed College, Muabi had showed up at the dormitories early Saturday evening and asked his sister to come with him, When she refused, be took her by force. He said that Nuseiba Muabi had been quarreling with her family and that she had complained to police that she feared for her life. The college, he said, had taken pains to ensure that she was never alone, seeing that someone accompanied her everywhere. But, he added, the latest report had been that everything between her and her family had been quiet for the past month. (Jum)

indicted for wiretapping

FORMER private detectives Amir Ben-Asher and Ya'acov Bak were indicted yesterday in Tel Aviv Magistrate's Court on charges of illegal wiretapping and conspiracy. The two are accused of bugging the home phone of Dov Yudkovsky, former editor-in-chief of Yediot Aharonot who moved to its rival Ma'arhy, for some two months in 1992, According to the charge sbeet, Ben-Asher, 45, and Bak, 57, passed on recordings of Yudkovsky's calls to Yediot editors Moshe Vardi and Ruth Ben-Ari. They are also charged with planning to bug the home and office phones of former Yediou

Expert: About 90 Yemenite children unaccounted for

THERE appear to have been a number of missing Yemenite children who were adopted in the Fifties, but this was not a mass phenomenon, an expert vesterday told the commission looking into the issue of the missing children.

Bar-Ilan University researcher Dr. Dov Leviatan cited a Health Ministry document from April 1950 sent to hospitals in the north of the country. In it, a ministry official by the name of Dr. Lustig writes: "With regard to the return of children who have recovered there apparently were certain people who hastily tried to adopt them. The children's parents looked for them and were unable to find them."

Leviatan, who has been studying the issue for 15 years, said he believes from 85 to 90 children are unaccounted for. He said that, if Lustig knew about this, the health minister must also have known - hut the authorides turned a blind eye, since they took a paternalistic attitude towards the Yemenite immigrants, whom they regarded as "primitive."

In the Fifties, Leviatan added, it was fairly simple to adopt a child semi-legally. In some cases, Yemenite families could have adopted other Yemenite children, he said.

THE High Court of Justice yes-terday ordered that Afula Chief

Rahbi Peretz Zioni be suspended

because of his conviction four months ago on charges of fraud,

bribe-taking, and breach of trust.

The ruling follows a long line of decisions in which the court has tried to enforce certain norms on civil servants. In 1993, for instance, it ruled that former

General Security Service offical

Yossi Ginossar could not serve as director-general of the Housing

Ministry because of his involvement in the killing of two captured terrorists and the subsequent cover-up. Later that year, it ruled that Arveh Deri and Rafael Pinhasi could not continue to serve as a minister and deputy minister.

BATSHEVA TSUR

On the other hand, Leviatan said, some 600 orphans arrived with that wave of immigration and it had been difficult to find them adoptive or foster parents. Thus he concludes that there could not have been a widespread phenomenon of persons wanting to adopt Yemenite habies. In all the nime he has been working on the subject, he added, only five or six persons had asked him to help trace their families. "We can only conclude that the majori-ty of the missing children therefore must have died. Leviatan said.

Leviatan said that the Mossad had been directed, at the end of the Sixdes, to look for 22 children who had allegedly been kidnapped and taken to the US for adoption. This part of the testimony was given to the court in camera.

Leviatan later told reporters the Mossad investigation was not thorough and that he had subsequently carried out an investigation of his own. "It showed there were no such cases. The story was a fabrication by (two journalists from the Olam Hazeh weekly] who were looking for a so-called scoop."

Leviatan said he had received threats both from followers of jailed Uzi Meshulam and from "political circles" - in power now and who had been in the Seventies - to stop bis investigations. "I will not be intimidated," he said.

He recommended that some 50 or 60 graves be exhumed for genetic examinations, but warned that some of the graves could be empty. "The lack of order in those days extended to the burial society. too," he said.

Leviaian also took the opportunity to slam two programs of Channel 2 which had deals with the issue. He said that claims in a program by Micha Limor that remenite children had been used for medical experiments. "five years after the end of the Holocaust," were "sick. Whoever made such claims should be sent to a psychiatrist," Leviatan said.

As for the program Fact, based on documents which anchor llana Dayan said had "reached her," Leviatan said: "Those were the documents I produced during my previous appearance bere before the commission.

'This is totally unethical." He did not comment, however, on the substance of Davan's charges that some babies had been taken from the arms of their Yemenite immigrant mothers.

High Court orders rabbi, convicted of fraud, suspended respectively, because of the pending indictments against them. However, this is the first such case involving the rabbinate. Zioni is appealing his conviction, for pocketing tens of thousands of shekels in marriage and kashrut certificate fees, and the appeal is due to be heard in April. However, Afula resident Haviv Peretz petitioned the High Court demanding that Zioni be suspended in the meantime, and fired if his appeal is rejected.

EVELYN GORDON

Justices Aharon Barak, Ya akov Kedmi, and Dalia Dorner suggested that in light of the serious charges against bim, the appropri-ate thing would be for Zioni to suspend himself, However, Zioni refused, saying his consultuents want him to continue. He submitted a petition with about 1,000 names to support his claim.

The justices rejected this argument. however, saying a person who has been convicted of such serious charges should not be allowed to continue in a position of public trust, and ordered him suspended.

Zioni, who has been Afula's chief rabbi for 20 years, was sen-tenced by the Nazareth District Court to six months community service and a NIS 150,000 fine. The court said the authorities did not take proper measures to mon- # itor him. thereby inviting integularițies.

İτ

*8

te ıđ.

lö

υŝ

iy. ol

?W

se

·e~ of

:al

t's

State tells High Court 'Ha'aretz' is unworthy of the army's trust

EVELYN GORDON

- Sin

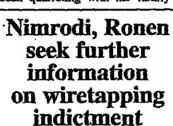

THE army "discriminates" against the daily Ha'aretz only. in areas which require special trust, and this is legitimate, the army does not let the paper's . names of the victims when they must, the state argued, when it recently decided unilaterally to violate one of the basic guidelines because the paper has proven which the army had agreed upon itself unworthy of such thist, the with all the medial That incidents which the army had agreed upon state told the High Gourt of in which soldiers were killed or Justice yesterday. It was responding to a petition publicized until the families are by Ha'aretz which charged that notified, so that they include the for he first ti argued.

IC ST

THE indictment against Ma'ariv publisher Ofer Nimrodi and security officer David Ronen is clearly written and includes all of the factual information needed, according to a statement by prosecutor

Levy was responding in Tel Aviv Magistrate's Court to claims by Nimrodi and Ronen - charged with 15 counts of commissioning illegal-wiretaps, mainly on Vediot

Aharonot personnel - that the indictment is unclear and lacks

However, Levy said that regarding some of the claims made by the defense, he would give further details to help the defense deal say where the wiretaps for which they were charged were situated. But Levy said the prosecution has who spoke in the conversations,

Rafi Levy yesterday.

crucial information.

Ex-private eyes

orters all other military reporters are invited, or grant the -paper's requests for personal interviews. The court bas issued a showcause order on the petition. In its response, the state said that Ha'aretz receives all the official press releases and invitations which other papers receive.

All of the paper's questions are also answered, the response said.

However, it continued, this is the extent of the army's formal obligations to any journalist. Anything beyond that, such as off-the-record interviews with senior army officials, is based on the relationship of trust which the army bas developed with journalists over the years, and cannot be continued if this trust is broken.

reported with no names, anyone with a friend or relative in the danger zone endures needless anguish. Given this breach of trust on the paper's part, the army has no obligation to continue to grant special privileges, such as offtherecord interviews, to Ha'aretz reporters, the state

Otherwise, if casualties are

Ha'aretz betrayed the army's a list of Bezeg phone boxes where The response also disputed a number of the specific incidents of "discrimination" which Ha'aretz cited in its petition, claiming that either the paper bad been invited to these events, or events organized by the army, but had rather been in answer to requests from specific journalists.

that they had not been formal are factual information not needed

the taps were allegedly made and will present this list to the defense. However, Levy said that some details, such as a list of phone conversations, times such conversations took place, and the people > in the indictment. Prosecutor Levy added that he doubted that such information needed to be presented as evi-(ltim) dence.

> > Major NEW edition

CONCISE

OXFORD

DICTIONARY

Vinith Laition

The finemost author in custout English

graphic artist Orit Lifschitz. In another count of the indictment the two are charged with giving Vardi an illegal recording of conversations held by Ma'urh with things they say are unclear. In particular, the defendants claimed, the indictment does not editor Ofer Nimrodi on bis cellular telephone.

The trial is to open on March 6 and be heard by Judge Hanan Efrati. Bak is serving a nine-year prison sentence for commissioning a murder with Ben-Asber, who is still on trial. (lum)

FIRST IN A SERIES

QUEZTIONS

COMMSTOCK

Q. "I've recently been looking for ways to have dropped. What should I do now?"

increase the income from my investments while protecting the principal. I've noticed, though, that the rates on bonds and money markets

A. You're correct that the rates have been dropping, but Eurobonds, for example, could significantly increase your to U.S. corporate bonds yet often offer a higher yield than their American counterparts. You should also consider there are several investment vehicles that remain attractive.

current income. These dollar-denominated bonds are similar closed end funds which pay monthly dividends to Increase

By nature, the price as well as the yield can change on

Do you need answers about investing? Mail or fax your Trading, POB 7777, Jerusalem, Fax: 02-244876. If your question is used in this column (without your name, of questions, along with your name, address and phone number, to SUCCESSFUL INVESTING c/o CommStock course), you will receive a gift from CommStock!

be carefully examined on a case-by-case basis.

many fixed-income investments. Therefore, each one must in protest over pension terms

BATSHEVA TSUR

their pensions will be cut drasti-

Union teachers to start school late

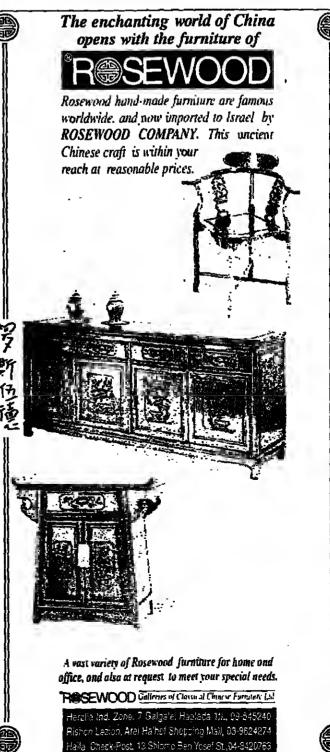

CLASSES in junior high and high schools where teachers belong to the Teachers' Union will start only at 10 this morning.

The teachers are protesting against erosion in their pensions following new pension regulations announced by the Treasury, According to the teachers, most of cally. "The disruptions are just the first step. If the Treasury does not find a solution that will satisfy us, we'll take more drastic steps," union leader Avraham

Ben Sbabbat said yesterday. But the High School Teachers' Organization said later that it members would be teaching as usual.

"The vast majority of the schools will open in the morning without disruption," a spokesman for the organization said.

Shetreet submits list of nominees for TA Religious Council

the Tel Aviv Religious Council, more than two years late, the slate told the High Court of Justice yesterday. As a result, the court canceled a petition by RELIGIOUS Affairs Minister Shimon Shetreet has finally sub-mitted his list of candidates for appoint his candidates, so that a ment demanding that Shetreet appoint his candidates, so that a new council can finally be installed: The court charged the state NIS 5,000 in court costs. bowever.

Evelyn Gordon

Signature

COMMSTOCK

EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO SUCCEED

your income.

CommStock Trading Ltd. (Est. 198i) Futures, Options, and Stock Brokers Jerusalem: City Tower, 34 Ben Yehuda St. Tel. 02-244963; Fax, 02-244876 Ramat Gan: Beit Silver, 7 Abba Hillel St. Tel. 03-575-8826/27; Fax. 575-6990 HCTRB-QUOIS Serminals and beepers available.

NEOT HAKIKAR TOURING Co.

JORDAN

- ✓ Petra 2 days $169
- ▼ Jordan and Jerusalem 4 days - $399 from Eilat

EGYPT

- ▼ Cairo Tours 2, 3 or 4 days from $155
- ▼ Nile cruise 8 days in Egypt

SINAI EXPERIENCE

- ▼ Two days of camel riding, hiking and jeeps - $125
- ▼ 1 week package 4 days Sinai Safari
- + 4 nights Hotel In Eilat $310 (until $1/3/96)

02-236262, 03-5225099

الم المحمد الما يتصلف المالية (المحمد الله) المحمد المالية (المحمد المحمد المحمد) المحمد المحمد المحمد الم

he ch ve 1. cd ds 15-

~

~

WORLD NEWS

Monday, February 19, 1996 The Jerusalem Post

Buchanan, Dole even on eve of NH poll

ALAN ELSNER

MANCHESTER, NH

SENATE Majority Leader Bob Dole yesterday put a long life of service to the nation on the line against two younger opponents as the divisive Republican presidential campaign approached tomor-row's key New Hampshire prima-

Opinion polls showed Dole, 72, clinging in a tenuous lead over fiery columnist and former presidential speech writer Pat Buchanan, Lamar Alexander, n smooth-talking former governor of Tennessee, is within striking distance but millionaire publisher Stevc Forbes' challenge appeared to be waning.

Three new polls yesterday gave Dole 25 percent with Buchanan around 21-22 percent, Alexander in the high teens and Forbes around 12 percent. The winner will emerge as the firm favorite to win the Republican nomination to face President Bill Clinton in the November election.

Whoever wins in New Hampshire will probably be the Republican nominee to run against President Clinton," Dole said last week, a comment he may regret if he loses.

The veteran lawmaker who was grievously wounded in the Second World War has asked voters to send him on a final mission for his generation. Yesterday he struck a fatalistic note, saying "I'm relaxed. What will happen will happen."

Dole will receive a late-inning boost from Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, who was due to endorse him yesterday, CBS News reported after speaking with Gramm. The Texan dropped out of the Republican race after a poor showing in Iowa last week.

The fiercely independent, conservative New England state, with a population more than 97 percent white, has provided an ordeal by ice for presidential candidates over four decades. No candidate since 1964 has won the Republican presidential nomination without first winning the New Hampshire primary.

If Dole wins, his superior financial resources and organization may see him to the nomination as the campaign spreads around the country with more than 20 states holding primaries or caucuses in the next three weeks. If he faiters, many of his supporters may turn in Alexander in an effort to block the populist Buchanan.

With candidates spending millions of dollars on nasty, negative advertising, the campaign has opened an ideological breech that has many Republicans increasingly anxious that the party is tearing itself apart and paving the way for a Clinion vicinty in November. Hammering home the contrast hetween himself and the Republicans, Clinton toured New Hampshire on Saturday, drawing huge, enthusiastic crowds in icy conditions. The first Democratic incumbent to be unopposed for his party's presidential nomination since 1944, Clinton has seen his approval ratings rise and he is currently forecast to beat any Republican comfortably. (Reuter)

Poles vote on privatization

MONIKA SCISLOWKSA

WARSAW

POLES appeared to be turning out in low numbers yesterday to vote on a privatization program in a referendum that has left many of them baffled.

The referendum asks whether they want to continue with a privatization program begun last year, whether they want to expand it or whether privntization proceeds "should be used to pay state debts to pensioners and civil servants and to finance a new pension fund.

Its supporters say it offers "the last chance to create a middle class in Poland," while detractors brand it a simplistic test of whether Poles want to be content and prosperous.

Polls before the referendum 10WC turnout of more than 50 percent required for a valid vote may not be reached. Correspondents of the Polish news agency PAP reported a much lower turnout in many voting stations yesterday compared to the presidential election in November, when the turnout was about 65 percent.

The results are not expected until tomorrow at the earliest. Lech Walesa, the former president and Solidarity leader, voted in his hometown of Gdanks on the Baltic coast.

"This is the most important thing for Poles since the Russian army left Poland (in 1993)," said Walesa, who first suggested the hc was

World chess champion Garry Kasparov glances up during his match against IBM's Deep Blue in Philadelphia on Saturday. Humans celebrate as Kasparov beats machine

PHILADELPHIA (Reuter) - The human won, and he thrust his arms high into the air, cheered hy spectators whose dignity hc had owed to uphold.

But as hrain triumphed over processor chips in the historic chess challenge match between world champion Garry Kasparov and an IBM supercomputer called Deep Blue, even the humans behind the machine were celebrating.

In the week-long battle that ended on Saturday night, Kasparov avoided becoming the first champion to lose a classic chess match to a computer program, although he did concede one game that shonk the chess world and his ego. He called it "the most humiliating experi-" ence.

The scientists who spent six , years developing Deep Bluc sent a warning that the day was nearer when one of their programs might beat a world champion in a match played under regular tournament. conditions. They huilt a system capable of calculating 50 hillion chessboard positinns within three minutes that seriously challenged the man considered to be the strongest player in the history of the ancient game.

for Computing Machinery (ACM), was delighted at landing at the center of an event that million "hits" on IBM's Internet website in one weekend. almost overshadowed the convention marking the 50th anniversary tition could hing the whole world to pay such close attention," said

University of Pennsylvania. "We have to learn from our experience here so that we can improve the design of computers and apply this knowledge to problems that are more related to our > younger Micaela spirited out of the home where she had lived for the past 22 months. The 25-year-old woman who admitted taking the child appeared in court for a preliminary bearing Friday, but has not yet been charged. She could face up to 15 years in prison for child theft.

The six-game match from Feb. 10 to 17 also demonstrated the growing impact of computers in ty against the domination of comhomes and husinesses with five Duters.

"Only chess and such a compe-

Kasparov, who lost the first game, won three and drew the other two

"I feel I did a good joh for chess first and probably for mankind. I still believe we should cooperate with the machines and implement our way of thinking and benefit from that rather than take a hostile view," said the Russian grandmas-ter, who described the match as a challenge to defend human dignifor a final match victory of 4-2.

The woman's hreakup with a boyfriend who thought he was Micaela's father apparently forced ber to confess. Police said the man had wanted to adopt the child, and became suspicious when the woman could not produce

Balkan leaders stick by peace plan

ROME (AP) - Balkan leaders yesterday made promises to stick by the peace plan that halted the Bosnian war, international mediators said, defusing a potential criThe announcement came after 25 hours of intense negotiations at an emergency summit.

"We prevented a situation that could have jeopardized the Dayton agreement," said Richard Holbrooke, the US assistant secresaid Richard tary of state who convened the parties to Rome and led efforts to reach the peace agreement last December outside the Ohio city.

Holbrooke said the talks had produced agreements on the key flashpoints that brought them on. namely disputes on unifying the divided cities of Mostar and Sarajevo and Bosnian Serb anger over the arrest of two Bosnian Serb officers suspected of war crimes

The Bosnian Serbs agreed to resume contacts with NATO. which they had suspended after the arrest and extradition to The Hague of the officers.

"Nothing was given in exchange for this. They did this on their own," Holbrooke said.

Bosnian Moslems and Croats agreed to settle the administration of Mostar and cantons in the area around the southwestern city.

The issue of Mostar is considered crucial because it is a testing ground for the Croat-Moslem federation, an alliance designed to balance the Bosnian Serb republic. The parties also provided "assurance to Serbs in Sarajevo that...their freedoms will be protected." Holbrooke said. "They do not need to leave Sarajevo." He said the president of Bosnia, Alija Izetbegovic, and of Yugoslavia, Slobodan Milosevic, had agreed to set up a telephone hotline.

Croats in Mostar have refused to accept a central district jointly administered with Moslems, as eovisaged by European Union administrator Hans Koschnick. The historic city, heavily damaged hy war, is divided in Croat and Moslem sectors.

Turkey coalition talks hit snag

ANKARA (Reuler) - Turkey's Islamists and their would he coalition partners yesterday unex-pectedly put off key coalition talks, the latest hitch in marathon negotiations to form a government after inconclusive polls last December.

The sponsor, the Association Miracle child returned after 2-year ordeal DONNA BRYSON

THERE was a time when South Africans couldn't escape photographs of baby Micaela Hunter. She was stolen from her mother's arms and out of a Johannesburg hospital oearly two years ago, and her tiny face seemed to be everywhere - peering out at newspaper readers, dangling from posters tied to telephone polls, flashed on the evening news.

Micaela was back with her family this weekend after a woman confessed to having abducted the child to raise as her own. But pictures were hard to come hy - Micaela and of the first computer - known by its acronym ENIAC - at the practical lives," said C.J. Tan, senior manager of IBM's parallel processing unit.

the questions and suggested the still president.

ber parents Bruce and Alison Hunter were in (AP) seclusion, trying to cope with the miracle of a found child.

papers yesterday made do with fuzzy shots of Alison Hunter at the door of her home, of the woman accused of abducting her hiding uoder

JOHANNESBURG

Huater tald state television Friday, the day

police returned his daughter. "You can see she's scared. She's not sure where she is, but she is clinging th Alison and maybe there's a

The Hunters allowed only the Sunday newstory, to photograph Micaela. Other newspaper Rapport, to whom they had sold rights to feeling there, like a sixth sense."

hirth certificate. They argued, and after hearing the abduction story, the man took blondhaired, hlue-eyed Micaela to a police station.

The Islamist Wellare Party (RP) announced a 24-hour postponement in the negotiations, which had been expected to seal a coalition deal with the right-wing secularist Motherland Party (ANAP).

Welfare took 21 percent of ballots cast at the elections and came in a narrow first thanks to a split secularist vote. ANAP - campaigning as a secularist alternative - took the third-highest number of scats in the 550-member parliament

An RP official refused to give a reason for the postponment hut denied that the talks, between Islamist leader Necmettin Erbakan and ANAP head Mesut Yilmaz, were in trouble.

A Contraction of the

The Jerusalem Post

ader.

Cen

young man.

ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT

Israeli leads Pittsburgh Symphony - with a pen 2,650-seat Heinz Hall. "In the MICHAEL AJZENSTADT early '80s the orchestra was sell-

The off-told success story -Israelis excelling in the international world of classical music - has a new twist Gideon Toeplitz has made it to the top behind the scenes, as executive vice president and managing director of the Putsburgh Symphony Society.

Last week was one of the most exciting his life. On Monday the ¹³51-year-old celebrated his eldest daughter Shira's bat mitzva atop Masada. The following evening "his orchestra gave its first performance here in its 100-year histo-

The Pittshurgh Symphony con-"certs in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv also marked the first time that Toeplitz was able to return to his Dinative land on a professional - visit.

In hetween those events, 'Toeplitz explained how he made it to the Major Leagnes of US like this music administration The son of Uri Toeplitz, long-

Bump

the time, for a six-month study half year was over, 1 realized that, despite all the knowledge 1

gamed, 1 actually didn't

So Toeplitz enrolled in Philharmonic.

v anything."

bađ

knov

UCLA's arts management protime principal flutist with the gram, the first of its kind in the US, and in two years received Israel Philharmonic Orchestra, he also played the flute as a his master's degree in business But I realized very soon that I administration.

"When I finished my studies in was not keen on playing 1973 there was no joh in Israel Brahms's Second Symphooy for me. It was hard to accept with conductors coming and that, but I sent my resume to 40 going. I wanted something more orchestras and three – Vancouver, Baltimore and Rochester, New York – were exciting than orchestra playing. In 1970 Toeplitz approached Zubin Mehta with the idea of studying orchestra management. interested." He landed a position "He sent me to Los Angeles, in Rochester. where he was music director at

"It was a great place to start." be says. program withio the LA "Nobody knew much there so I could make all the mistakes The was great and arranged withont anybody noticing." everything for me. But when that SOON enough Toeplitz's name was mentioned in higher musical circles. "I got offers from the Cleveland Orchestra and from the New York Philharmonic hut I did not want to live in either of those cities. Finally I moved in 1975 to Boston," where he became the Boston Symphony's Orchestra manager. "It was the time of my life," he says, "the time in which I grew."

After five years in Boston, Toeplitz moved south. For six tough years, he was executive director of the Houston Symphony Orchestra.

"It was a bad time for the local economy as oil prices fell." he explains. "I had to solve crises and make sure the orchestra survived. I couldn't take it forward at all.

By 1987 Toeplitz had had enough. Nothing could have excited him more than the offer from Pittshurgh. My wife is a Pittshurgh nutive, which made it even nicer," he notes.

Toeplitz has turned the Pittsburgh Symphony into one of the most solidly organized orchestras in the US, while music director Lorin Maazel has led the musicians to the forefront of the American music scene.

Now that Maazel is about to leave Pittshurgh. Toeplitz has secured the services of exceptional young Russian maestro Maris Jansons, despite offers to him from six other orchestras. Pittsburgh

Today the Pittsburgh Symphony is a $24 million-peryear operation. For a city of 2.1 million, this is very impressive. Toeplitz says, adding that the Boston Symphony's annual hud-get is $45 million. entirely different mentality."

The Pittsburgh orchestra has by Marvin Hamlisch. 15,000 subscribers to its regular series plus 8,000 more to its pop-

Now we are at about 80 percent capacity with 15% of the tickets going to non-sub-scrihers," says Toeplitz. "This season we are doing much better because the 100th anniversary of the orchestra gave us a lot of publicity, and because it is Maazel's farewell season and everyone wants to hear him.

Toeplitz rules out the possibility of running an orchestra here: Twenty years ago it would have heen perfect. But now 1 feel it's too late. It has been 25 years since I left Israel.

"When I was 30 I had to become an American. Now I'm not sure 1 can switch and go hack. I come here a lot hut I won't be able to live and work here; it's an entirely different mentality."

Gideon Toeplitz doesn't think he could work here. 'It's an daughter Tami has two and Ha'aretz journalisi Orit Shohat

has three. Yarkoni and her fami-

she says. "Friends brought them

Elegant and earthy, sophisticat-is comfortable with people and they with her. She shows a sheaf of snapshots fans have sent her from Japan, where she last sang four years ago. She enjoys talking, and has an inexhaustible store of anecdotes,

like the time she sang "Jerusalem of Gold" in Spanish at an international arts festival in Argentina. The people crowded around the stage as she sang, and when they heard the word

Jerusalem, they crossed them-

Or that last trip to Japan, her fifth, when she did 10 programs in about as many days. She showed slides of hiblical sites is due.

selves.

The orchestra performs in the music series, which is directed Ol' Green Eyes is back HELEN KAYE n 1948 there were some 700 prisoners of war in the Umm grandchildren. The baby is the cl-Jamal deseri camp in Jordan. They had a wind-up third for daughter Ruth and phonograph and a single recordsinger Meir Suissa, with whom ing of Yaffa Yarkoni singing "Green Eyes." the first recording she sings "Green Eyes." Middle she made. "They'd crank up the phonograph and play the record over and over," says Yarkoni, "It kept them going, they told me. Now they're all going hack there for a reunion, and they want me to come with them.

pushes over an elegant, subtly She may or may not go, but painted box. "Japanese cookies," that same song is one of 15 on Performers Sing with Yaffa for me. Yurkoni, the CD that celebrates her 70th birthday. Due for release on Fehruary 23, these are new arrangements of her favorite ed and warm altogether, Yarkoni

She sings them with performers such as Eiti Ankri (Portuguese folk song), Rami Kleinstein ("Perah Bar" -Wildflower), Arik Einstein ("Al na Tomar Li Shalont" - Don't Say Goodhye to Mel. Ethnix ("Yatzanu At" - We Left Slowly) and Shoshana Damari ("K'shehayinu Yeladim" – When We Were Children).

Shoshana Damari? Aren't these two singers supposed to be at daggers drawn? "Silly, isn't it," Yarkoni says,

"we never were, you know. The press made it all up." Singer, grandmother, indefati-and sang biblical songs. She explained the pictures and the songs "in Japanese which 1 gable globetrotter and unabashed patriot still, Yaffa Yarkoni refuslearned phonetically. At the end I es to fade into the pages of her sang 'Hava Nagila' in Japanese, two dozen or so big scrapbooks. Why should sbe? She's brimful and the audience came on stage

Europe, including some trips on behalf of the Foreign Office.

Traveling, and the cosseting she gets ahroad, "gives me strength to come hack here. Show husiness is never easy, but in the '40s, '50s and '60s there was a different attitude to artists. Today you can sometimes stand hackstage and they don't even offer you a glass of water."

ly are very close. She's never Yarkoni was born and raised in abroad when another grandchild Tel Aviv to a family that had come here by camel from the She settles herself down on one of her comfortable armchairs and Caucasus.

To support the family, her mother Malka opened Cafe Tzlil in Tel Aviv. Everybody came, even the British, and Yaffa sang for them. She went right on singing through the War of Independence, with songs like "Green Eyes," "Ha'aminu Yom Yavo" (Believe the Day Will Come) and "Dudu," and then through every war after thal.

:0

٢S

:e

1e

10

٦t.

ท

יץ id

rs

/e rs

٥r

3.9

ıtэk

ıi۲

re

ne

ıd.

jo

he es

ed

ed

ly.

rol

₹W ise

re-

of

-a ıt's

5

Her tropby room has photographs covered from floor to ceiling of Yarkoni with the world's great, from statesmen to movie stars. It also has pictures of her at the front, hut she dislikes being called "the singer of four wars," a name sbe says the press invented.

She continues to sing her old songs at her many concerts here and abroad, hut there are always new ones too, including a spoof of herself that Haim Hefer. who's written many of her lyrics. wrote for her.

"Already a grandmother, she still sings love-songs in a nightclub," she recites delightedly. "Is there a city in the world you haven't seen? Maybe it's

is really a grind FILM REVIEW ADINA HOFFMAN

Directed by Paul Verhoeven, Screenplay by Joe Eszterhas. Hebrew fifte: Ne aro: Tca'atzini. English dialogue, Hebrew subti-tles. Children under 18" not attraited (1 D

he hilariously awful T&A spectacular Showgirls is just the first in a series of Las Vegas pictures slated to open bere in the coming months. (Martin Scorsese's Casino and Mike Figgis's Leaving Las' Vegas are both on their way.) Before reckoning with the movie's own particular brand of solutily clad absurdity, it seems fair to ask a more general question, hamely: S. , Why does that crass Nevada gambling strip loom so large in the Hollywood imagination? ars to be rela tively simple. Money, sex and The answer fantasy are the currency in both Las Vegas and Hollywood; both towns hold out the promise of overnight success and the threat of sudden failure. And Vegas may be the only city on earth where showmanship, ruthlessness and shameless opportunism bold more sway than in Tinseltown itself. In other words, the sordidness and garish flash of the place provide commercial American filmmakers a warped but flattering mirror in which to view themselves. When it comes to Showgirls an inadvertent hoot from start to finish - the world's gamhling capital also offers director Paul Verhoeven and screenwriter Joe Eszterhas (the squeaky-clean team who hrought us Basic Instinct) a chance to justify themselves and their obsession with all things cynical and exhibitionist. The rampant sleaze they depict - bere is, you understand, all in the name of documentary accuracy. At the start of the movie, Nomi Malone (Elizabeth Berkley) hitches a ride into Vegas. After pulling a switchblade on the man who has kindly rescued her from the side of the road, this hlonde Amazon with the wide, wet smile and piggish little nose announces that she's heading for the bright lights because "I'm gonoa dance!" Soon enough, she gets to demonstrate her technique at the Cheetah Cinb, a "class joint" in the words of its lecherous, pockmarked owner. Nomi's duties at the Cheetah include flailing in a G-string, humping and licking a metal pole, and accompanying customers into a darkened back room where she executes a naked lap dance. (Although the movie is rated NC-17, children under 17 ... not admitted, viewers in search of a turn-on may be disappointed. The film's many nude scenes have all the crotic flair of an aerobics class performed in the buff. The cumulative effect is numbing.) But Nomi, ber eyes gleaming. pelvis thrusting, aspires to more: with alarming self-importance, the film follows her rise through the chorus of a topless Casino floor-show called "Goddess," in which gold lame costumes figure promi-nently, as do long, blonde wigs. fog machines and the eruption of the barely clothed diva, Verhoeven and Eszterhas ohvi-Cristal Connors (Gina Gershon), ously think that they're doing from a papier-maché volcano. By something really daring here, something that will shock audithe end of the movie, Nomi has both flirted with and ousted ences and titillate them. But if the villainous Cristal, stolen her man (Kyle MacLachlan) and Showgirls offers anything new, it's merely a record-hreakiog become the sparkling deity herself. Then she too has the opportunity to level of pretension: never has a burst from the molten mound at taken itself quite so seriously. centerstage and be cruel to her We keep waiting for the filmmakers to relax and grin and understudy. Bisexual overtones aside, the admit that this is all a parody, that outline of Eszterhas's script is perhaps their heroine's 'natural lifted directly from an old Warners musical like 42nd Street talent." which is referred to frequently, is a joke. a satirical or Gold Diggers of 1933 - those euphemism for her readiness to genial backstage romps in which the sweet-faced heroine was an take off her panties and writhe. But no. In the end, Showgirls isn't ironic at all. It's a celebraunknown, virginal (!) chorus girl, called upon at the last minute to replace the wicked prima donna who, a mere hour before showoon of Nomi's "tenacity," a self-discovery quest! So what has she discovered about her so-called time, broke her ankle or was self? That if you want to succeed. beamed hy a sandbag. Remarkably, though, Showgirls manages to hold fast to all these you really will have to step on other people, threaten them with knives or push them down the dog-eared stage-door cliches as it stairs. And the movie gets really banishes every last trace of the corny fun and bright opomism that typified the Busby Berkeley kooky in the last few minutes when, after rewarding the heroine for being heartless and backstabgenre. It's a mean, tawdry movie hing, it offers her a kind of nonand a confused one at that. sensical, wham-ham redemption.

All the old Busby Berkley-style sbowgirl cliches are recycled with a heavy overlay of sleaze.

Stardom achieved, Nomi is now free to hitchhike out of town. In her screen dehut, Elizabeth Berkley is certainly emphatic. As she bumps and grinds and swivels and sweats, she resembles a jackbammer operator caught in an electrical storm. The film takes its crummy exploitation picture rhythmic cues from her hyperacove manner and is, in this way, exhausting.

of energy and projects.

THE BIG Victorian rocking cradle in her beautiful Tel Aviv apartment is now in use again for grandchild number eight. She beams and enumerates the and sang it with me." She's sung "Hava Nagila" in English and Hebrew of course, hut also in Spanish, Arabic. and even Swahili when she sang in Kenya about five years ago. In the last six years she's also been to the US. South America and stop? When she does, and it's not a prospect that chills her, "I'll take young singers and train them to become performers," she says.

Oren signs a limited deal with the opera

Oren, who lives is Rome, is

He works regularly at Rome,

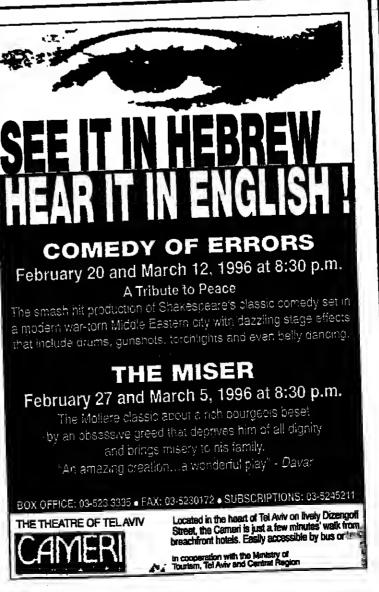

.

opera conductors around.

HELEN KAYE

onductor Daniel Oren will conduct one production each year at the New Israeli 1994. Tel Aviv Mayor Roni Milo was one of those who unsuccessfully trekked to Rome last sum-Opera through the year 2000, the NIO announced on Sunday. The mer to try and talk the Israeli conductor into becoming NIO first will be La Boheme for the music director, a move which led to the resignation of the the cur-1997/98 season, followed by Lucia di Lammermoor and Tosca in rent director, Gary Bertini. 1998/99 and 1999/2000 respectively. one of the most sought after

The NIO has been wooing Oren since he conducted the hugely successful Nabucco in Verona and Naples operas among others. The production of La Boheme will recreate the original staging hy Franco Zeffirelli for La Scala in Milan.

American cable show on Israel makes 'aliya' srael Sunday isn't a long weekend. It's a cable TV current-affairs program - half in Hebrew, half in English - that has been running for a year in the US. Last month, IS production moved to Israel, because "access to material, events, and personalities is casier, better, and faster here, says IS founder and president Guy Jacobson. "Another reason for the move, although some segments of the show will continue to be filmed in New York, is that the US Jewish community is too segmented and too geographically separated to produce good Jewish coverage that will interest everyone," he says. "Israel is really the only common denominator. "The show gives a macro view of Israel and the Middle East. Our audience is mainly Jews, both Americans and Israeli yordim [emigrants], but we also have many non-Jewish

IS encompasses regional and Israeli politics, viewers. culture, economics, business, tourism, and even real estate. Last year, about 300,000 people mned in to the weekly program "which makes us one of the biggest lewish media in the US," Jacobson says. Three of the locally shot programs have already been aired in the US "and we've received very positive feedback," Jacobson says, adding that IS is using only local talent, including mime Julian Chagrin and his wife Rolanda, who have their own (comical) corner every week. Israel Sunday is structured something like Good Morning America, with two main anchors, and, Jacobson explains, experts hosting the different spots. Recent English-language segments have included interviews with Abba Eban, social affairs minister Ora Namir, and the prime minister of Pakistan, Benazir

HELEN KAYE

A 10th-generatioo Israeli, the tall, blue-eyed Rhutto.

Jacobson grew up in Herzliya, graduated from Berkeley Law School, and practiced corporate law io a Wall Street law firm until recently. when he gave up his practice to run IS full time.

He has had 12 books published, their subject matters ranging from poetry to satire. He is currently working on "a crazy comedy screenplay. Yes, I do have creative input into the show and I'm the chief editor."

IS is broadcast every Sunday over the inter-national cable channel ICN and is picked up by more than 100 regional cable stations. The show's polential audience is a mind-boggling eight million people. Jacobson would like to expand to a daily format, but "for that we need an investor."

He's also negotiating to air the English-language segments on local cable TV because there's no quality English programming here."

OPINION

ria's President Assad has Successfully managed to string along both Americans and Israelis, who seem to have accepted his conception, style and negotiating tactics. What exactly is Assad's style?

Well, he's taking his nme. The Golan Heights doesn't head his list of foreign policy priorities. And his purpose? He isn't prepared to develop a warm peace with Israel under any conditions.

He's no King Hussein; he isn't

Assad is a tyrant of the old school - clandestine, security-minded, anachronistic, rigid. He is more concerned with perpetuating his totalitarian rule than with opening the gates of Damascus to

I-raeli husinessmen and to the Americans, bringing McDonalds

He rules by virtue of domination

by his security services - for how else could the minority Alawite

sect, despised by Moslems gener-

Any effort on Assad's part to warm up the relationship with Israel would be detrimental to his

What this means is that however hard Shimon Peres and his advisers knock on Assad's door.

bowever obsequiously they behave, Assad's determination will not bend. Whatever is in the Alawite interest, that for Assad ally, continue to rule?

even a Yasser Arafat.

in their wake.

nule.

Monday, February 19, 1996

and the second
The Jerusalem Post

THE JERUSALEM ns1

F. DAVID RADLER, Chairman, Board of Directors YEHUDA LEVY, President & Publisher

Founded in 1932 by GERSHON AGRON

AVI GOLAN, Executive Vice President, Marketing & Advent PAUL STASZEWSKI, CPA, Vice President, Finance YOSSI HORN, Vice President, Production STANLEY SCHRIGER, Chrulation Manager BENZION MILLER, Tel Aviv office Manager

DAVID BAR-ILLAN, Executive Editor

IEFF BARAK, Managing Editor ALEC ISRAEL, Associate Editor, Copy DAN IZENBERG, News Editor

DAVID BRINN, Night Editor SAM ORBAUM, Features Editor THOMAS O'DWYER, Foreign Edito JUDY MONTAGU, Op-Ed Editor AMOTZ ASA-EL, Business Editor

EDITORIAL OFFICES AND ADMINISTRATION The Jerusalem Post Building, P.O.Box 81, Romema, Jerusalem (91000) Telephone 02.315666.Fax 02.389527. CIRCULATION - 02.315610. Fax 02.389017. ADVERTISING - 02.315608, 02.315637.40 Fax 02.388408. TEL AVIV: 5 Rehov Hamasger, P.O.Box 28398 (61283) Telephone 03-6390333, Fax 03-6390277. HAIFA: 20 Nordan, Hadar Hacarmel, Telephone 04-623166. Published dally, except Samuday, in Jerusalem, Israel by The Palestine Post Ltd. Printed by The Jerusalem Post Press in Jerusalem. Registered at the G.P.O. O The Jerusalem Post 1996. Reproduction, or storage in a retrieve system, or any other form, is prohibited without permission. Editors: 1932-1955 GERSHON AGRON. 1955-1974 TED LURIE, 1974-1975 LEA BEN DOR, 1975-1989 ARI RATH and ERWIN FRENKEL, 1990-1992 N. DAVID GROSS

Incitement it is not

HERE is nothing unusual about the invective used in the hitter controversy over Jerusalem. The Likud's charge that Labor is conducting talks which will inevitably lead to the division of Jerusalem is perfectly legitimate. and so is Lahor's indignant denial.

What is utterly illegitimate and unacceptable is to hrand the Likud charges "incitement." To incite is to commit a felony. To accuse a political party of such a crime is insidious under any circumstances. To do so after Yitzhak Rabin's assassination is to associate the Likud with the murder - particularly when the charge is coupled with a sudden revelation of death threats against Prime Minister Shimon Peres, Internal Security Minister Moshe Shahal and Environment Minister Yossi Sarid.

It would be far more respectful of the public's intelligence to address the substance of the charge. That Peres is denying the very existence of talks about Jerusalem with the Palestinians hardly enhances his credibility. It recalls the time he denied the existence of his own letter to the late Norwegian foreign minister Jurgen Holst, in which he promised that the activities of Palestinian institutions in Jerusalem would be allowed to continue. The simple fact is that such talks have been taking place, that they are authorized hy Minister Yossi Beilin, Peres's confidant, and that they are led by the academics who cooked up the Oslo formula in 1993. Participants on both sides have openly confirmed this.

If there is anything the government can deny with some semblance of credibility it is that these talks explicitly aim at the actual division of the city. Although the Palestinian participants seem to realize that the talks lead to the cily's partition, the Israeli representatives apparently still hope to "share" the city, establishing two sovereignties in il - something they euphemistically call an administrative division - without actually cutting the city in half.

But such ideas are no more than a pipe dream. It is doubtful a city can be shared by two governments even if they are both democracies. To have a border-less sharing arrangement between a democracy on the one side and a police state on the other is unthinkable.

The Likud has an even stronger argument when it points to the facts on the ground. The government has the legal means to close down Orient House, which serves as the Palestinian Authority's foreign ministry. (Rabin once said that if Orient House became the PA's foreign ministry, the Oslo process would be summarily terminated.) Nor is this activity waning. In the past two months the PA's acting foreign minister Faisal Husseini has had more meetings with representatives of foreign governments in Orient House than in any similar period before. Yet the government is unlikely to meet Mayor Ehud Olmert's challenge to close the building by the end of the month, nor limit its activities.

Nor will the government sbut down any of the other PA offices in the city, including those representing the ministries of economics, religion, health, energy, housing, veterans affairs and the water authority.

Hassan Tahboub, the PA's religion minister, emphasized the significance of the choice of Jerusalem when the ministry's office was established in 1994. "No one can deny the efforts of president Arafat's in defending Palestine in general and Jerusalem in particular," he stated. Therefore Jerusalem has been chosen to serve as the headquarters of this ministry," Yet Shahal last night flatly denied the existence of these offices, with the same vebemence Peres used to deny the existence of the talks.

Nor is this all. The police bave arrested a couple of Jibril Rajoub's policemen acting as law enforcers in the city, and the Arab municipal council Arafat tried to revive has been neutralized. But hundreds of Rajoub's policemen are still active in the city, and courts which acl as arbiters in the Arab community and in cases involving Arabs and Israelis are still functioning. And, as former OC northern command Yitzhak Mordechai pointed out last night, the government has halled all Jewish construction in the eastern part of the city, while Arab construction, both legal and illegal is proceeding without government interference.

The Likud's charge is eminently pertinent. Too many signs indicate that Labor is unlikely to let the Jerusalem issue become an obstacle in reaching a final status agreement with the PLO, And Israelis must have an opportunity to deman cide, without being threatened with charges of incitement, if dividing Jerusalem is a price they are willing to pay for such an agreement.

Only Assad has time

AMOS PERLMUTTER

faith of all Arab dictators, including newly elected dictator Yasser Arafat. It was so with Egypt's Nasser, and is so with all Arab military leaders, most conspicuously Saddam Hussein. Prime Minister Peres has admitted that "water is to a country like weapons to an army." Obsessed with the threat of missiles, how can Peres be sure that a symmetrical withdrawal of Israeli and Syrian troops would guarantee that no Syrian missiles could reach Haifa?

Hot pursuit of the cold peace that already exists with Syria

PERES'S goal is clear. He wants to win the election - before the promised Golan referendum takes place. So he is in a hurry. So is US Secretary of State Christopher, who will wind up his tenure regardless of who wins the 1996 presidential elections. Christopher is also obsessed with a Syrian deal. It is remarkable that the secretary of State of ment of the Arahist Yevgeny Primakov as foreign minister. Russia will be playing a more significant role in Arab-Israeli conflict resolution, even if it is more friendly to Israel than the Soviet Union ever was. For Peres, advancing the negotiations with Syria is a matter of his and his party's career. Were Peres. historically a hawk, now in the opposition, I doubt whether he would advocate returning the Golan.

Last but not least, let us not forget the question of Syria after Assad. It will be an unstable and unpredictable country. No deal can guard against the consequences of a change in regime. I doubt that the Israeli electorate will give Peres a mandate to make the kind of concessions he has already made verbally and other-wise. The personal alliance between Christopher and Peres, defined by their own ambitions, does not reflect real Israeli-American national interests.

Any peace with Assad must take account of Syria after Assad. The Arab Middle East is still volatile and unstable. Syria is Lebanon writ large, a mosaic of antagonistic religious and ethnic groups ruled by Assad's iron fist.

This may not be true tomorrow, and tomorrow's realities will affect Israel's northern border. At best, Peres might achieve the

Why change the status quo

when it is clearly advantageous

Israel's peace treaty with Jordan is warm, strategic, and serves the interests of both parties. A peace treaty with Syria will be at the expense of Israel's security, serving only to strengthen Assad's mainly to one side?

totalitarian rule.

or peace

Hands SHLOMO AVINERI

the Board of Governors of the Jewish Agency is meet-ing this week in Jerusalem. Among the items on its agenda is a proposal for a drastic change in its organizational structures dealing with the main reservoir of aliya to Israel - the former Soviet Union (FSU).

This is the wrong time to start tinkering with a structure which may need reforming - like any other hureaucratic structure - but has been instrumental in bringing more than 600,000 immigrants from the former Soviet Union to Israel and continues to be responsible for an aliya which has stabilized over the last four years at around 60,000-70,000 immigrants a year.

But the issue is not the organization itself or its chains of command; it is one of politics.

Russia is currently experiencing a period of uncertainty and instahility. Reforms have, for all practical purposes, collapsed; the last reformers have been squeezed out of power, and the process of democratization is stuck.

President Yeltsin, once the icon of democrats and refermers, has thrown in his lot with the nationalist and authoritarian forces of Russian society.

Moreover, in the presidential elections to be held on June 16, it is far from certain that even such an alliance with the authoritarian forces in Russia will ensure. Yeitsin's reelection. In the partiamentary elections last December. his party barely managed to pass the 5 percent hurdle.

It is conceivable that the next Russian President will be the Communist Gennady Zyuganov, or the arch-nationalist Vladimir Zhirinovsky. It is equally concervable that in order to forestall defeat. Yeltsin may postpone the elections and do away with the vestiges of what is left of democracy in Russia: Yeltsin's own precarious health is another question mark hovering

ALL THIS should not cause undue alarm on a strategic level. Communism as a world power is dead, and the Soviet Union as we knew it in the years of the Cold War will not - cannot - be revived. But a period of instability, internal strife, even civil wat (Yeltsin's own words-last week

Let us not endanger the future Fig. 64 The bo 1.1-1-1

By Rachar

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

JAFFA'S FISHERMEN

desired.

Sir. - While the ancient port of Jaffa is known as one of the oldest ports in the world, visited hy hundreds of thousands of Israelis and forcign guests every year and its name appears on every geographical map throughout ancient and modern times, its small but active fishermen's community enjoys little to none of this anention. Very much to the contrary, and for generations, this hard-working group producing thousands of tons of seafood for the Israeli market has endured most difficult conditions.

For years, the representatives of the Fishermen's Union, headed by Uri Sharon, tried in vain to rectify the situation. They only received promises which were never honored by previous management. Mismanagement since 1993 is worse than ever. The port manager Joseph Ovad (known for his involvement and controversial court appearance in the Herzliya Marina affair) and the port comptroller David Zur were unfortunately put in charge of this important port and its community. The present situation in the port reveals their inability to function as required.

While large amounts of public Jaffa

OLEG CARTOON

Sir, - I was shocked by and I strongly resent Oleg's cartoon published in the Post of Fchruary 5. Picturing Bibi and his newly found partner Raful as Don Quixote de la Mancha and Sancho Panza is an insult to these wonderful and innocent characters, to Cervanies and to Spanish literature.

How could you ever compare the sophislicated, opportunistic manipulators of the Israeli right to the defenders of human rights of Cervantes?

HENRIQUE DAVID FRENKEL Kiryat Tivon.

SKIING

Sir, - In her article of February 20 on Cluh Med's winter resorts, Judy Rabinowitz does not mention crosscountry skiing hut only downhill skiing.

Cross-country skiing is so popular in Europe that Club Med operates it in all its winter villages. Among its numerous advantages is the fact that cross-country skiing is not dangerous: you can fall as much as you want without breaking anything and you can practice it at any age.

ROLAND KOSTER

Tel Aviv.

funds are being spenl on transforming the previous manager's office of the column of Daniel Baum. His into a modern work place for more comments on computer programs managers and secretaries, computerare pragmatic and informative. But 1 ized systems, air-conditioning and got confused hy his column of Fehreserved parking, the only people ruary 4, where he explained the benefiting from all this are the public servants themselves Where private yachts are entitled

When will the ministers of trans-

the fishermen and tradesmen of Jaffa port as an integrated and insepara-

CANADIANS IN UNDOF

caption accompanying the photograph of the Japanese soldiers on the front page of your February 4 issue.

I am concerned that this caption may have encouraged your readers to think that the entire Canadian contingent was leaving the UN Disengagement Observer Force (UN-DOF) on the Golan Heights. In point of fact, the Japanese contingeni will form only a small part of the logistics organization which will continue to include some 187 Canadians.

ing with the Japanese in the provision of togistics support for UNDOF and we remain completely committed to the peace process in the Mid-

Canadian Ambassador to Israel

COMMENDATION

Amnon Ben-David, director of Ma-

gen David Adom's blood services, for destroying the blood donated by the Jews from Ethiopia, he should be given an official commendation for preventing tens, perhaps scores.

of innocent Israelis from becoming infected with the HIV (Aids) virus.

Sir, - Instead of suspending Dr.

DAVID BERGER,

MACABEE DEAN

dle East

Tel Aviv.

Ramat Gan.

Canadians look forward to work-

Sir, - t noted with interest the functioning management.

Post's new computerized layout system. At one place he writes: Hopefully, you will not have noto minimal resources, the 240 fisherticed any difference." At another men operating 80 fishing boats are place, he states: "The pages pro-duced actually look better then they treated with discrimination and have to deal with an unsafe port entry. used to." crowded moorings, insufficient wa-

NEW COMPUTERS AT

THE 'POST'

Sir, - I am in general appreciative

As far as I am concerned: I did ter and electricity supplies, lack of notice that headlines on more and storage space, an ineffective garhage and chemical waste collection more inner pages and one day even on the front page had begun looking and disposal system, dangerous squeezed. I suspect that the new and roads, ever-growing pollution, inadsophisticated expensive system has equate fire protection and a security one serious and quite silly handicap: situation which leaves much to be it seems it can only handle the higgest headline fonts when they are made more or less square: the eleport. agriculture and finance accept gant Times Roman has to be curtailed in order to use at least the width which the system allows, ble part of the greater Israeli society and honor their promises to them? A which does not exactly add to its style and quite ruins the impression of a whole page. BEATE ZILVERSMIDT first step would be professionally

HARI RINGER. Holon. Jaffa Port

> THE CAPITAL OF THE NETHERLANDS

Sir, - The question put almost daily to the Netherlands Embassy in Tel Aviv is about the capital of the Netherlands: is it Amsterdam or is it The Hague? The correct answer is: Amsterdam is the capital. The Hague is the city where the government is located. This typical Dutch compromise has its roots in an century-old development. Already in the Middle Ages, The Hague was the home base for the most powerful local nohlemen: the counts of Holland. In those days. The Netherlands was not a single nation hut a loose collection of seven provinces: from 1579 to 1795 these provinces were governed from The Hague.

The real economic and political power was to be found in Amsterdam. which was then one of the most important cities in the world. In 1814, after the occupation by Napoleon's army, the Netherlands was established as a united country. The 1814 constitution reflected this practice and Amsterdam became the national capital while The Hague remained the center of government and parliament to this day. ROBERT SCHUDDEBOOM.

First Secretary, Royal Netherlands Embassy Tel Aviv

constitutes the national interest. And Assad will zealously defend his patrimony. He will, for example, never agree to symmetrical withdrawals of IDF and Syrian forces, which would bring his troops hack close to Damascus.

Concerning water rights, Peres must surely remember from the days when he was a junior member of Ben-Gurion's cabinet and a great devotee of Moshe Dayan, that the conflict between Israel and Syria in the 1950s was over the domination of water resources. Why should Assad he more accommodating in the 1990s than the less ruthless generals who ruled Syria in the 1950s? Personal security is an article of the US has traveled twice China, not much more to Russia and 18 times to Damascus. Why this singular honor to Syria, a country peripheral to American interests, over the central targets of US foreign policy, China and Russia?

The Middle East is no longer a football between the US and the dead Soviet Union, and the threat of nuclear eruption no longer emanates from it. It is nuclear proliferation which should be the US's concern, and this relates to Iran and Iraq, rather than Syria. Clearly, the secretary's priorities

The writer, a political scientist, is a fellow of Tel Aviv University's are skewed. Assad has been emboldened by the dramatic changes in Russian Jaffee Center and the Begin-Sadat foreign policy, and hy the appoint-Center at Bar-Ilan University.

Merger of doubtful value

Likud and Tsomet was a stroke of bold leadership - or a blunder of monumental propor-

However, a brief assessment of Shinui, and Mapam merged to form Meretz - there is virtually no instance in which the amalgamation of two or more political seats than those held by the individual parties separately.

highly publicized reports of police investigations of several Tsomet leaders, including Rafael Eitan. tt would surely have been more prudent for Likud leader Binyamin Netanyahu to have delaved the merger to see how these investigations proceed.

received in polls held two years ago, it wins harely 4-6 today. In the all-party primaries, participation harely totaled 3.045 members (although party spokesmen claimed the figure was 8,000).

ly eliminated as a serious political figure, polling 2-5 percent in his hid for the premiership, compared to 20-25 percent two years

It is thus difficult to comprehend how the merger with Tsomet will generate additional "synergetic" support for the Likud and Netanyahu.

consideration. MARTIN SHERMAN

IT IS no less difficult to comprehend how the new array of "talent" the Likud has acquired through the merger will aid it in its hid either to win voter support prior to the elections, or to promote its political principles following them. After all, the present Tsomet leadership has proved itself an unmitigated political failure.

It is quite understandable, therefore, why there has been so much talk of the exorbitant price Netanyabu paid for the merger.

In this respect, one aspect appears to have been somewhat overlooked - the financial aspect. According to recent polls, the joint Likud-Tsomet list will get only 36 seats. If this is so, because of the seats promised to Tsomet

Likud-Tsomet union: A futile attempt at political alchemy ing."

members, there will he fewer Netanyahu failed to include such Likud representatives in the next a clause in the final draft of the Knesset than there are at the accord, and its absence seems to moment. This reduced quota will create an unfortunate impression. determine the amount of funding of shoddy negligence and ill-conthe Likud will receive during the sidered haste. This impression next Knesset's term of office. By imposes further difficulties on contrast, Tsomet, without effort or risk on its part, will enjoy greatly Netanyahu in his efforts to generate voter confidence in his judgment and aptitude as national

If the major purpose of the merger is 10 generate a spirit of unity and cohesiveness in the ranks of the "National Camp," it would appear that not all the relevant factors have been taken into

of the Jews a peace of questionable political value, since, for all intents and still left in Russia purposes, there already is a cold peace between Israel and Syria.

over stability.

when announcing his candidacy) should not be ruled out. Under such circumstances, many Jews may feel uneasy, insecure and threatened - which could lead them to try and get out, quickly and en masse.

In such a situation, it is important that Israel, and the Jewish people, be ready. An existing structure able to handle massive pressure for aliya under semiemergency conditions is already in place. The best of administrative reforms needs a testing period of one to two years.

If the existing system were to be replaced by another - even one that is theoretically better, the Jewish people could find itself in summer 1996 with the existing system dismantled, and the new one not yet in place.

History will not be merciful in judging those responsible for trying out alternative administrative theories in a moment of a possible and quite foreseeable, emergency, Of course, things may turn de less dramatic than envisaged. Bill nobody knows. The next 5 or 6 months will be the most crucial for the history of Russia - and for the fate of its Jewish community: This is no time for experiments-The agency's Board of Governors should postpone any discussion of administrative reorganization (involving hundreds of emissaries and scores of existing centers) until the outcome of the Russian elections is known.

In doing this, it will cause no great harm. On the contrary: 3. could avert a historic blunder, at a crucial moment of Jewish destiny.

The writer, professor of political science at the Hebrew University, is this year's recipient of the Israel Prize and member of the Board of Governors of the Jewish Agency -----

SUITORS_UNSURE about the commitment they are making have taken to renting engager ment rings in case things don't WORK OUT

"We do get some people with cold feet," said Eric Diaz, manager of a Rent-A-Center store in Boston. "If they don't like them [the new france] they separate and return the ring." Draz said that of the 75 sid his branch reated out in 1997 were returned.

100 B 8 2 2 2 4 4

14. A

÷ ...

÷.

,

÷.,

-à.

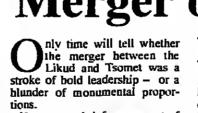

. . - No

٩.

N. 17 4

 $\mathcal{V}_{i, i}$

÷.,

some of the facts do not seem to augur well for the newly formed union.

With one exception - when the Citizens Rights Movement, parties of any significance brought the united faction more

In recent weeks, there have been

As a party, Tsomet is undeniably disintegrating rapidly. From a maximum of 16 seats it Eitan himself has been virtual-enhanced prosperity.

For the excessive price paid to Tsomet cannot fail to arouse resentment among a significant number of Likud candidates, who will be inevitably forced into lower and apparently unrealistic positions on the joint list. It is thus far from certain that the merger will achieve the intended internal harmony and marshal esprit de corps within Netanyahu's own party, or that it will raise collective morale on the eve of the crucial electoral con-

Perhaps the most puzzling aspect of a generally puzzling episode relates to a deficiency which has in fact been remedied albeit at the 11th hour.

It was only at the very last moment, and under severe pressure from senior Likud MKs, that Netanyahn included a restraining clause in the agreement that (hopefully) precludes Tsomet from succumbing to its evident temptation of making a post-election alliance with the Labor Party, with which it has long been "flirt-leader and responsible decision-

The writer is former secretary-

······

هكذا من الاجل

maker.

general of Tsomet

Vol. CXLV-No. 50,341

Sunday, February 18, 1996 Copyright () 1996 The New York Times -

The New York Times Weekly Review

Printed and distributed in Israel in association with The Jerusalem Post

America's Burden At Hour of Triumph, Democracy Recedes As the Global Ideal

By JUDITH MILLER

HROUGHOUT the world's longest experiment with democratic government, America has always thought of itself as morally obliged to export its way of life. What the White Man's Burden was to Kipling's generation of Englishmen, the promotion of democracy has been to four generations of Americans - the foreign policy equivalent of apple pie. Ever since Woodrow Wilson vowed to make the world safe for democracy, most Presidents have rhetorically endorsed this goal.

But now, less than a decade after democracy's greatest leap forward, the idea that America must promote it everywhere has lost some of its charm. Funds for encouraging elections overseas are drying up as the Clinton Administration struggles simply to secure peace in Bosnia, the Middle East and elsewhere. In part this reflects the reluctance of Americans to send their dollars abroad. But it also hints at a deeper change - a new sense that Americans doubt that every country in the world would be better off if only it had more democracy.

Of course Washington's actions have often been inconsistent with its lofty words. Some American actions ignored democracy altogether and simply made a corner of the world safe for United Fruit. And when, during the cold war, Presidents from John F. Kennedy to Ronald Reagan proselytized for democracy, they did so selectively, and primarily to stop Communism.

Later, when the Soviet Union collapsed, the global triumph of democracy seemed for a while not only inevitable, but a laudable end in itself, a development that would, incidentally, enhance American national economic and security interests.

But is this true? A debate is now raging. To some extent, recent Administrations have had little choice but to embrace efforts tu advance democracy abroad. Surprised by the democratic wave from Chile to South Africa after the fall of the Berlin Wall, the Bush Administration went so far as to suggest that promoting democracy was a goal of its war to liberate Kuwait (which never was, and isn't now, democratic). Not to be outdone, President Clinton in 1993

Congress from cutting the more than $725 million that the Administration estimates that it has spent on democracy-related programs in fiscal 1995.

It seems untikely that Congress witt abandon direct promotion of democracy altogether. But many policy makers and private analysts now say they are less sanguine about democracy's prospects, more sober about the difficulty of promoting it and more skeptical about whether its triumph in several strategic countries would enhance American interests.

Mr. Clinton, too, has gradually de-emphasized the goal he once championed, says Thomas Carothers, a former State Department lawyer and senior associate at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. "With the single exception of Halti," Mr. Carothers recently wrote in The Washington Quarterly, "Clinton has not, relative to Bush, substantially increased the U.S. emphasis on democracy promotion in any country or region." Mr. Carothers, inciden-

Suddenly not every democrat is being portrayed as an ally, and not every ally as a democrat.

iy Id

rs

25

۱t-5k

ıir

re

ne 10 10

he

es

ed

ue

ly,

rol

2W

ise reof cal it's ihe ich ive

n." ed rds us-

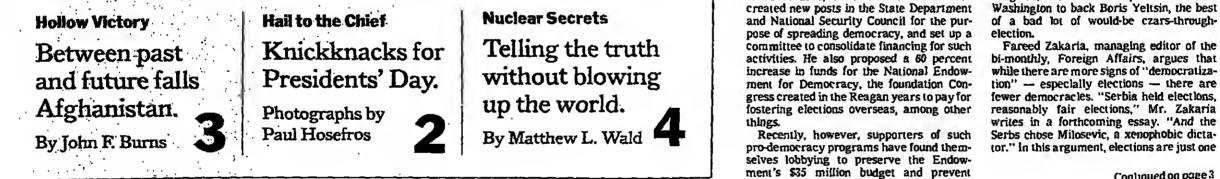

tally, thinks this is a sensible step toward realism,

What explains this unease? First, the democratic trend that seemed inevitable after Communism's fall has slowed, and in several regions has been reversed. Consider Yugoslavia, where elections meant only the end of the pluratism and tolerance that Americans take for granted as essentials of democracy. Or Poland and the Czech Republic, where voters disenchanted with slipshod administrations have elected former Communists to run their countries bet- ter. Or Russia, where the rise of ethnic, religious, and nationalist passions has led presidential candidates.

Flips and Flops The hobgoblin of

By Richard L. Berke

Continued on page 3

The Tribulations of the Not-So-Living Arts

America's Culture Gaps

By EDWARD ROTHSTEIN

URING the last 10 years, a low-grade fever has been evident in the arts. It lies just below awareness, like a duit toothache that can still be ig-: nored. The promotion of concerts and dance series continues; the biggest stars draw crowds and sell subscriptions; administrative staffs of institutions raise funds for endowments, and long lines form for every major museum show. But the patient is ailing, and anti-ery is commonplace. A report by the American Symphony Orchestra League has suggested that orchestras consider playing more pop and ethnic music to attract diverse audiences. The National Endowment for the Arts; a bureaucracy hobbled by budget cuts and controversy, sees its effectiveness slip away, while the arts lobby grows more distraught. The major institutions, wondering where the next generation of audiences is coming from, are raising education budgets to compensate for public schools' failings. Paintings and operas tend to become more explicitly political as other aspects of the artistic enterprise are devalued. In the universities, the concept of "masterpiece" has been challenged. Music ensembles try to redefine themselves in a more popular mode; theaters mount revivals; classical record companies worry what to do as recordings of Beethoven's Fifth proliferate.

Last week some bard data, in the form of two studies commissioned by the N.E.A., emerged to support the anecdotal evidence circulated in recent years like a hospital chart among interns. "Age and Arts Participation with a Focus on the Baby Boom Cohort: 1982-1992," was based on interviews with 10,000 American adults.

Real Provide Rea

Philip Oreenberg for The New York Time At art museums, attendance is up, but concert halls and theaters are struggling. Above, the younger crowd at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Judith H. Balfe, a sociologist at the City University of New York's College of Staten Island and a co-author of the report, said she found "many simply with oo interest in these arts, others with real hostility toward them." Richard A. Peterson, a sociologist at Vanderbill University and another writer of the report, which tracked the decrease in attendance along generational lines, said he sees a "massive shift in taste and tradition" as pop music and mass culture displace arts once considered among humanity's highest accomplishments. Yet another study on artrelated philanthropy, commissioned by the President's Committee on the Arts and Humanities, makes dire predictions including a "decline in the notion of stewardship, of civic culture itself."

Far from surprising anyone, these findings seemed to confirm experience. An earlier N.E.A. report, "Arts Participation in America, 1982-1992," singled out the level of education as the most important variable affecting participation in the arts. The current report argues that the notion doesn't seem to hold for highly educated baby boomers and suggests that education may have changed during that postwar span. The proportion of the population that has had music tessons, for example, dropped to 40 percent in 1992 from 47 percent in 1982. The decline in public school arts education is a harbinger of more severe problems.

Such a decline, however, may be a symptom rather than a cause, Con-

Continued on page 4

WEEKLY REVIEW

THE NEW YORK TIMES, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1996

THE JERUSALEM POST

The Nation

Left, Right, Left: The Primaries Turn Politicians Around

By RICHARD L. BERKE

GOFFSTOWN, N.H. NEW Bob Dole showed up in this state last week. Not the one who shuttles on corporate jets from his condominium in the Watergate to his condominium in Bal Harbour, Fla. This Bob Dole was heading for the eastern front in the class war, marching shoulder to shoulder with the working stiff. Senator Dole's transformation, however momentary, can be traced to Monday night, when he just barely managed to win the Iowa caucuses. Frightened by Patrick J. Buchanan, who placed a close second and is a threat as Tuesday's primary here approaches, Mr. Dole echoed his rival's bluecollar lament. "Corporate profits are setting records - and so are corporate layoffs," he asserted in his first speech after arriving in New Hampshire.

The shift is striking in the case of Mr. Dole, a highly experienced politician with a voluminous and generally consistent public record. But he is hardly alone. President Clinton is famous as a flip-flopper, as was his predecessor, George Bush.

In the System

These changes of heart are easy to dismiss as mere political pandering. But they represent something more than disingenuousness. For the pressures that push politicians off their preferred places on the ideological spectrum are locked into the electoral system. Voters demand loyalty to an ever-shifting set of regional interests and popular notions even as they cry out for consistency.

Mr. Clinton, who has sent confusing signals on foreign policy, taxes, even his basic view of the role of the Federal Government ("The era of big government is over," he Gramm's campaign made a certain point: a consistent candidate is often a losing one.

declared just two years after proposing a top-down reorganization of the entire national health-care system), leads in the early Presidential polls. These days, a consis-tent politician is often a losing politician.

Senator Phil Gramm of Texas is a classic case. No matter the occasion - even at an anti-gay rally in Des Moines the other day he would dwell on the same economic message about spending cuts and budget-balancing that he has champiooed for all his years in Congress. Last week, his poor showing in lowa forced him out of the race.

Mr. Dole himself learned the risks of consistency while being accused of inconsistency in the New Hampshire primary eight years ago. When he refused to sign a pledge not to raise taxes, he was labeled "Senator Straddle" in a particularly damaging campaign commercial by Mr. Bush. This time, Mr. Dole signed the piedge on the day he announced his candidacy.

The competing impulses to please and to stand firm are only ratcheted up in the glare of the primaries. Under the current system, candidates find themselves tailoring their messages to small, often narrow, constituencies. From Iowa, where religious conservatives are pivotal in the caucuses, candidates headed to this state, where anti-tax fervor and trade issues are center stage.

"This is the silly season and that's why you have to go back to people's records," said Grover Norquist, president of Americans for Tax Reform. "Things that are said in the heat of battle are terrible ways to

Indeed, hot issues emerge oo which candidates are forced to take positions. Often, candidates believe that they have no choice but to respond to their competition - and often to narrow issues that seem crucial in New Hampshire but fall flat when the race moves to Delaware the following week.

Scared by a Bear

Stanley Greenberg, who was Mr. Clinton's pollster in the 1992 primaries, recalled that his candidate stopped pushing his middleclass tax cut after New Hampshire because a rival, former Senator Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts, relentlessly attacked him for it. "The candidates who get the high ground, who are able to set the agenda, will have an impact on what aspect of your perspective that you'll emphasize," Mr. Greenberg said. "Tsongas was successful in characterizing the middle class tax cut as pandering." Mr. Tsongas even had a "pander bear" that he toted to news conferences. judge people."

last year's run-up to the 1996 campaign taking on big government. But the rise of Steve Forbes, the publishing magnate who built his candidacy around the flat tax, led the candidates in a debate several weeks ago to emphasize how their politics could spur economic growth. Now that Mr. Forbes has taken a dive in the polls here, his issues have also been sidelined. In their debate in Manchester last week, candidates took up the issue of trade. "What you would like is for candidates to take consistent positions and demonstrate real leadership on them," said Richard G. Niemi, a political scientist at the University of Rochester. "But these days, I doo't know if that's possible. Maybe the system is too demanding of these guys - to be in front of.

The Republican contenders spent much of word analyzed, you don't even have the time to think." Hasty turns to the left or right can back-the public every day and have your every fire when the nominees play to a broader electorate in November. "It does really contribute to the cynicism of the voters," said Senator John McCain of Arizona, who was chairman of Mr. Gramm's campaign.

the Worl

In North

·and Qacast,

Tilting Right

Mr. Dole's decision to criticize corporations may be inevitable given the state of the Republican primary race. For most of lass year, the majority leader considered Mr. Gramm his biggest threat. So he tried to tack to his right on social issues. And, worried that he was overshadowed by Speaker Newt Gingrich, he did his best to identify himself with House Republicans - at least until voters began souring on them.

Mr. Dole is no more fickle than many of his rivals. Mr. Buchanan, who attacked Mr. Dole in the debate Thursday for "pirating my ideas and parroting my rhetoric," has shifted here and there, too. Four years ago, when he took on Mr. Bush in the primary here - at a time when workers were suffering - Mr. Buchanan abruptly abandoned his long-held support of free trade.

"It is a foreign policy of inertia and nostalgia." he said of his former free-trade advocacy. "Lord help me, I used to be one of them." In an interview, Mr. Buchanan explained his reversal by saying that "the political cause of my lifetime - anti-Com-munism, the cold war - it's over," and that it was time to "start looking out for No. 1.".

And while Mr. Dole was borrowing from Mr. Buchanan last week, Mr. Buchanan was borrowing one of Mr. Forbes set lines when he declared: "We come here to New Hampshire now with our crusade to put America and Americans first really brimming with bope, growth and opportunity."

Nor should former Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee get off the book. Mr. Alexander, who served as Secretary of Education, has more recently called for abolishingthe Education Department. In New Bampshire, he took up a new cause the other day, against "environmental extremists."...

Gov. John M. Engler of Michigan, a popplar Republican who has not endorsed a primary candidate, said that in his own races he tries not to become preoccupied with figuring out just what the voters want

"Voters can be very demanding - they can be very arbitrary as well," Mr. Engler said. "They can be very unrealistic in their expectations. Sometimes you get so wrapped up in trying to appeal to a subset of the electorate, that you can miss the winning message."

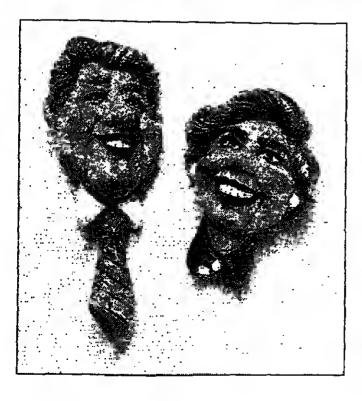

For the Kitschmeister in Chief Who Has Everything

CRGET the 1996 primaries and their ugly humiliations: Presidents still com-mand plenty of respect. Check out all those commemorative appliance sales on Presidents' Day tomorrow. And how about the exhibit now being prepared at the National Archives in Washington? It will display not only the ornate formal gifts to Presidents from foreign heads of state and other noteworthies, but also thoughtful tributes crafted by ordinary Americans. It opens March 22 and runs until next February.

HARD OUTER SHELL During World War II, a Cleveland dentist, Dr. Bernie Cooper, saluted Franklin D. Roosevelt with 37mm antitank ammunition.

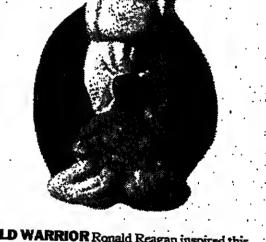

Photographs by PAUL HOSEFROS/The New York Times

المترا المستحية بتناصي المتعالم متنا بتني

pins of the Clintons at left were created by Bill and Patricia Pae of Morrisville, Pa.

COLD WARRIOR Ronald Reagan inspired this refrigerator magnet by Julie Hornsby of Delaware, Ohio.

FLOORED This rug for Gerald Ford was woven by a Californian, Haroutim Tabakian,

RED INK? Lyndon Johnson needed all those pens to sign the Great Society legislation he got. through Congress. The wooden sculpture at left was carved by Gene Zesch of Hye, Tex.

Jevico 1:50

THE JERUSALEM POST

THE NEW YORK TIMES, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1996

WEEKLY REVIEW

The World The West in Afghanistan, Before and After

By JOHN F. BURNS

HERAT, Afghanistan BDUL RAQIB is a man who walks through minefields for a living. An old Soviet army bayonet in one hand and an American-trained sniffer dog in the other, Mr. Raqib goes hunting for some of the 10 million land mines left when Soviet troops were trying to maintain the Kremlin's grip on Afghanistan and United States backed Muslim guerrillas were fighting to dislodge them.

Mr. Raqib is one of 3,000 people employed by the United Nations in a project to clear 50 square miles of "priority" minefields across Afghanistan by the end of next year. After that, there will be another 140 square miles to clear, enough to keep Mr. Raqib and his team busy well into the 21st century, assuming continued aid from the Western nations that finance the project's annual budget of $25 million.

Russia gives only weapons: The U.S. forwards a little cash and keeps its distance.

In the old grazing fields of Injeel, on the western side of this ancient city, Mr. Raqib paused along a corridor of red-painted stones and pointed to the hazards: British, Italian and Iranian anti-tank mines that were laid to stop Soviet armor from approaching a stronghold of the Muslim "holy warriors" backed by the West. When the guerrillas planted the mines, the Russians used bombers instead. Injeel today is a vista of rubble, broken here and there by the tattered tents of refugees.

In this arid spot, as elsewhere amid theruns of Afghanistan, there are moments to ponder what outsiders accomplished during the final confrontation of the cold war. With tanks and bombers and the more personal viciousness of the K.G.B., the Kremlin tried to wrench an ancient Mnslim society into. the straitjacket of Communism. With at least $5 billion of American taxpayers' money, the United States challenged the Kremlin with guerrilla proxies. The guerrillas won, but Afghanistan lost.

Today, what is left is hardly a country. It is more a patchwork of fiefs run by a nightmarish assembly of warlords and drug-runners and Islamic fundamentalists using weapons that were mostly provided by Moscow and Washington. The current landlords in Herat are the Taliban, originally a group of Islamic fundamentalist "students" but degraded oow, after conquering half the country, into little more than another armed, marauding mafia. Near the border with Iran, the Taliban are re-enacting sceoes from the ayatollahs' bandbook, with public executions and amputations, and the exclusion of women and girls from jobs and schooling.

The cold war left an array of fiefs. Herat is ruled by the Taliban, an army of students-turned-fundamentalists, like the soldier above.

Men like Mr. Raqib look back on the Soviet occupation of the 1980's as a sort of political mirage, a time when meo fought for causes that seem now nearly as pointless as the civil war between the Muslim factions that ensued. "Russia is very bad, and America is also quite bad," said Mr. Raqib, who was a Muslim guerilla back in the 80's. "How to choose between them?"

From Russia, Zero

A counterargument can be drawn from the United Nations' list of contributors to the mine-clearing project: $1.8 million from the United States last year, out of a total budget of $12 million from Western countries, and nothing from Russia. The pattern recurs in the wider relief programs run by the United Nations and non-governmental organizatioos like the International Committee of the Red Cross. This year, the United States is expected to contribute $40 million to $60 million toward emergency food relief, medical assistance, school and hospital rebuilding and a score of other projects. Russia, again, is a virtual no-show.

Worse, Russia is once again a significant arms supplier, along with India and fran, to the government in Kabul controlled by Ahmad Shah Massoud, a former guerrilla commander who was the bane of Soviet forces in the Panjsher Valley north of Kabul. Arrayed on the other side, in support of the Taliban, are Saudi Arabia and Pakistan — Saudi Arabla to spite Iran, its nemesis in politics and religion, and Pakistan apparently because it sees the Taliban, which is made up mainiy of Pashtuns, as a guarantor of future influence here for Pakistan, with its own large Pashtun population.

This time, the United States is sitting it out. Officially, American policy has been to back Mahmoud Mestiri, a former Tunisian foreign minister who is the most recent United Nations peace envoy to spin his wheels in efforts to drag the Afghan factions out of the morass. Unofficially, Washington's policy has been to distance itself from the mess. "The attitude is, we don't have a dog in this fight," said one American diplomat in the region. "After the Russians went home in 1989, we waited just long enough to be sure that their proxies in Kabul collapsed, then we went home, too. We rolled up our Afghan maps."

Sacrificed for Reagan

This attitude is bitterly criticized in Afghanistan. In the self-excusing litany of the despairing Afghan, it is common to say that Afghans were cannon fodder for the cold war, sacrificed to Ronald Reagan's showdown with the Evil Empire. From this, it is a short step to argue that the United States, which helped to destroy the country, is morally bound to rebuild it. Among Afghans, the measure of America's faithlessness is taken from the amount it spent on weapons for the guerrillas, perhaps $500 million a year, compared with the fraction Washington gives now for relief.

The arguments have their echo within the State Department, where infighting that began in 1988, before the Soviet troop withdrawal, continues in another form today. Then, the dissenters argued that the Unued States should halt, or severely curtail, the flow of arms to guerrilla groups that were turning Afghanistan into a mass of poppy fields for the heroin trade, or saving their weaponry to use on each other once the Russians left. Now, some of those who opposed the open spigot for the guerrillas are saying the United States has practical, if not moral, reasons to become more deeply involved.

Opponents have powerful arguments to make, from the scarcity of American aid in the Newt Gingrich era to the despair of finding any diplomatic strategy that might bring reason to a country that has spun into self-sustaining madness. Others have argued, with little success, that a policy that relegates Afghanistan to insignificance, particularly when it is at risk to Muslim fundamentalism, is one that has forgotten history, and what it has to teach about the importance of Afghanistan as a buffer state in the volatile geopolitics of Central Asla.

пе З

In North Korea the Threat is Total Collapse

An Economic Basket Case

By ELAINE SCIOLINO

WASHINGTON

UST two years ago, the Clinton Administration's biggest fear about North Korea was its determioation to develop nuclear weapons — a determination that could have led to war with the South. That worry was allayed after North Korea promised not to pursue atomic weaponry, in exchange for help with more benign nuclear power plants. But now, the United States has a different worry — that North Korea is in so much trouble economically that it could fall apart. Rather than eliminate a threat, a sudden collapse could touch off internal chaos, a flood of refugees and — if things got truly desperate — war with the South.

South Korea, even more than the United States, is cager to avoid a sudden collapse of the North Korean regime. It is not just the threat of another war. South Korea's leaders are just as concerned that the North could fail the way East Germany did and, despite their stated commitment to reunification, they are extremely reluctant to make any real moves in that direction as long as the North remains an economic basket case.

In recent months, a wealth of anecdotal evidence - severe food and energy shortages, an increase in defectors, a dramatic scaling back of annual military ground exercises - suggests a country in economic crisis and a leadership struggling to cope with it.

One difficulty the United States faces in figuring out what to do in response is that North Korea is the black hole of Asia — an isolated, rigid, Stalinist regime whose policies, capabilities and intentions are nearly impossible for the outside world to divine. Another is that for means American intentions

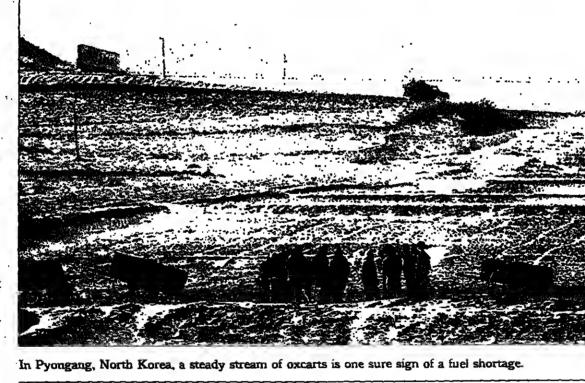

Another is that for years, American intelligence agencies have focused hard on North Korea's 1.2 million man army and its nuclear weapons program. The satellites and other secret intelligence gathering told America a lot about where the tanks were pointing and whether their engines were running, but little about whether peasants had enough to eat or whether the leadership was secure. So it is hard now to know just what to make of the anecdotal reports now emerging, and even harder to know how to react to them.

"For a long time there was little attention paid to such things," said Toby Gati, the State Department's most senior intelligence official. "If it was not an indication of war, there was no way to put it into the charts. The main focus of our analysis was and continues to be whether and under what conditions the North would invade the South. This is still crucial because of our troops. But a country is more than a tank, and now we have to have more than a one-dimensional look."

Floods and Oxcarts

The task of analyzing the country's economy has become more crucial following floods last summer that wiped out entire villages and a large percentage of the country's food stocks and new harvest. This aggravated an economic crists created after the Soviet Union collapsed and North Korea lost its patron and after China decided a year ago to stop selling the North grain on credit.

When the North Korean regime, whose guiding principle is self-reliance, turned to the outside world for help, the United States concluded that the economic problems were severe enough to warrant $2 million in food aid. Since North Korea remains subject to a 46year-old economic embargo, the pledge of emergency aid was a diplomatic overture as much as it was a humanitarian response — designed to show that the United States had no interest in seeing North Korea fall apart.

Last November, the secretive North even allowed the United Nations' World Food Program to open an office in the capital, Pyongyang; its presence has provided rare snapshots of everyday life.

Earlier this month, for example, Trevor Page, the program's director, visited Hwanghae, a prosperous town by North Korean standards and the fifth-largest in the country, where, according to his report, conditions were "appalling." Children from one to 16 years of age met in unbeated classrooms where temperatures were about 5 degrees below zero. Most of the children were coughing and sneezing. School feeding rations had been cut in half.

There were no cars oo the streets, only a steady stream of oxcarts and bicycles — a sign of a fuel shortage. Groups of peasants were furtively selling firewood, clothing, cigarettes, matches and ballpoint pens on an illegal black market, which, according to an internal World Food Program report, "the Government is now tolerating because the public rationing system has broken down for lack of food."

In another report after a World Food Program visit to North Pyongan province last month, people interviewed said they were eating only two meals a day and stretching rice by turning it into porridge. The agency also has reported that the police are not arresting peasants who come into Pyongyang from the a server encounter and all the second server as a server state of the transformer second second second second a countryside with nothing to do but wander around in search of food. "Is there famine in the Biblical sense?" asked Mr. Page in a telephone interview from Pyongyang. "Clearly not. But the North Korean winter is hard and long and people are cold and the people are hungry and desperately short of food."

Another sign of discontent is that more North Koreans are fleeing overland into China and defecting to the South. Although American intelligence analysts look with skepticism on the stories told by defectors in staged press conferences in South Korea, the sheer number of the reports, particularly from soldiers who have defected, means they are now taken more seriously. Some defectors, for example, claim that hungry soldiers are deserting, robbing peasants, and being treated in hospitals for malnutrition.

Most interesting to the Pentagon is the fact that although North Korea's annual Air Force exercises are at about the same level as last year, its ground exercises are dramatically smaller. That, military analysts say, could mean that the Army does not have enough fuel to exercise.

Still, there is oo agreement inside or outside the Administration about the exteot to which shortages have affected morale or military readiness, whether the country is going to collapse or whether a collapse would prompt the North to invade the South.

"When you combine the failure of the economic system, the absence of political legitimacy and the lack of international backing, common sense tells you this is a country falling apart from within," said Stanley Roth, until recently the chief Asian analyst at the National Security Council. "But it's almost impossible to project when you have such little data."

An Ideal Ebbs

Democracy:

Continued from page 1

attribute of democracy; effective democracy implies a system in which elections help a society govern itself fairly and weil. Mr. Zakaria argues that America might do better by promoting civic values like free speech, separation of church and state and property rights.

All too often, such elections have produced oot "democracy" as Americans understand it, but what Ken Jowitt, a political scientist at the University of California at Berkeley, cails "Potemkin" or "mimic democracies" with few of the civic virtues found in the handful of "liberal-capitalist-democratic" states. Ironically, he says, efforts to promote democracy may have weakened the power of the state. And now, as a result, democracy is not oearly as important as stability.

Not for Everyone

Most analysts agree that democracy building has traditionally been ignored in Arab states, , where the United States has vital oational interests. Whatever praise the Administration has had for political liberalization in Jordan and Yemen, and for the receot Palestinian elections (which legitimized the autocratic rule of Yasir Arafat), officials remain wary of democratization as a general rule for the region. The worry is that anti-American, militantly Islamic regimes might replace the durably autocratic but pro-American governments of Egypt, Saudi Arabia and many gulf states.

So Washington did not protest when in 1992 the military cancelled an election in Algeria that would have brought the anti-Western Islamic Salvation Front to power. And the State Department was quiet last month when Britain began deporting a leading Saudi dissident, Mohammed al-Massari, whom the United States suspected of links to terrorist groups. "Saudi Arabia is the only place where U.S. officials have flatly told me that human rights and democracy are not an American concern," said Neil Hicks, Mideast coordinator of the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights, a private group based in New York.

Moreover, critics say, promoting democracy may not advance, or be consistent with, other American goals. Presidents Bush and Clinton both sacrificed concerns for human rights and democracy to protect America's profitable trade relations with China. In Latin America, the United States has found, alas, that autocratic regimes often suppress the drug trade more effectively than the region's elected leaders. Only in Africa, argues Mr. Carothers, has advancing democracy been a key element of American policy. But, he adds, only in Africa does the United States have no "significant economic or national security interests."

Penn Kemble, deputy director of the United States Information Agency, and Brian Atwood, director of the Agency for loternational Development, both say that the cost of promoting democracy is worth it. But, Mr. Kemble admits: "We're a little sadder, a little wiser now. We now know we need patience and perseverance to change a country's political culture. Changing Russia's will take at least a generation."

Even the suggestion that Russia might become democratic in a generation seems optimistic given its history and currect behavior. But in American democracy, patience is not a virtue. The Administrations that will deal with Russia can last, by law, no more than eight years. e

rs

00

30. 30

he

Ċ.S ue

ly. rol

2W

ise

re-

of cal

a's ihe ich ive n."

:ed

rds

us-

TE WEEKLY REVIEW

Ideas & Trends

Love It, Hate It, It's Hollywood

By BERNARD WEINRAUB

HOLLYWOOD N Billy Wilder's 1950 film "Sunset Boulevard," Joe Gillis, a screenwriter, meets the fading movie star, Norma Desmond, for the first time.

"You used to be big," he tells her. Norma's classic reply: "f am big. It's the pictures that goi small."

Well, Norma Desmond was half right. There are plenty of big films that Hollywood studios nurture and crank out with increasing frequency, debacles like "Cutthroat Island" that would probably appall Miss Desmond. Although big films like "Apollo 13" and "Braveheart" won recognition this year, Hollywood is increasingly honoring small, offbeat films like "Leaving Las Vegas," "Babe," "Dead Man Walking," "Sense and Sensibility" and "The Postman" ("Il Postino") with its accolades and Academy Award nominations.

Risky, offbeat films are getting the Oscar nominations more and more these days.

The Academy Awards are ofteo an annual exercise in self-congratulation by Hollywood. No matter that this year, as in previous years, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences could barely find five top films to be nominated as best picture. The nominees were announced Tuesday, and the Oscars will be presented March 25.

A total of 255 films were eligible for the best picture award. Many of the most expensive ones ($40 million or more) were terrible: "Judge Dredd," "Waterworld" and "Assassins." Many of the cheaper ooes (under $40 million) were, well, also terrible. (It was the year of "Showgirls," probably the worst reviewed movie in recent memory). As a result, the Oscar nominations this year took an unusual turn. On the one hand, Hollywood paid obeisance to two studio epics. One of them was Paramount's "Braveheart," a saga about 13th century Scotland starring Mel Gibson, who also directed, which captured 10 nominations. The other was Universal's "Apollo 13," the true story of the perilous space mission, which got nine nominations. But after honoring these two, the members of the Academy lavished all their attention on offbeat, difficult-to-market and risky movies that were either rejected or ignored by studios.

The Tribulations of

The Not-So-Living Arts

Quasi-independent companies like Miramax and Gramercy got more nominations than big studios like 20th Century Fox or Warner Brothers. Equally surprising, the Academy ignored such well-known directors as Martin Scorsese ("Casino"), Oliver Stone ("Nixon") and Ron Howard ("Apollo 13") in favor of five film makers who had never been nominated in the directing category. These included Mel Gibson ("Braveheart,") Chris Noonan ("Babe") Tim Robbins ("Dead Man Walking"), Mike Figgis ("Leaving Las Vegas") and Michael Radford ("The Postman"). Ang Lee, director of "Sense and Sensibility," failed to get a nod, even though his film garnered seven nominations - two to Emma Thompson, for best actress and best screenplay. Hollywood seemed to be saying: let's honor the types of films that studios like Warner Brothers firmly reject in favor of Jim Carrey comedies, Lethal Weapons and Free Willies.

"What you're seeing is the Academy voters supporting the kind of riskler films that studios used to make, films like 'Midnight Cowboy.'" said Russell Schwartz, chairman of Gramercy Films, which produced "Dead Man Walking," the somber drama about the complexities of capital punishment starring Susan Sarandon and Sean Penn. (That film received four nominations, including best actor and actress). "This whole arena has now been taken over by the independents," he said.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1996

Harvey Weinstein, co-chairman of Miramax, which distributed "The Postman," said the cost of making studio films almost guaranteed an aversion to making nonformulaic, risky movies. Studios often spend $30 to $40 million on an average film, with an additional $10 million to $15 million to market it. Contrast this investment with the cost of making "Dead Man Walking," ($13 milllon), "Leaving Las Vegas" ($4 million) and "The Postman," ($4 million).

"The high risk of producing movies is scary out there and this leads to movies that are homogenized at a certain level," said Mr. Weinstein. "There are exceptions like 'Apollo 13,' but so many of the movies just follow a formula, where the stories are indistinguishable from one one another, where there's an action formula and a comedy formula and it's all mass-marketed products.

"These smaller films are risky, too, they're scary, often they have no stars," he added, "but these are labors of love with their own artistic vision. And that's what you want."

But some top executives seemed puzzled

'Braveheart' gets the most nominations, but how about that pig?

and even displeased at the selections for best picture by the 5,043 members of the academy, who range from studio heads to film editors. Bob Shaye, chairman of New

Annals of Declassification

Nuclear Secrets Worth Keeping

Line Cinema, observed that many of the top films were produced by companies in France, Australia, Britain and France. And several of 1995's highest grossing films were largely overlooked, such as "Batman Forever," which got three nominations, and

"Pocohantas," which earned two. "The Academy seems to be drifting away from populist entertainment and is not really acknowledging the dollar votes that audiences have cast for the films they loved," said Mr. Shaye, whose company is one of the most successful in town. He characterized the vote on many of the films as elitist.

"I guess it's a way of saying that the films which entertained the nation by virtue of their box office success are not worthy of industry recognition," he said. Mr. Shaye said he was disgruntled because his company's most successful film in 1995, "Seven," starring Brad Pitt and Morgan Freeman, captured only one nomination — for film editing, "We should have gotten more," Mr. Shaye said.

about the complexities of capital punish- where there's an action formula and a com- Line Cinema, observed that many of

Susan Sarandon, left, and Sean Penn, the stars of "Dead Man Walking," discuss a scene with Tim Robbins, the director.

THE JERUSALEM POST

licon

Continued from page 1

sider, for example, the supposed anomalies turned up by the surveys. The most important is that while concert halls and theaters are facing problems, art museums are booming. In 1992, an estimated 49.6 million people visited museums, compared with 36.2 million in 1982, an increase of 37 percent. Older baby boomers and adults born between 1966 and 1975 are the two biggest age groups in art museums.

This may be due in part to our cullure's increasing emphasis on the visual, its preoccupation with imagery on television and in movies. Museums may also demand a lower commitment of money and time than a concert or theater, involre less planning and require little, If any risk of being imprisoned in unpleasantness. They have showed marketing savvy, creating audio-tours, gift shops, restaurants and blockbuster shows.

Fleeting Experience

None of these explanations, however, guarantee a very deep involvement with the visual arts as arts. And it doeso't feel as if Americans are in the midst of a renaissance. If anything, the urgency with which museums are developing educational programs reveals an anxiety about the depth of that involvement. A visit may offer some museumgoers a kind of freedom and intermittent involvement that is closer in spirit to the kind of exposure that listeners have to classical music on television, radio or compact discs — areas that have also shown growth.

The N.E.A. report notes, for example, that "video consumption" of classical music is high for the same age groups that show declines in attendance at concerts. Recordings have also become more important as a replacement for the live experience. Moreover, between 1982 and 1992, the audiences for classical music and jazz on the radio grew by more than 50 percent.

But this good news may also be bad news: music on the radio is listened to more passively. The quality of classical music radio has also declined significantly; stations have closed, selections are shorter, vocal music is rare, popular classics dominate. The numbers may be going up, but the nature of the experience is not the same.

Television viewing is also no panacea for the arts and seems far less central than the report suggests. Forty years ago, NBC could sponsor an orchestra and broadcast Toscanini's concerts; there is no commercial network that would even consider such an undertaking today.

So things may be even worse than they appear in the surveys taken by the N.E.A. The only place where the reports seem overly pessimistic is opera: opera has been thriving, partly because of simultaneous translations, the appeal of traditional drama on a large scale, and new works that address, however fitfully, cootemporary political themes.

One reason for the crisis in the arts may be another aspect of the arts that surveys cannot examine: their achievement. Museums thrive on collections of masterpieces and their fate does not depend on new acquisitions. But concert halls and theaters require either important new works (which have failed to find large audiences or stir much passion) or compelling interpreters (who are far less plentiful than they were a generation ago). The lapse in education, the uncertainty in artistic achievement, the worries over audience attendance and the lack of visionary patrons may all be signs of a vast change in the Western artistic tradition itself. Of course there has always been a complicated relationship between the high and low in culture, and much that is now central to high culture has also appealed to mass audiences. But now the very notion of high artistic achievement is often regarded as a chimera and the products of these long and sophisticated Western traditions are often treated as if they have no greater claim on America's attention than the latest music video. Such attitudes, just by being made, already prove that the arts can no longer assume stability. Popular culture will thrive, but aspirations for greater accomplishment, once expected from the citizens of a democracy, are deflected, even resented. We are now suspicious of anything that smacks too much of etitism. It may be that the crisis in the arts is democracy's revenge.

Philip Greenberg for The New York Times Just looking at the Metropolitan.

By MATTHEW L. WALD

WASHINGTON IAGRAMS of nuclear weapons are available to anyone with access to the internet, and earlier this month the United States Government published an accounting of every bit of bomb fuel it ever made, and where it all went, nearly down to the last ounce. The Energy Department even has an Internet web page where people hungry for nuclear secrets can search through abstracts of once-classified documents and learn how to order the full documents for free; if they are brief enough, the Government will fax the documents out.

So what's left for the bomb-makers to keep secret?

Plenty, they say, and the secrets may be more important now than in the days when "nuclear threat" meant Communist bombs. Then, the object of the classification system was mostly to keep the Russians and the Chinese from learning the extent of American nuclear strength and from picking up American techniques for turning their uranium and plutonium into more efficient weapons.

But now, officials say, the problem is to keep third world countries and even smaller entities from learning to build any weapons at all. With increased commerce in plutonium around the world, and surpluses of nuclear material from the former Soviet Union, the issue is no longer the efficiency of weapons. Whether a third world nation or a terrorist group is building an efficient bomb or a bomb of obsolete design, one that yields fewer kilotons of TNT equivalent per kilo of uranium or plutonium, does not matter. The point is to keep any nuclear weapon, of whatever quality, from being built.

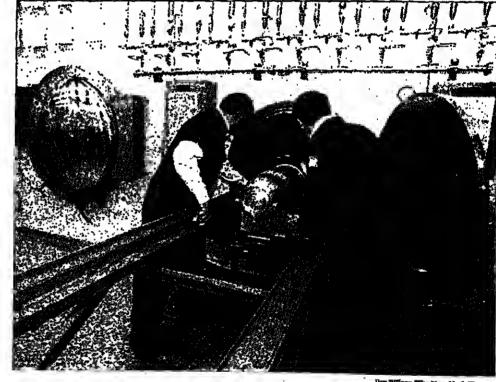

Still, the Energy Department is increasingly eager to let go of some of its information. Hazel R. O'Leary, the Energy Secretary, has been saying since she took office almost three years ago that ber department needs to build trust with the public, to develop a consensus about the disposal of nuclear materials. For that, she believes, the public must be educated.

She said ooe reason for divulging just how much weapons plutonium is stored around the country — long a closely held secret — is to make people understand just how important it is to find a storage space for it and for nuclear waste from civilian power plants, which would probably go into the same repository.

Classified at Birth

The department is also after international trust. It wants a worldwide ban oo the production of nuclear fuel, and part of that campaign depends on disclosing what the Energy Department itself has.

But declassification is tricky. For years the Atomic Energy Commission, and oow the Energy Department, operated on a principle used nowhere else in the American Government — that whole categories of ideas are "classified at birth," secret until proven otherwise. Now, with the new emphasis on openness, there is a lot of catching up to do in declassification.

In an area once off-limit to cameras, workers prepart a mock-up of a W-80 warfiead for a test at the Pantex Nuclear Weapons Plant near Amarillo, Tex.

Is it worth it? The Energy Department spends $9 million a year now on declassification decisions, and in the midst of budget cutbacks for environmental cleanup, it is not anxious to spend more.

There may be other reasons for resistance to opening up the vaults. Many critics of declassification are the people who know what secrets are kept, and whose livehood has been tied up in keeping those secrets. Now, in an era of layoffs, their desire to hold onto a job may, in part, be driving their desire to hold onto nuclear information.

"This whole classification discussion has been much more an argument about job security than national security," said Charles R. Hansen, a specialist in nuclear bombs. Some of the decisions about classification are being made, ha said, by people who would become less important if the system ceased to exist.

Declassification also requires changing attitudes. "Io the past there has always been a fear that almost any information, if enough is digested, can lead to good guesses about the details of nuclear weapons design," said Albert Narath, head of a study group that has been assembled by the Energy Department to produce new proposals on nuclear secrecy. Mr. Narath himself said be had spent decades working within that culture of secrecy. "Perhaps there's been a little bit too much paranoia," he said.

Which secrets can now be safely disclosed? There are those that concern just how many weapons the United States has, and how fast it could make new ones once a nuclear war had begun. The idea that the United States would actually have time to manufacture additional bombs after the first nuclear exchange has been outdated since the 1960's, when both sides had accumulated nuclear stockpiles big enough for mutual assured destruction.

Slow to Answer

· . · . . .

The Energy Department bas always been slow to answer questions about nuclear weapons, but that is changing. Recently the department boasted that it had finally cleared away all the requests made in the 1980's under the Freedom of Information Act and three-quarters of those made from 1990 to 1992. It promised to finish with the requests from 1993 and 1994 by 1997. According to the department, 1995 was the first year that it had closed more cases — by releasing information or refusing to release it — than the public had filled.

A. Wards

ALLINE THE

There are some facts that the Energy Department still won't talk about. No one knows whether these are real secrets or information that ordinary people already know. Even in an era of openness, there can be value in ambiguity and mystery.

Take, for example, the information about weapons designs that are out on the World Wide Web According to Mr. Narath "there's a lot of suff out there, some of it real, some of it not." That is why "ay approach of 'no comment' is appropriate he said. Then, anyone who wants to build a bomb is "left to guess whether the design."

THE NEW YORK TIMES, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1996

ECONOMY

Silicon Valley is Paved With Paper Fortunes

By MICHAELS. MALONE

THE JERUSALEM POST

SUNNYVALE, Calif. N August, the Netscape Communications Corporation held one of the most successful initial public stock offerings in Silicon Valley history. In a single day, the year-old company, with just $17 million in sales, was valued at more than $3 billion. And the stock kept climbing.

it was an exciting moment for Netscape employees, many of whom . had instant personal fortunes - 00 paper, at least. But almost as exciting was the day three months later . when the underwriter, Morgan Stanley, decided Netscape's stock was strong enough to release the lock-out" on its sale by non-officers. That's when the payoff became real.

"We wanted to let our employees get a little bit of liquidity," said Mike Homer, vice president for marketing at Netscape.

Tales about some high-technology bosses are legendary - the new multi-multimillionaires so obsessed with their work that they still drive. their '87 Chevys and haven't both-. ered to move uphill from their humble lodgings. But then there are other employees, at all levels, suddenly worth a million or two on paper and still struggling to buy groceries. They are itching to live better - a lot better.

At Netscape, Mr. Homer said, some employees didn't wait for Morgan Stanley to fire the starting gun. Instead, they found financial institutions and brokers willing to lend them money using their newly valaable stock as collateral or otherwise turn their paper wealth into cash. Most ways of doing this are legal, but some seem to subvert the reason the rules are there in the first place - to keep insiders from bailing out too soon after the public is invited in.

Any attempt by the Securities and Exchange Commission to categorize and control this type of activity doesn't work, said Robert Gabele, president of CDA/Investnet Inc. in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., which follows the securities industry. "Wall Street quickly finds ways to get around the definition."

As for Mr. Homer himself, though he wouldn't say exactly how he got the cash, he did not wait long before he bought a new Mercedes, took a coupie of weeks' vacation, started looking for a new house for bis family and, for Chriatmas, bought his mother a new car.

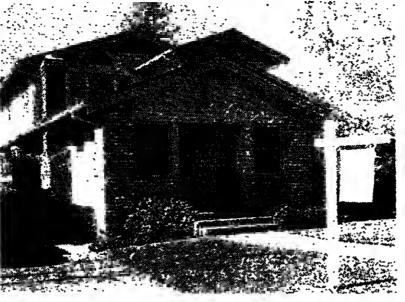

Such spending has been a Silicon Valley phenomenon at least since Apple Computer went public with its first sale of stock in 1981. Within days, even hours of stock offerings, the parking lots full of rusted heaps start to be transformed into a veritable auto show of new Ferraris and Porsches. And within weeks, many of these cars are driven to expensive new homes in the hills.

Where do these people get the cash?

"I sometimes wonder about that myself," laughed E. Michael Begovich, regional vice president for the technology industries group of Bank of the West in San Jose, "But I'll tell you this: If a client worth, say, $200 million on paper came to me and

WOBLD STOCK NARKETS

PERFORMA	NCE	11	U.S.	DOLLAR	35		IN LOCA	L CURR
Country	index	Week % Chg.		YTD % Chg.	YTD Bank	Dividend Yield	Index	YTD % Chg.
Australia	199:61	. 1.3	11	. 5.0 :		$ 80	17S.66	3.4
Austria	185 79	0.4	17	6.4	7		141.04	8.7
Belgium	209 18	-1.4 .	. 22	00	22	3.40	155.12	2.2
Brazil	162.06	-2.8	24	17.S	'n	1.58	292 54	185
Britain	235 50	26	. 2	2.2	18	3 97	225 S1	2.4
Canada .	- 156 30	~10	19	. S.3	9	2,40	156 44	67
Denmark	302.64	0.1	15	4.8	12	1.52	232 76	69
Finland	180.06	-1.3	21	- 37	26	1.85	172 76	13
France	185.08	1.1	12	3.2	15	3.12	146.03	- 61
Germany	171.55	1.6	10	4.8	13	1.85	130.36	70
Hong Kong	451.17,	2.5	3.	164	2	3.16	447.97	16.4
Ireland	261 84	2.3	Ś	2.5	17	3.41	231 74	32
Italy	74.05	-77	26	0.5	20	1.70	87.62	0.3
Japan	153.85	0.7 ;	13	- 0.7	.24	0.74	102.44	1.4
Malaysia	525.37	2.2	. 7 ·	8.3	6	1.62	516 67	8.9
Mexico	1,138,59	-1.8	23	9.9	5	1:48	9,391.94	7.6
Netherlands	280.06	1.6	9	27	16	3.12	209.23	4.9
New Zealand	79.35	-0,1	16.	- 0.4	23	4.68	62.15	- 3.9
Norway	236.15	- 2.3	. 6.	2.1	19	Ž.18	204.61	3.2
Singapore	458.99	2.0	. 8	. 12.7	3	1.36	296.33	11.6
South Africa	407.87	-4.8	25	S.9	8	3.53	337.34	9.9
				-

Owners of this home in Palo Alto are asking more than $1 million.

wanted to borrow $100,000 on an un- munifies have skyrocketed. From secured loan and pay it back in six months, I'd do it.

"I want his company's business, I want his business - and, eventually, he'll probably move on and start some other business, and I want a shot at dealing with that company. too," he said.

Mr. Begovich's remarks are a reminder that just because your stock makes you rich doesn't mean you can spend your new wealth, at least not right away. The S.E.C. has regulations tying up big employee stock sales for months after an initial offering. The underwrhers add their restrictions, typically lock-outs to the stocks for as long as six months. Then there are stock options, which employees may not be able to cash in for years. And key executives must be careful about unloading shares or risk damaging the company's image and putting the stock in free fall.

Still, there is a powerful desire to reward yourself for long hours and financial sacrifices. According to Jean W. Blomberg, senior vice president of Silicon Valley Bank in Palo Alto, top managers usually do not have much trouble, "Most of these, people have started several companies in the past," she said, "so they typically borrow against some other asset, like a residence, then pay it off when they exercise the stock."

Companies can help employees Improve their lot, too. Apple, for example, around the time of its offering, began rewarding top executives with expensive cars, helping prompt the sudden change in the complexion of its parking lot.

entrepreneurial successes, who typi- notable being Section 16 of the 1933 cally have few assets and have Securities Act, which establishes vhat little credit the oumeau trying to keep the company alive. For them, the biggest challenge may be just getting through the car dealer's door. Since the days of Steve Jobs and Steve Wozniak, it has been a valley cliché that the scruffy guy in torn clothes looking in the showroom window is either a burglar casing the place or next week's Time magazine cover. "You talk to everyone who comes in," said Bart Hood, vice president and general manager of Park Avenue Motors Inc., a Mercedes-Benz dealership in Palo Alto. "Not long ago, I had a young kid come in with a ponytail, T-shirt and jeans. Turned ou he was a software designer. He'd gone to another dealer and nobody would even talk to him. We sold him a Mercedes roadster." When these T-shirt tycoons want to turn stock into cash, Ms. Blomberg said, it is important to develop a relationship with the bank, usually through the company, well in advance. It is also important, she added, for the bank to have a good understanding of the industry. Most banks have their own rules barring lending against restricted stock, she said. "But if you know the company and its business, you can sometimes take that extra risk."

1994 to 1995 the median value of a home in Los Allos Hills rose from $825,000 to $1 million, or 21 percent; in Palo Alto, it went from $416,000 to $450,000, an 8 percent increase. One factor in favor of the new Silicon Valley millionaires is that they are the latest in a long line of high-tech grandees. Technology employees burning money on expensive playthings after an initial offering have been around since the 1960's. Apple, for example, created about 100 millionaires when it went public, some of them engineers and secretaries. At Microsoft, it may have been 10 times that. The smart companies, typically those led by veterans of past offerings, bring in professionals to help. Netscape's chairman, James L. Clark, who had founded Silicon Graphics, and its president and chief executive, James L. Barksdale, former chief executive of AT&T Wireless, brought in investment bankers from Morgan Stanley, Hambrecht & Ouist and Alex Brown to give employees free advice on investing their new riches. "The issue often becomes how mature these people are," said Tim Bajarin, president of Creative Strategies Inc. of San Jose. "Some people act like a kid in a candy store. Overnight, they suddenly become rich and a lot of them don't know how to deal with it."

But turning restricted stock into cash is not as simple as it may sound, especially the bigher you go in-the company. The S.E.C. places constraints both on selling stock and More difficult are the first-time on borrowing against it - the most ho is an insider and Rule 144 corporate charges through and around this process. The S.E.C. is especially wary of any transactions involving insiders selling their own company's slock short, which is essentially betting against the compa-

The biggest brokerage houses -Lehman Brothers, Merrill Lynch, Morgan Stanley, Salomon Brothers and Smith Barney - have even formed special departments for restricted-stock trading. These teams, which deals with nine billion such shares in the first half of 1994 alone, have come up with several strategies for liquidating restricted stock. each with advantages and disadvanlages.

"A lot of companies view compensation to employees as including the selling of shares," said Richard A. Gadbois 3d, senior vice president for Merrill Lynch in Irvine, Calif., and one of the most successful Rule 144 brokers, "And certainly, the ability to generate wealth through capital accumulation is far more compelling to employees than simply through sataries. So companies face an essential dilemma between doing the right thing in their financial planning or sending the right message to their shareholders."

Prying cash loose from stock especially using techniques like "shorting against the box," or selling short the same number of shares you want cash for, is, to Mr. Gadbois. 'a wonderful technique to liquidate a position and defer your taxes."

"It's amazing to me the LR.S. has let us do it so long," he said. "In fact, there are new laws in front of Congress" that might restrict it.

In lieu of unsecured loans, which can be hard to get outside of places like Silicon Valley, Mr. Gadbois recommends that clients sell a little stock at a time, not a lot all at once, so they do not stretch any rules.

With a volatile stock, of course, this delay means increased risk, so brokers like Mr. Gadbois also offer a "collar," in which the brokerage firm guarantees a floor on the stock's value, say $13 on a $15 stock, paying the shareholder the difference if the price falls lower. But the firm also keeps everything above a predetermined cap - say $20 a share.

Roger D. Blanc, a securities lawyer who is a partner at Willkie Farr & Gallagher in New York, pointed out that any of these techniques must also live up to the spirit of securities law. Passing sizable stock holdings back and forth among employees, brokers and bankers, trying to circumvent the holding period in what Mr. Blanc compares to the "give and go" play in basketball, "is usually unwise, especially right after the stock has been first issued." The S.E.C., he said, is not blind to all the changes in the securities markel. Recent proposals by the commission and the Treasury Department about postponing the recognition of gains and losses and reducing the holding period from two years to one "reflects that in a world of derivatives and swaps and other risk-limiting techniques, a securities act that treats stock as a single instrument is probably no longer sensible."

performed better on average than those from any other place in the COUNTRY

те 5

WEEKLY REVIEW

With this kind of ferocious corporate creation, it is not surprising that Silicon Valley companies, lending institutions and retailers have become adept at turning paper quickly to gold.

At the area's car dealers, the process is straightforward: turn the financing over to the banks. "They have to have proof it's more than talk," said Bart Hood, the Mercedes dealer. "We drop the matter in our lender's lap and let them accept or decline. But imagine that if the stock is real, it would be hard for the lender to turn them down."

Hinrich W. Buit, a salesman at Anderson-Behel Porsche in San Jose, said: "We can work something out; we do want their business. But the customer has to be good for it later on. You can go public today and tomorrow be broke."

Popular among buyers at his deatership, Mr. Butt said, is a "'one pay' contract - the customer puts a third down, makes monthly payments until the big money comes in, then pays off the loan.

With newly wealthy employees eager to buy showplace homes, local real estate firms have become especially adept at dealing with restricted stock. At the valley's largest residential brokerage, Cornish & Carey, agents have grown accustomed to the newly rich. "Some people are very confident, like they always expecied to be there," said Carol Burnett, senior vice president and manager of the Saratoga office, "Others are surprised, like they never dreamed something like this could happen."

Like the car dealers, Ms. Burnett linds that many of the newly rich already have considerable resources at their disposal. "They may have, say, $500,000 in assets they were guarding that they now feel comfortable spending," she said.

Those without that ready liquidity, but still eager to move uptown, are often steered by Ms. Burnett and her staff to the Merrill Lynch office in San Jose.

Smart banks, brokers and retailers in Silicon Valley know that the goal in dealing with these newly minted tycoons is not the quick sale, but the long-term relationship. After all, today's young millionaire may well become tomorrow's globe-trotting billionalre - and this first contact may lead to decades of business.

That is why Bank of America and Silicon Valley Bank both have special programs. Silicon Valley Bank jokingly calls Itself "the Wal-Mart of executive banking services," said Ms. Blomberg, the senior vice president, because it runs its program out of branch offices.

3-

:e

'n

1e

1-to

rs

;e

٦e

10

Jt.

ı'n

n.

уу 10

rs

ve

rs

10

as

-1t-

зk

າເກ

se

he

Dd.

do

he es.

ed

ue

ly,

rol

5W)

ise

nè-

of cal

ıt's

ihe

ich ive

n.

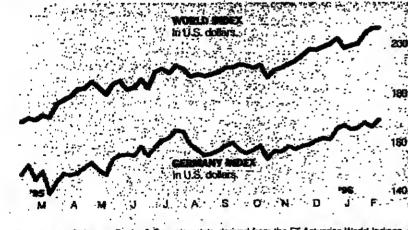

;ed

rds

us-

Spain	171.06	3.8	1	3.6	14	3.78	159.57	5.1
Sweden	312.42	-0.6	18	0.1	21	1.93	319.92	4.5
Switzerland	228.08	2,4	4	- 3.4.	2S	1.59	168.12	- 0.1
Thailand	189.40	0.7	14	12.6	4	2.02	185.39	127
United States	264.25	-1.1	20	5.2	10	2.18	264.25	S.a
COMPOSITE	NDICES	-	-	-	1000

SOME OTHER	101023					_
Europe	204 70	1.4	1.9	2.97	17S.98	3.8
Pacific Basin	167.42	1.0 .	1.3	1.16	114.68	3.0
Europe/Pacific	182.85	1.1	1.6	2.00	137.97	3.3
Wona	208.92	0.0	3.3	2.10	177.40	4.3

Prepared by Goldman, Sachs & Co. using data derived from the FT Actuaries World Indices, a measure of stock market performance. The FT indices are compiled jointly by The Financial Times Limited, Goldman, Sachs & Co, and NatWest Securities Ltd. in conjunction with the Instilute of Actuaries and the Faculty of Actuaries.

Source Goldmen, Sachs & Co. Exchange rates as of Finday's London close. © 1996 The Financial Times Ltd., Goldman, Sachs & Co. and NatWest Securities Ltd.

C U R	RENUTES
Exchange rates	Friday	Last Friday	Week % Chg.	Year Ago
Japanese yen to the U.S. dollar	105.18	107.05	-1.75	97.40
German marks to the U.S. dollar	1,4536	1.4765	-1.55	1.4803
Canadian dollars to the U.S. dollar	1.3810	1.3705	+0,75	1.4036
U.S. dollars to the British pound	1.5520	1.5310	+1.37	1.5815

Source: Bloomberg Financial Markets; exchange rates as of Friday's New York close.

In the housing market, the wave of stock offerings has put increasing pressure on prices, particularly in the best neighborhoods, Multiple offers on homes have become the rule in communities like Palo Alto, Menio Park, Los Gatos, Woodside and Portola, and some home seekers complain they are being driven from the market by allcash offers from employees of newly public companies.

In Santa Clara County, the heart of Silicon Valley, prices in some com-which sets limits on when and how much restricted stock can be sold by company executives and board members.

Although the commission does not state an official position about any of this for fear of setting precedents, it is known that these controls are intended to give outside investors an equal advantage with insiders, to aim sunlight at what would otherwise be hidden transactions and to keep corporate executives and underwriters from secretly selling their own stock short. Unfortunately, the controls do not always work. "The touchiest transactions in this area," said Mr. Gabele of CDA/Investnet, "are equity swaps in which the stock is being pledged as collateral and the bank or brokerage is shorting the stock to cover that loan. That should prompt an insider filing with the S.E.C. But it often doesn't.' On the surface, these rules do not seem particularly onerous. For example, under Rule 144, during any 90-day period an insider may sell up to 1 percent of the company's total outstanding shares, or the average number of shares traded in the most recent four weeks, whichever is greater. That is a large hunk of change. Of course, an insider must hold the stock for two years after getting it even to qualify for a Rule 144 sale. And it takes three years to get past the Rule 144 limits altogether. But the clock starts running as soon as the stock is acquired - in most cases, well before a company goes public. Yet such is the hunger of newly rich stockholders either to cash out or to diversify that a small army of Section 16 lawyers and Rule 144 brokers has appeared to guide their

Should these proposals be implemented, Mr. Blanc said, treating stock like cash will become even more popular. Add a capital gains tax reduction to these two changes, Mr. Gadbois said, "and you'll see a dramatic increase in activity."

Section 16 and Rule 144 may be the bane of the company executive looking for diversification, but except perhaps for the founding genlus down in the lab with 12 million shares, the law typically need not be a concern to a midlevel employee with a few thousand shares and an empty bank account.

With its soaring stock markets, 1995 was exceptionally fruitful for initial public offerings - nowhere more so than in Silicon Valley: Netscape's was only the most visible. In November, a study of the previous 12 months by Securities Data of New Jersey found that 4 of the top 10 cities for initial offerings were in Silicon Valley. Of 425 offerings studied. 31 came from just 4 adjoining cities in the area. Not only did Sunnyvale and Mountain View, with a combined population of less than 200,000. produce more offerings (14) than New York City (13), but those stocks

Bank of America's executive program is especially sophisticated. The bank has three offices - in San Francisco, Palo Alto and Monterey - dedicated to working with wealthy technology entrepreneurs.

"We see people go from zero worth to $50 million overnight -people suddenly worth $60 million but only drawing a $60,000 salary," said William L. Timoney, senior vice oresident for Bank of America's Private Banking and Investment Services. "But with wealth comes responsibility. When people don't have it, they wish for it. Then all of a sudden, it's there and they don't know what to do with it.

"Many of them want to buy a home, which we find is the most common first big-ticket item. Others are reluctant to part with their stock and end up riding it back down. The next product fails to meet expectations, the stock falls off the table and their wealth evaporates.".

For that reason, Mr. Timoney added, Bank of America advises its newly stock-rich clients to diversify their wealth as soon as possible. "We work with them to provide liquidity, such as using the stock for a loan. and then investing those proceeds into other securities."

How much can they borrow? Typically 50 percent to 70 percent of the market value of the stock, said Mr. Timoney, adding that because the stock is not actually sold, there is no problem with S.E.C. restrictions. Loans with more solid collateral can reach as much as 90 percent of the underlying value of the stock.

Sources Bank Rate Monitor, Bloomberg Financial Markets; The Bond Buyer; Datastrear Goldman, Sachs: IBC's Money Fund Report; Memil Lynch, Standard & Poor's, Ryan Labs

Feb. 12 -16: Dow Rally Takes a Break; Bond Yields Up Sharply

PRICES		DOMESTIC BONDS		AROUND THE WORLD		BONDS		OTHER INVESTMENTS
Broad market S.& P. 500 index	Down 1.28% 647.98	Treasuries Ryan Labs. Total Return	Down 0.46% 191.69	European stocks F.TActuaries Europe	Up 1.36% 204.70	Long bonds 30-year Treasuries	6.24% Up 15 basis pts.	Money market fun Taxable average	ds 4.84% Down 7 basis pls.
Blue chips Dow 30 industrials	Down 0.69% 5,503.32	Bond Buyer index	Down 0.39% 121.84	Asian stocks' F.TActuaries Pacific Basin	Up 0.96% 167.42	Short bonds 2-year Treasuries	4.91% Up 5 basis pts.	Bank C.D.'s 1-year small savers	4.69% Down 5 basis pts.
Small capitalization Russell 2000 index	Up 0.15% 321.S9	Corporates Merrill Lynch Master inde	Down 0.57% x 817 63	Sold Contract Contrac	$405.30	Municipals Bond Buyer index 100 basis points = 1 percentage p	5.53% Up 2 basis pts.	Stocks S.& P. 500 dividend	2.22% I yield Up 3 b.p.
90-DAY RELATIVE TREND	+15%		+ 15%		+15%	90-DAY RELATIVE TREND Change in basis points.	+150	Change in basis points.	+150
	0		0		0		······································
N D J	-15	NDJ	-15 F	N D J	F -15	N D J	F ⁻¹⁵⁰	Ni D	J F -150

es en la contra construction de la construcción de la construcción de la construcción de la construcción de la

Next was seen as a construction

WEEKLY REVIEW THE NEW YORK TIMES EDITORIALS/LETTERS SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1996

THE JERUSALEM POST

ARTHUR OCHS SULZBERGER JR., Publisher JOSEPH LELYVELD. Executive Edutor

GENE ROBERTS. Managing Editor Assistant Managing Editors OAVID & JONES

GERALD M. BOYD CAROLYN LEE WARREN HOGE JACK ROSENTHAL ALLAN M. SIEGAL

HOWELL RAINES. Editorial Page Editor PHILIP M BOFFEY, Deputy Editorial Page Editor

RUSSELL T LEWIS. President and General Manager JOHN M O'BRIEN. Executive 1.P. Deputy Gen. Mgr. WILLIAM L. POLLAK, Executive 1.P., Circulation PENELOPE MUSE ABERNATHY. Senior V.P. Planning and Human Resources RICHARO H GILMAN, Senior VP, Operations

JANET L. ROBINSON. Senior V.P., Advertising RAYMOND E. DOUGLAS. V.P. Systems and Technolog DONNAC. MIELE. V.P. Human Resources CHARLES E SHELTON, V.P. Distribution DAVID A. THURM. U.P. Production

The Race for Russian President

Say this for the Russian presidential campaign - It will be mercifully short. The race began in earnest last week, and four months from now. in June, Russians will vote. That may be the only good thing about an election season that seems likely to offer voters little enlightenment and an avalanche of shallow slogans and misguided promises that could stunt their country for years to come.

Founded in 1851

ADOLPH S OCHS. Publisher 1896-1935

ARTHUR HAYS SULZBERGER, Publisher 1935-1961

ORVILE ORVFOOS Publisher 1961 1963

ARTHUR OCHS SULZBERGER, Publisher 1963 1992

Three of the top candidates are determined to brake Russia's uneven transition from Communism to democracy and a free-market economy. One of them, Vladimir Zhirinovsky, the ultra-nationalist. is a boisterous demagogue. The other two, Aleksandr Lebed, a retired general who is expected to announce soon, and Gennadi Zyuganov, the Communist Party leader who entered the race last week, deftly cloak authoritarian agendas in populist rhetoric. All three bave strong appeal to millions of Russians battered by the dismantling of a statecontrolled economy that long provided a low but reliable standard of living.

The leading candidate of reform is Grlgory Yavlinsky, an economist who has remained outside the Government of Boris Yeltsin, leaving him free to criticize its many failings. But Mr. Yavlinsky, like Mikhail Gorbacbev, the last Soviet leader, seems more beloved outside his country than within. His arrogance and self-promotion bave won him few friends among Russia's reform politicians. Mr. Gorbachev, heartily disliked by Russians, may yet become a candidate, probably presenting himself as an experienced leader who can restore stability. He is given little chance of winning.

Then there is Mr. Yeltsin himself, the incumbent and the dominant figure in Russian political life. Despite an alling heart, an erratic record, a disastrous war in Chechnya and anemic popularity, he is seeking re-election as the candidate who, in his words, "can bring the country through troubles; anxiety and uncertainty." The problem is that many Russians believe he is responsible for their troubles, anxiety and uncertainty.

Because some of the most visible pieces of economic reform have been mishandled by Mr. Yeltsin, all the candidates, save Mr. Yavlinsky, are running against reform in some fashion. There are many enticing targets, including a corrupt system for the sale of state assets to private investors that has produced windfall fortunes for a handful of wellconnected Russians while denying hard-working business people a chance to compete.

Mr. Zhirinovsky, Mr. Lebed and Mr. Zyuganov have a crude answer for this kind of inequity suspend reform, reclaim state assets and reconstruct a command economy. Mr. Yeltsin's campaign strategy is to ease the economic hardsbips of reform by breaking budget discipline to increase pensions, subsidize failing state industries and throw rubles at miners and other disgruntled workers. At least Mr. Yeltsin says of reform, "f am for correcting the course, not for backtracking on it." The discontent in Russia is aggravated by a general breakdown of order, rising crime and a sense that it has lost its place among the first rank of world powers. It is a hostile environment for anyone preaching sacrifice and change, as the Communist gains in parliamentary elections showed. Mr. Zyuganov seems best positioned to exploit voter resentment, and starts as front-runner.

Unless one candidate gets at least 50 percent of the vote, which looks unlikely, the two top finishers will move on to a second round of voting in late June. At this point, it is far from certain that either Mr. Yeltsin or Mr. Yavlinsky will make the cut.

Why Stalkers Go Free

Men who threaten to kill their wives and girlfriends often succeed - even with police, the courts _and_prosecutors_looking on. That tragic truth was underscored again last week when a Brooklyn woman was murdered by a man who had stalked, beaten and threatened her over the course of a year. The killer, a three-time felon, had been served with an violating the protective order as he left jail on bail.

During the ball hearing that ensued, Judge Duckman callously questioned the severity of Ms. Gomar's beating, suggesting that the bruises she received were insignificant because there were "no broken bones." He weakened the order of protection. He discounted the harassing phone calls, sug-

For Arts Audiences, the Question Is Relevance

To the Editor: Re "As Patrons Age, Future of Arts

is Uncertain" (froot page, Feb. 12): The "highbrow" arts in New York are losing their audiences. The appeal of music, composed by men dead for decades, if not centuries, is lacking in appeal. The American musical, in the form of revivals, is dependent on tourists and foreign visitors. The Metropolitan Opera has had to invest millioos to frame the lyrics, in English, right there for everyooe to look down their noses at.

Could this be not so much a question of audiences but of relevance or the lack thereof?

The arts are like politics, religion, air. They find their place and their way. In Santa Clara County, California, one of the richest and most rapidly emerging areas in the country, 40 perceot of the nonprofit arts organizations have budgets of $50,000 or less. The Metropolitan Opera can spend that in an hour.

In New Orleans, the symphony and ballet are expanding audiences and working alongside schools. The city is beginning $30 millioo of construction for new facilities for performing arts, visual arts and crafts.

It's not a question of audience decline but of relevance. In a time of less mooey, less time and more choice, society will find what is relevant and participate and show support for it. Deficits loom large, as do tough questions from donors and demands from artists for greater participation in organizational choices. More than a rearrangement of deck chairs, what communities and their artists want is a different and more fruitful relationship with one another. Benefits and possibilities abound for those who are responsive JOHN M. MCCANN to this.

Washington, Feb. 14, 1996 The writer o consultont, has monoged three nonprofit theoters.

In N.J. Senate Race, Measurable Difference

To the Editor:

Your Feb. 14 news article on Representative Richard A. Zimmer's throwing his hat into the ring for the Senate seat being vacated by Bill Bradley furthers a myth in New Jersey politics: that there isn't much substance distinguishing Mr. Zimmer, a Republican, from Representative Robert G. Torricelli, the Democratic candidate,

Au contraire. According to the 1995 Government Almanac, the ratings giveo to the two candidates by various interest groups differ markedly. The American Conservative Union rates Mr. Zimmer at 57 percent and Mr. Torricelli at 6 percent. The Na-tional Rifle Association gives Mr. Zimmer a 90 percent rating, the Christian Coalition an 80 percent rating and the New Jersey Eovironmen-tal Federation an "F." Mr. Torricelli has supported the ban on assault weapons and is rated "A" by the New Jersey Eovironmental Federation. There is nothing moderate about Mr. Zimmer's vote against the

Making Music To the Editor:

Recent studies point out that a large proportion of people attending classical music concerts studied a musical instrument in their youth. It is important to keep in mind that the rise of television and electronic pop culture was accompanied by the wholesale abandonment of instrumental music instruction in public education across this country.

If we care about the survival of classical music played before live audiences, we will have to do something much more difficult than tinker with music marketing. We will have to teach future generations what it meaos to participate in making music GARY R. STEPHENS themselves.

Douglas

Rwanda Refugees May Well Fear Return

New York, Feb. 12, 1996 The writer is co-chairman of Opus 118 Music Center, o violin program for East Harlem public schools.

Jazz in a Coffee Shop To the Editor: Your article on the "graying" of the arts in America (front page, Feb:

ugees in the Kibumba, Zaire, camp is factual (news article, Feb. f5), it doesn't say whether refugees' fear of returning to Rwanda is founded or not. The camp's propaganda machine may be excellent, but it is oversimplification to suggest that refugees don't want to return to Rwanda because their leaders tell

Who would prefer the "comfort" of a refugee camp in decaying eastern

Zaire to a home inside Rwanda if the situation were as safe as the Rwandan authorities say It is? More-than 60,000 Hutus have been in jail for more than a year without being charged. Political parties have been suspended by the victorious

Rwandan Patriotic Front. No election is planned for the near future. The Government has ousted most relief

Feb. 15), William J. Bennett, the former Federal drug czar, writes, "If drugs were legalized, use would the rapid popularization of crack co-

Mr. Bennett proceeds to describe

But the crack epidemic occurred does this bave to do with legalization? And why do prohibition's advocates use illogic in making their

DAVID BORDEN

Director, Drug Reform

Washington, Feb. 15, 1996

Coordination Network

To the Editor:

them so.

12) leaves out one aspect of the problem. Many young people who may be interested in the performing arts find themselves financially excluded from being "goers."

f enjoy going to a concert, the opera or the theater. But as a college student working two part-time jobs, I find it difficult to find the time or money to do so.

. A ticket to any of these events costs me nearly a month's entertainment budget. Listening to local jazz at a coffee shop provides me with better entertainment value and a friendlier atmosphere.

I won't be patronizing the highbrow events until f bave more disposable income, something that is becoming rare in young America. If the fine arts wish to survive, they would do well to take an example from museums. Today not even Congress can hold out as an elitist social club. BRAD HILL East Lansing, Mich., Feb. 12, 1996

Fighters vs. Flutes To the Editor:

Re "As Patrons Age, Future of Arts Is Uncertain" (front page, Feb.

Technology numbs minds, kilis spirits, breaks social connections, and displaces culture. It drains souls of the need to give, care and feel. We value fighter pilots, not flute players. Getting more stuff and the next guy is our pinball. Widget-making skills taught in schools guarantee "good" jobs so we are "free" for the mindless, empty and wounding pursuits of buying our next television set, VCR, four-wheeler and car Questioning our values may help us to understand falling theater at-

ROGER NEWELL tendance. La Jolla, Calif., Feb. 12, 1996

hundred civilians in Gisenvi in western Rwanda last November. While your report on Rwandan ref-

Why does anyone want to send refugees back to a place where even officials of the international tribunal in charge of prosecuting genocide suspects get beaten up by the Rwandan Army? PROCAS FASHARO Iowa City, Feb. f5, f996

Buchanan on Air

To the Editor:

A. M. Rosenthal (column, Feb. 16) is outraged that the news media employed Pat Buchanan as a commentator in the years before be decided to run for President and after his candidacy in 1992.

f do not see Mr. Rosenthal criticizing the news media for employing possible future Presideotial contenders like Mario Chomo, who has the order of protection to keep him away from his victim. Days before the killing, he was released from jail despite protests from prosecutors who sensed the murder coming.

WtL MILAN

SOMA GOLDEN BEHR Ehe New York Times

Mayor Rudolph Giuliant and Gov. George Pataki have expressed outrage over Judge Lorin Duckman's handling of the case, with the Governor considering impeachment. Judge Duckman has some explaining to do, particularly for language suggesting insensitivity to the woman's plight. But the real culprit is a state statute that takes stalking and domestic violence lightly, making swift and effective prosecution difficult.

If anyone was a candidate for an extended stay in jail, it was 35-year-old Benito Oliver, a felon with convictions for rape, witness tampering and weapons possession. Mr. Oliver had menaced his former girlfriend, Galina Komar, for a year. He chased her out of her apartment, dragged her away from work and repeatedly put a knife to her throat, threatening to kill her. Three weeks before finally murdering her, he was jailed for beating and threatening her with a butcher knife. While in jail, he violated the protective order, harassing Ms. Gomar by telephone. Notified of the calls, prosecutors arranged to have Mr. Oliver arrested for gesting that Mr. Oliver had a right to be concerned about a dog he had left in Ms. Gomar's custody. Then he released Mr. Oliver on his own recognizance. Three weeks later, Mr. Oliver shot Ms. Gomar dead, then killed himself.

Judge Duckman's conduct in court may well warrant an inquiry by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct. But indifference to the danger faced by women being terrorized by stalkers is written into the New York penal code. Under the code, most acts of stalking are categorized as misdemeanors, punishable by seven or eight weeks in jail, if that. Stalking becomes a felony only when the perpetrator has already been convicted of "menacing in the second degree" - which in turn requires evidence of the severe physical trauma that Judge Duckman alluded to in court. Similarly, the penalties for violating orders of protection are a joke. In order to do serious time, the violator must commit either grievous physical harm or property damage while breaking the order. Given the law, Mr. Oliver was almost certain to get off lightly.

Stalkers go free to terrify and kill, partly because the law permits it. If Mr. Giuliani and Mr. Pataki want to make a difference, they can push to make the penalties for stalking far more severe.

Brady bill or to end safe drinking water standards, fo both cases, Mr. Torricelli voted cootrary to Mr. JOHN W. WOLFF Zimmer. Highland Park, N.J., Feb. 15, 1996

To the Editor:

Cocaine Use Soared San Francisco Gateway Despite Prohibition

soar.'

case?

ing the 1980's.

Contrary to your Feb. 11 news article on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, the bridge is "sexy." The photograph you published (some editioos] is of the eastern cantilever and fails to capture the spirit and experieoce of the gateway to our caine in America's inner cities durcity. The western, suspensioo portion is a thing of beauty, at least as lovely as that other, less-used bridge to the under the most aggressively en-forced "prohibition" in history. What north. The Bay Bridge's seductive parabolic cables and stately towers stand as a marvel of modern engineering design. It seduces the eye as visitors are smously delivered into the heart of our city. IAN MACKINLAY organizations, because they cared same kind of on-air platform as Pat more about the refugees than the re-Buchanan once had. construction of Rwanda.

San Francisco, Feb. 13, 1996 The writer is an architect.

If It was such a journalistic trav-The Tutsi-dominated army repeatesty for the conservative Mr. Buedly bombed the central market and civilian hospitals in Kigali during the chanan to bave an on-air job, why not civil war in 1994 and killed hundreds criticize liberals who are doing the of Hutu refugees in Kibeho in southsame thing? ern Rwanda last April and another Phoenix, Feb. 16, 1996

$10 at Tiffany's

To the Editor:

Maureen Dowd's contention (column, Feb. 15) "that if Holly Golightly came tripping into Barneys with ber $10 bill, she would have been shown the door" ignores that it was only Holly's charm and ingenuity that made her shopping expedition to Trifany's a success.

Whereas Ms. Dowd was presented with a list of 2,197 items for $10 and under at Barneys, Holly Golightly was shown only one item for this amount at Tiffany's, a sterling silver telephone dialer.

Holly appealed to the beart and soul of the dignified salesman and persuaded him to bend the store's policy and engrave her ring for $10, even though it came from a box of Cracker Jacks. MARTIN KAUFMAN New York, Feb. 15, 1996

Editorial Notebook New Hampshire, 1996

MANCHESTER N.H. The Republican Presidential contenders in New Hampshire are showing grave signs of candidate wilt. Turn on the spotlight and they droop like overheated begonias.

'Some of the glearn is off the edge of the flower," nods John Stabile, state Republican chairman. He was talking about Steve Forbes, whose fortunes seem to have gone especially droopy. After a few glorious weeks when voters seemed to find his flat tax and visitor-fromanother-planet mystique entrancing, he is losing his standing as the fresh face to Lamar Alexander.

Fresh faces are a particularly perishable commodity. The world may not have yet noticed that Mr. Alexander once invested a dollar in an option to buy a newspaper, and emerged from the deal with a $620,000 profit. But if the former Goveroor keeps moving up in the polls, the world will get an earful. "He makes Hillary Clinton look like a piker. Next time he plays the piano, it will probably be Alexander's ragtime scam," sniped Mr. Forbes. The least spontaneous of candidates, he gives the impression of having practiced his insults in front of a mirror.

Pat Buchanan was having so much fun in his new incarnation as a Wall Street-bashing populist that the Beltway oative seemed to be developing a Southern accent. But last week he ascended to the status of potential front-runner, and the light moved over to his campaign co-chairman's connections to the militia movement and white supremacists. Mr. Buchanan tried simultaneously to exhibit loyalty ("he's mah friend") and distance himself from the problem. Another aide with white supremacist links quickly popped up in Florida,

Campaigning for President seems to be fun only if you have no chance of winning. "Isn't this great." beamed Representative Bob Dornan before the big debate. If you are tracking at zero in the polls, you can go out there and brag about your committee assignment ("you're looking at the chairman of Military Personnell"), announce that Bill Clinton passed "the most massive tax increase since the Pharaohs" and wake up the next morning none the worse for wear.

Where Fresh Faces Begin to Wrinkle

Meanwhile, Bob Dole, who has not looked as if he was having fun in months, dispatched minions to argue that voters do not dislike him nearly as much as people say. "His negatives in New Hampshire will improve once the primary is over," said an aide after the debate. By then the candidate himself had gone home to prepare for a trip to the north country to admire some sled dogs, who struggled to run away when he tried to pet them.

date will not droop under the pressure of being the reigning NotDole, NotBuchanan. The ex-Governor has been stumping New Hampshire since last summer telling voters that he can do for the nation what he did for his increasingly prosperous home state. (Mr. Alexander cannily refrains from calling it the Tennessee Miracle.) Hard work, free trade, an educated work force and no more Washington handouts are his general prescription.

campaign now has an accountant to answer questions about how his net worth rose from $150,000 to $1 million while he was Governor and Tennessee was pulling itself up by its bootstraps.

south with fresh faces in very short supply - unless the voters turn to the perpetually ignored but deeply available Senator Richard Lugar. Eventually, the Republicans will decide that there is one of these flawed packages they can learn to live with. For proof that there is life after wilt, they just had to look across the snowbanks this weekend and spy Bill Clinton campaign-GAIL COLLINS ing happily.

Mr. Alexander's people, of course, say their candi-

As a sign of Mr. Alexander's new stature, his

After Tuesday's primary, the campaign will move

To the Editor:

Re your Feb. 11 editorial on the environmental settlement between G.E. and the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation: For at least 20 years, most states and the Federal Government have settled environmental disputes through "credit projects" that benefit the environment rather than funnel penalty dollars into a general fund. This is sound policy. Both sides avoid wasting money and time in litigation. By extending its environmental benefits policy to industry, New York has joined the mainstream.

The primary basis for the settlement involving our silicone factory at Waterford was a fire at our landfill that began in 1993 and cost G.E. $4 millioo to extinguish. We believed that the landfill operated according to permit. Moreover, since 1989 G.E. and all its records.

The Times welcomes letters from readers. Letters must include the writer's name, address and telephone number. Those selected may be shortened for space reasons. Fax letters to (312) 556-3622 or send by electronic mail to letters@nytimes.com, or by regular mail to Letters to the Editor, The New York Times, 229 West 43d Street, New York, N.Y. 10036-3959.

The state environmental departyer said that the dispute over wheth-

has paid for a state employee to monitor the site. This person bad unrestricted access to the landfill ment bas said air monitoring showed "no significant risk" to people off site. Three years later, a state law-

MYE The New York Times Company

229 West 43d St., N.Y. 10036-8959

ARTHUR OCES SULZBERGER, Chairman Chief Executive Officer LANCE R. PRIMIS, President Chief Operating Officer DAVID L. GORHAM, Senior Vice Presio Deputy Chief Operating Officer OLANE C BAKER Serier Vice President Chief Financial Officer KATHARINE P DARROW, Senior Vice Pres LAURA J. CORWIN, Secretary-RICHARD G. THOMAS, Treasurer

er wastes sent to the landfill were hazardous is "an honest disagreement" that has never been resolved. As a former head of the Federal Justice Department's environmental enforcement section, 1 know that a case about a fire at a permitted landfill with a state monitor present is not very attractive for environmental enforcers. That the Waterford case had factual and legal issues that G.E. would have contested made it perfect for "credit project" resolution. The issue is not whether what happened at Waterford violated the law. New York thought so and took enforcement action. We disagreed. The issue is whether the settlement was fair.

Given the facts, it is. The state avoided lengthy litigation it was by no means guaranteed to win; it also achieved significant environmental benefits. G.E. will spend $1.5 million on projects that benefit people and the environment, plus $6 million on waste-treatment technology for the landfill. By contrast, only a handful of cases in New York have resulted in a penaity as large as $1 million. STEPHEN D. RAMSEY. Vice Pres, Corporate Environmental Programs, General Electric Co. Fairfield, Conn., Feb. 13, 1996

Jerio 1:00

In Settling G.E. Landfill Case, New York Joined Mainstream

18 J.

1. A. J.

110

1.4.4

16.

12.0

.

.

A Game

1.5752

-1111

 $\{f(x)\} \in \mathcal{F}$

A.

.

1 2 -

· · · .

·

5 g - t dese

a tagata aya

 $= \cdots \in \{a_{i,p}\}$ ana ita se

العربية المعارية

÷.

1.

ar willer

. . .

an en tra

1000

-2.4

To the Editor: In "No to Legalization" (letter, and the second second

THE NEW YORK TIMES OP-ED SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1996

tional Convention

Re: The Next Revolution

hesitate to shoot the stragglers.

guys sloshing through New Hampshire have been tested and tested and tested. We've seen their gimmicks, heard their attack ads and mulled over their - dare we say? - ideas.

decent nominee. Take a mulligan.

You've got to call it quits and get a

It's a sad day for you when Bill

Clinton is the most Reaganesque figure on the field. And while he may denounce big government now, you know a second term of Clinton &

Clinton, as Bob Dornan calls it, will make the New Deal look like small change. Unchecked by the sobering prospect of another election, the Clintons will be truly themselves for the first ome. Is that really how you want to move into the next millennium?

The enormity of the problem has been obscured by a primary system that endows even comic-book figures their electronic villages and Primary

'96 logos, everyone has a stake in

Even C-Span does not capture the true gruesomeness of the sceoe, the feeling of dread that descends when the blue "Lugar for President" mini-van pulls up in front of your hotel,

like to run into the deeply wacky Bob

Dornan in the hall and hear his theory about how Mr. Dole should shore himself up if he gets the nomination

You cannot appreciate what it's pretending the process works.

trolling for attention.

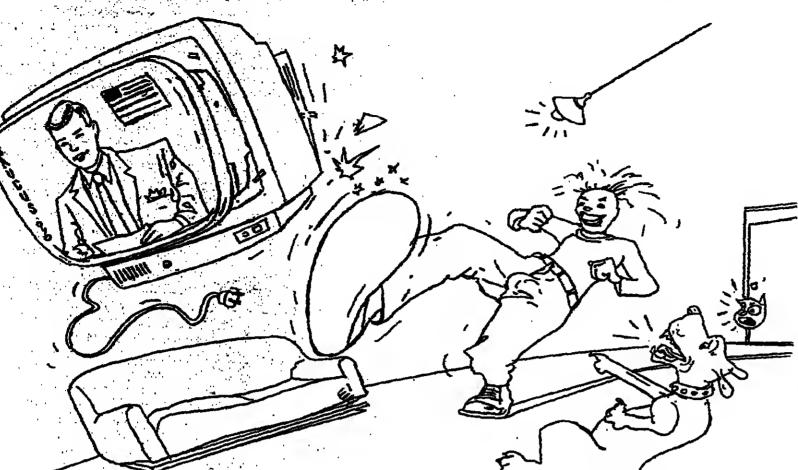

Liberties MAUREEN DOWD

Memo: Be Ruthless

DE 7

The Media Missed the Message

THE JERUSALEM POST

By James Fallows

WASHINGTON "owa is history," the Republican strategist Ed Rollins told Larry King on CNN. It was Feb. 12, the evening of the caucuses, and within hours oearly all of the 3,000 correspondents and TV crew members who had gathered to cover the event bad left the state. Many headed for New Hampshire, whose voters' political values and heritage they will find deeply fascinating until Tuesday night.

But the real problem with campalgn coverage is that lowa is not history in the normal sense. Real history involves fitting events together with some kind of pattern and consequence. This year's political reports bave almost exulted in the idea that what was said, done and predicted yesterday has no effect on today.

ith Iowa in record the books, taught. Money, whether spent by Steve Forbes or Phil Gramm, can't Bob Dole because more plausible al-

Iowa led to his third place "victory." Such insights seem so obvious now that it is bard to believe that anyone could think differently - except that iust before the caucuses many political experts did.

One day before the voting, a frontpage story in The New York Times said that Steve Forbes's blitz of TV ads marked the historic end of grassroots politics. No matter who won Iowa and New Hampshire, the story contended, the "image" of these contests "as the last redoubts of 'retail campaigning' has already suffered badly, perhaps irreparably,"

A week before the caucuses, a political analyst for The Washingtoo Post said that Mr. Forbes had emerged as the main challenger to

The death of 'retail politics' was greatly exaggerated

schulken, olicie i heimado gausd

save a tronbled campaign. Negative ternatives, notably Mr. Alexander, ads can backfire, as Mr. Forbes's did had "failed to catch on." A week before that, Mr. Forbes's surge to popularity had put him on the cover of the oews magazines, while Bob Dole's "funereal" de-

Republican nominee - or Pete Wilson or Newt Gingrich. A year ago, when Mr. Gingrich seemed to have permanently changed American politics, major oewspapers reported movement among dissatisfied Democrats to oust Bill Clinton from the ticket before he dragged the party to defeat in 1996.

The point is not that certain reporters guessed wrong about the Presidential race. Many of these same people, on other occasions, have guessed right, and many of their publications make a serious effort to explore the problems that the next Presideot, whoever he may be, will confront. Still, it is amazing that so many journalists plunge so eothusiastically into an activity at which most are bound to fail; giving us hourly updates on who the next Presideot will be.

As I listen to the latest clash of theories about bow Lamar Alexander will handle Bob Dole, I think of medieval doctors debating whether a fever was caused by the "melancholy humour" or the "phiegmatic," not knowing that the real cause was bacteria: This year's election has brought the inevitable series of surprises - like Patrick J. Buchanan's "stunning" victory in Louisiana and unexpected strength in Iowa. Yet the same analysts who did oot foresee these results weave them seamlessly tomorrow. The difference is that real mooey is at stake. If you guess wrong in the market, people will pay - and they will remember what you said.

he airiness of the political-prediction industry rests on the assumption that none of it really matters and that no one (except the bedraggled candidates) will pay if you are wrong. Sizing up Lamar Alexander against Bob Dole is like having a pre-seasoo argument about whether the Yankees or Dodgers might go all the way this year. It's fun to test your theories, and you can adjust them without penalty as the year goes on.

Such diversion is the ultimate purpose of sport. But politics involves something more: It is the way we solve our public problems. Political coverage should help explain what concepts like "corporate responsibility" and "moral crisis" actually mean, beyood their purpose as slo-gans in a campaign.

the Senate. At nationally televised de-Sure, you're in a bind. No, it won't bates, he acts as if he's making asides be pretty. Mutinies never are. But to colleagues in the cloakroom. His that's why you're Republicans. You speeches are about legislation, some have a strong stomach and you don't of it still bogged down in committee. His only claim to the Presidency is his Let's be frank. What we've got here claim to the Presidency. is a bad batch of bananas. The eight

And consider a Clinton-Buchanan contest. Backward reels the mind. How could country club Republicans cope with it, the guys with the lime green pants, gin martinis and prochoice wives named Bunny? Pat Buchanan, saying nice things about the guys who trim their hedges and going after big business. It just woo't do.

Now we come to Lamar?! The one with the unbearably annoying punctu-ation and red plaid shirts?! Does the country really need another slick/aw shucks former Governor from a with a certain gravitas. Once the small Southern state with a smart press behemoth has descended on Iowa and New Hampshire, once Dan wife who has a history of real estate and Peter and Tom sweep to with sweetheart deals?!

After all, you're Republicans.

So here's the plan. Don't worry about who wins Tuesday. It's the lesser of three losers.

Arrange an awards banquet here in Manchester and invite all the candidates. Hand out some plaques. Give some testimonials. Praise Bob Dole for his patriotism. Give credit to Morry Taylor for bringing the vexing issue of selling tires to Mexico the prominence it deserves. Thank Steve Forbes for making it clear that rabidly negative ads are most potent if you pull them off a week before the election. Pat Dick Lugar on the back for conducting a civil, if unbelievably tedious and ineffectual, campaign.

Round up some popular governors like Steve Merrill, Christine Whitman and George W. Bush, Try Hollywood again - Arnold Schwarzenegger, Clint Eastwood, Kevin Costner. Then go to Virginia and kidnap Colin Powell. He's probably sick of tinkering with Volvos by now.

Once in San Diego, start brokering. Wait for the secood ballot or go for a loophole. That's the beauty of being Republicans. You know how to make the rules - and break them. - 63

1es

ed

:ue

ıly. rol

¢₩ ase

re-

• of cal

۱ť s

:e

:n

by naming his team early. "That way It would be our team against their team - Hazel O'Leary, Bruce Babbitt and Ron Brown," he told me, " Colin Powell should be Secretary of State. It would be so charming, an African-American Secretary-of-State visiting Africa, And also Europe, Asia and anywhere else be wants to go." Is this what the Republican Party stands for? Bob Dornan? Alan Keyes? Morry Taylor? In the 80's, your party seemed invincible. In '94, you swept the elec-

Thomas L. Friedman is on vacation.

New Encyclopedia of Zionism and Israel badly, propelling him toward a fourth-place finish. Old-style grassroots organization is still crucial in a caucus state, which is why Lamar Alexander's endless treks through

James Fallows, Washington editor of The Atlantic Monthly, is the author of "Breaking the News' How the Media Undermine American Democracy."

meanor when replying to Presideot Clintoo's State of the Union Message was widely said to be the beginning of the end for his campaign. smart enough not to offer careless

A few months before that, Colin Powell bad been the presumptive into their scenarios for Tuesday's vote, when they are sure to be surprised again. Stock market analysts are also great at constructing after the fact explanations as soon as daily trading closes: "Profit-taking drove the market down today." Yet most are predictions about what will happen uniquely, irreducibly brilliant.

But as a contest, chess does yield to brute force. All doubt op that score

In many respects, the history of Zionism is co-extensive with the history of the Jewish people in the last hundred years. The intense debate between proponents and opponents of Zionism has abated only with the renewal of Jewish statehood in 1948, when world Jewry rallied in support of the newly-born state.

Produced by the team led by Dr. Geoffrey Wigoder as Editor-in Chief, with articles contributed by professors, diplomats, journalists, politicians - all experts in their respective fields, this 1521 pp. two-volume encyclopedia presents a comprehensive reference source for anyone seeking authentic knowledge of the whole subject of Zionist history and the State of Israel.

Herzi Press Publication.

JP Price: NIS 479.00 incl. VAT and door-to-door delivery (where available)

A Game We Couldn't Lose

By Richard Powers

URBANA, IIL uman worth hung m the balance again weekend. this Among the array of graver and more material contests now facing civilization, struggles from Sarajevo to New Hampshire, the one decided yesterday in Philadelphia stands out in its symbolic weight. In the chess match between Gary Kasparov, the world's best living player, and I.B.M.'s Deep Blue, an otherwise undistinguished supercomputer, humanity's collective selfesteem was once more on the line.

The latest blow to our chauvinism began in the first round of the sizgame match when Deep Blue bested our best after only 36 moves. Although Mr. Kasparov rallied to avoid bumiliation in the series, the early result shocked not only the chess world; it shattered the pride of those of us who would never dream of pitting our own worth against a $15 home computer program. Suddenly, we once again needed to explain ourselves to ourselves.

Mr. Kasparov's explanation was swift and emphatic: "We are now seeing for the first time what happens when quantity becomes quality." in effect, we have reached the age when brute force can outperform creativity. This statement, of course, begs the question of what creativity is How do we, in fact, do things in that massively parallel processor of ours? We have a habit of perpendally redefining "creativity" as that which humans do and "brute force" as the stuff of machines. In each age, we have redrawn the borders of the inviolably human.

Mr. Kasparov's explanatory gambit has a familiar and time-honored ring to it. We have a long history of losing to the brute force of machines. The corpses of Paul Bunyans and John Henrys litter our folklore, a folklore now all but lost in the Information Age's sea of stories. At each twist of industrial history, the grim . reaper, as patented by McCormick, cuts another swath from our sense of distinction.

Richard Powers is the author, most recently, of the novel "Galatea 2.2."

From Copernicus pushing us from the center of the universe to Darwin tying us to the lowliest of life forms. man has routed himself from his place of relative importance in the COSTILOS. Yet we seem to overlook that each self-demotion bas come from our increased ability to understand our world. We ought to take pride in our record of technological invention that enables us to deflate our selfimage while expanding our world to include much that previously lay outside our field of view.

> Kasparov's struggles were a tribute to mankind's 'creativity.'

My diabolical 7-year-old friend Mack, as yet little troubled by ontology, has recently discovered the deep pleasures of chess, just as I did when I was a few years older than he is now. Mack demands that I set up problems for him on the board. But his true triumph lies in shouting, "I got it, I got it," even before I can lay out all the pieces - a challenge much more interesting than the puzzle itself. Such preemptive intelligence testifies that in the most important ways, the game of chess will always be a uniquely human domain, and seven-year-olds will always be disappeared in Philadelphia. Any boldout pawn that Deep Blue failed to capture this weekend, some related parallel-processing simulatioo will mop up a year from today. Our cootinued humiliation at the hands of our own forks and pins is, as ever, just a matter of time and rigor. But why should our self-esteem be more threatened by losing a game of mental projection than it is flattered by building a device capable of outprojecting us? That we can assemble an artifact capable of beating us at our own game is a stunning triumph for human ingenuity. The feat is almost as clever as inveoting the game in the first place.

Perhaps we are old enough oow, far enough along in our course of study, to stop disowning the artifacts that embody the breadth of our invention. The power and purposes of our machines after all, lle in oo one's bands but our own.

Half a century of artificial intelligence has taught us a great deal about thought and thought's problems, about what is hard and what is easy. Chess, for all its supple beauty and cerebral ballet, is a fairly low-level puzzle compared to recognizing a face or mulling on the pains of coming of age or forging peace in Bosnia. Chess is easy. Small talk is hard.

hought's hardest problems will continue to dominate human survival for as long as we are interested in playing that game. Highest and hardest of all is the challenge of accurate self-description. When a computer can produce a more intriguing rationalization than Mr. Kasparov's, a more moving lament in the face of checks to its own bruised ego, then bumans will indeed have something to worry about.

Uotil then, it's the same old game: Strive to control the centerboard, and develop your best pieces.

—

--

-

IÉ

WEEKLY REVIEW

THE NEW YORK TIMES, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1996 FILM

THE JERUSALEM POST

Higher Style From Hong Kong's Film Masters

By NEIL STRAUSS

is clear from the first sceoe in John Woo's new film, "Broken Arrow," an action epic about an Air Force commander gone AWOL with two nuclear weapons, which character will be the villain ano which the hero. Sparring with his fellow pilot Christian Slater in a boxing ring, John Travolta says he is a fan of boxing. "I always liked Bruce Lee movies," Mr. Slater retorts.

Bruce Lee, of course, is the marual-arts actor who first introduced American audiences to Hong Kong pop cinema. Mr. Woo is a modernday equivalent, bringing the latest in Hong Kong flash to an American audience. Christian Slater, in confessing his preference for the Eastern ethos of action, sets himself up to be the hero in "Broken Arrow."

In the 23 years that have elapsed since Mr. Lee's death, Hong Kong film making has progressed far beyond badly dubbed chop-socky and into slick production, lavisb cinematography, actual acting and action scenes choreographed as meticulously as a ballet. Thanks in part to the influence of the genre on such Hollywood movies as "Reservoir Dogs," "Desperado" and "Die Hard With a Vengeance," the cult of Hong Kong film watchers in America has grown into a full-fledged audience.

In fact, it has grown so that in addition to the release of "Broken Arrow," Mr. Woo's second Hollywood film, two Hong Kong productions will open in American theaters in the next few weeks. "Rumble in the Bronx," a partly dubbed action comedy starring Jackie Chan, opens on Friday. And "Chungking Express," a subtitled art film directed by Wong Kar-wai, opens on March 8. In addition, theaters in many cities have scheduled festivals of Hong Kong films this month and next. They include the Plaza Twin Cinema at Grand Army Plaza in Brooklyn, which began its series on Thursday with Mr. Woo's excellent 1990 film "Builet in the Head," a Hong Kong "Deer Hunter."

To connoisseurs of Hong Kong films, Mr. Woo and Mr. Chan are the genre's titans. They also represent two very different visual and narrative styles. Mr. Woo makes ultrastylized, over-the-top action films with big body counts, cool-as-ice heroes and long, slow-motion shots lingering on the apparatus of the gun. His calling card is the two-fisted gun battle, and more than once in the special-effects-laden "Broken Arrow," Mr. Slater can be spotted rolling and diving with pistols blazing in both hands

Mr. Chan is an original for an entirely different reason: he is a lovable action hero who describes himself as a cross between Sylvester Stallone, Buster Keaton and Donald Duck. Usually directing and choreographing his films as well as starring in them, he never uses a stunt double or special effects for his superhuman leaps and falls. Where Mr. Woo likes to create bleak, noir psychological thrillers, Mr. Chan prefers more lighthearted family entertainment with the action unwinding is graceful, rhythmic scenes that are as funny as they are fast

His signature is the outtakes he includes at the end of his films, showing exactly which failed stunt put him in the hospital. Watch carefully as he teaps from a bridge onto a moving Hovercraft in "Rumble in the Bronx," and you'll see his foot twist into an unnatural position; in the outtakes at the end, it is revealed that he actually broke his ankle in the scene. Mr. Chan is a man willing to die for his art, as long as the cameras are rolling. Like most Hong Kong cinema, Mr. Woo's and Mr. Chan's films are built around face-offs between caricatures of good and evil. The main difference between "Brokeo Arrow" and "Rumble in the Bronx" is that in "Broken Arrow" the power of the characters lies in the technology of the weapons they hold, while in "Rumble in the Bronx" physical ability is the key to victory. This is why in Mr. Woo's films the characters often shoot one another through glass partitions, while in Mr. Chan's films, characters fall through glass partitions.

Throughout "Broken Arrow," Mr. Woo freezes the action at the exact moment when a gun is pointed at someone's head, loading the scene with all the existential drama of the South Vietnamese police chief moments from executing the Vietcong suspect in 1968. More significant, he treats the two nuclear weapons that Mr. Travolta steals as if they were two large and very powerful bullets. "I know you love having the power of God at your fingertips," Mr. Slater says to Mr. Travolta as they sit in the cockpit of the bomber before the theft. Later, one of the bombs is actually launched at a character as if it were a hely builet.

John Travolta, in John Woo's bullet ballet "Broken Arrow,"

In "Rumble in the Bronx." in which Mr. Chan battles hoodlums terrorizing his uncle's supermarket as well as a gang of international jewelry thieves, the gun is empty as a symbol of power, Where Mr. Woo makes his characters archetypes of cool by filming them walking and smoking in slow motion, Mr. Chan demonstrates his heroics without any editing effects.

There are a few shots fired in "Rumble in the Bronx," but in the foot or bulletproof vest. When he crashes the hoodlum's hideout, Mr. Chan must earn respect in a fist fight, a fast-paced brawl in which he uses props ranging from refrigerators to pinball machines to maneuver his way to victory. A far cry from Mr. Woo's hyper-realism, "Rumble in the Bronx" has its baddies yelling "rock-and-roll" before beginning their mayhem.

This was not a first attempt to break into the American market for either Mr. Woo or Mr. Chan.

Mr. Chan came to the United States in 1980. But Hollywood would not let him be himself: after starring in the flop "The Protector" with Danny Aiello and appearing as a Japanese race-car driver competing with Burt Reynolds in "The Cannonball Run," Mr. Chan returned to Hong Kong.

This time around, with "Rumble in the Bronx," Mr. Chan, 41, has decided not to tamper much with his Hong Kong style. There are, howev-

20 Chest

name

apparel forget short follower

author

41 Belly

53 Brash

69 Nubs

73 Outdo

study movie

87 Pines

94 Schlep

97 Duplicity

down

er, a few changes. Such alternativerock bands as Ministry and Ash have been substituted for the syrupy Canto-pop soundtrack, a few of the slower scenes hav been cut, and Mr. Chan has rerecorded much of his dialogue in English. (The movie, which was actually filmed in Vancouver, was shown in its full version in Chinatown theaters in the United States more than a year ago.)

It should be noted that, although "Rumble in the Bronx" was directed by Stanley Tong, Mr. Chan's fingerprints are all over the movie. For those who want to see Mr. Chan's roots, a 1978 kung fu film he stars in called "Snake in Eagle's Shadow" will be shown at the Plaza Twin Theater in Brooklyn on Thursday to effect the off and later in the year Miramax will release other Jackie Chan films. (New Line, expecting strong audience response, is sending "Romble in the Bronx" into more than 1,500 theaters.)

-Orthod

Mr. Woo's American break came when he worked with Jean-Claude Van Damme on "Hard Target," released in 1993. Like Mr. Chan, Mr. Woo discovered that his producers reined him in, reducing the action he envisioned from breathtaking to yawn making. "Broken Arrow" is an improvement, and did more than $15 million last weekend at the box office, but it does not redefine the genre like some of Mr. Woo'a previwhich star Chow Yun-Fat, another Hong Kong star on his way to Holly-WOOO

There is a third stream of Hong Kong cinema, the art film, and the director Wong Kar-wai is one of its. best-known proponents. In his films, there is still action, but the scenes are filmed in bright, blurred stoptime motion. This technique helps outline the larger themes of ambiguity and chance in his movies.

'Chungking Express," the first film distributed by Rolling Thunder, Quentin Tarantino's new company within Miramax, consists of two minimally intertwined stories, each about a brokenhearted police officer who becomes involved in a nebulous relationship. (It was shown at the New York Film Festival in 1994.) Where every back flip and gunshot seems extremely calculated in Mr. Chan's and Mr. Woo's films, the story in "Chungking Express" develops through rootless, wandering characters and random events, most of it beautifully filmed with a handheld camera.

÷.,.

· . .

יייין אלן דרובינגעניי

Antone in a

Where the ser

BICYCLOPEDIA OF

Kong film makers and celluloid heroes to start making their presence known in America. Not only will the British hand Hong Kong back to China in 1997, possibly curtailing the freedom of these directors, but in recent years the Asian audience for Hong Kong films has been decreasing and the movies themselves have been cranked out at a faster rate than ever, losing much of their flair.

Perhaps in the coming years, Mr. Woo, Mr. Chan and Mr. Wong will find a Hollywood that will accommodate not just their hipster cachet but also the full extent of their ideas.

Once More Into the Fray

With John Cassavetes

By PETER M. NICHOLS

OME video has always had talent for revivals. Gather the films of a star or a renowned director, clear the rights, track down pieces of negative (inevitably scattered from Hollywood to Prague, or so it seems), box the special editions, alert the cognoscenti to the second coming, or whatever coming this particular revival happens to be, and stand by for a warm response from fans and a public that increasingly likes to collect tapes.

Nevertheless, one wonders what is in store for the revival of two works by John Cassavetes, the actor and fiercely independent director of a dozen films of total originality and sometimes annoying excess that challenged audiences for 25 years staring in the early 1960's.

On March 26 Fox Lorber and Orion will release "Shadows" (1961), Cassavetes's first film, and "Faces" (1968), his fourth and most commercially successful work. Both movies, which dealers list among those most requested by videophiles, will be on cassette for the first time.

Critics hold strongly varying opinions of Cassavetes, who died in 1989 at the age of 59. For the most part, his movies are rambling, often harrowing domestic dramas that constantly and uncomfortably probe the emotions and seemingly run on forever. Behind the camera, Cassavetes was a student of the marital blowup, the mental breakdown, the spiritual collapse. "He did not make films that were easily categorized. easily analyzed or even, for most audiences, easily liked," Janet Maslin wrote in The New York Times. "And he dld not give an inch in making them."

Regardless of their difficulty, movies by the man whom many regard as the father of American independent film making would seem to be oatural collector's items. But judging by the results of an earlier Cassavetes revival, that may not be the case.

In 1992, Disney released "A Woman Under the Influence" (1974), about a housewife and mother (Gena Rowlands) who is gradually and agonizingly destroyed by mental illness, and two other Cassavetes films from the 70's, "The Killing of a Chinese Bookie" and "Opening Night." The studio had also planned to issue "Shadows" and "Faces" but didn't

John Cassavetes

Disney, a purveyor of megahits. may seem a strange avenue for Cassavetes movies, which were shot in black and white, cut straight to the confrontational and played to relatively small audiences tolerant of their technical imperfections, disjointed scenarios, supremely unhappy endings and running times that often approached three hours.

But Cassavetes fans are where you find them. One enthusiast was Bill Mechanic, currently the president of 20th Century Fox but formerly the president of Walt Disney Home Video. "He loved John's filma," said Ms. Rowlands, the director's widow, who starred in most of his movies.

Cassavetes was Mr. Mechanic's project. "We worked hard to catapult those films back into the consciousness of the film community," he said recently. "We did a big launch on 'A Woman Under the Influence,' maybe his most accessible film. We were well received in video Stores."

Disney won't divulge sales figures. but dealers say that while "A Woman" sold well, the other two films did not and the studio lost money. Disney still distributes its Cassavetes titles, but before "Shadowa" and "Faces" could be issued, the studio cut short its revival and sold the rights to both films back to their original owners, Ms. Rowlands and Castle Hill Productions

By then, Mr. Mechanic had left Disney. "'Faces' and 'Shadows' are among Cassavetes' most important films, but they aren't the most accessible," he said, "For me this was a labor of love. Without somebody to love them, maybe it was time to sell them back."

Cassavetes films are still shown theatrically in Europe, where they won many awards at festivals when they were first released, but they are virtually never shown in the United States. Before the Disney revival. only three of them had been on videocassette: "Gloria," in which Ms. Rowlands earned an Oscar comination as a mob woman who cares for a child after his family is killed in a gangland execution, "Love Streams," about a twisted brother-sister relationship, and "Big Trouble," a Cassavetes-style comedy, about an insurance fraud. Last year Fox Lorber bought

"Shadows" and "Faces" and made plans for a second revival. Ms. Rowlands is eager to try again.

"After John died, I thought I'd really feel terrible if young people didn't get a chance to see his work," she said. "University kids get to see it because there are so many film schools, but John didn't make films for an elitist group. He wanted to reach everybody. We don't want to make a fortune, just have them out there for people to see."

Orioo will distribute "Shadows" and "Faces" for Fox Lorber. And since MGM, Columbia and Universal also own Cassavetes titles, Herb Dorfman, Orion's president, envisioos a joint venture in the future. "I can see putting together a Cassavetes collection where each of the studios, as a contribution to the art, would work in concert to make a boxed set available," he said.

Others don't see adequate demand. "His movies are just for smart people," said one video executive who refused to be identified. "There's a very limited audience. They have no more drawing power than 'Wild Strawberries' or 'Virgin Spring.' Cassavetes is as out as Bergman."

Commerce aside, being as "out" as Ingmar Bergman may not be the worst fate to befall a director. One striking characteristic of Cassavetes' films is that they are com-pletely without artifice. "Shadows," for example, is the story of a struggling black musician and his two siblinga, who suffer identity crises when they pass for white. Developed during an actors workshop and shot without a script, the film illustrates how Cassavetes entrusted actors not just to portray characters but to become them, often to the extent of reacting to ope another spontaneously and improvising dlalogue.

67 March lime

Jevico 150

90 More than fast 91 Special team member, in football 92 Conquerees of 1533 93 YM competitor 94 Actress Shire 95 Due (to) 96 French relation 98 ---- my Maypo!" 99 High school math 101 Song of David -105 First name in jazz 106 Impecuniosity ... 107 Putson 109 Certain soldier III Trajan's way IOLID ALES

93

STEDE DECOE FALSTAGE UETAC FIADR FALSTAGE TE DOLES ECATET FAL STED ALERTFALL MAND GADDENDULG GU GADDED OKNES G DOLEG UNZEN DEN

The Jerusalem Post Monday, February 19, 1996

FEATURES

Councils may not exclude non-Orthodox candidates

In the Supreme Court, sitting as a High Court of Justice, before justices Elivahu Mazza, Tova Strassberg-Cohen and Zevi Tal, in the matter of Prof. Yehudit Naot and others, petitioners, versus the Haifa Religious Council and others, respondents (H.C. 4733, 6028, 7105/94).

è

_ • • •

FTER the local council elections io 1993, the min-A elections to 1995, un traising affairs was required, under section 6(b) of the Jewish Religious Services Law (Consolidated Version) of 1971, to reconsolute existing religious councils. He accordingly asked all local councils to propose their candidates to fill the quota of 45% of the religious councils, as demanded by secoon 3(a)(2) of the Law.

As laid down in Supreme Court precedents, the councils' selection of candidates was confined to two features. Firstly, each political faction was to propose its candidates in accordance, as far as possible, with its representation in the council. The council was then to consider the candidates' suitability for religious council membership. The Jerusalem and Haifa city cil voted for members of religious councils, and all candidates associated with the Reform and Conservative movements were rejected. Three petitions were then lodged with the Supreme Court, sitting as a High Court of Justice, to set the elections aside on the ground of unjust discrimination, and the court decided to hear the peopons together.

Justice Mazza analyzed the situation and held that the Reform and Conservative candidates proposed in Haifa should be declared elected, and the elections in Kiryat Tivon and Jerusalem be set aside and new elections held within 60 days of the publication of the court's judgment.

LAW REPORT ASHER FELIX LANDAU

JUSTICE Strassberg-Cohen con-curred with Justice Mazza's conclusions, and as to the necessity of a discussion in cases such as the present before a vote. However, she said, the court should avoid laying down general directives in this regard. It was true every decision of a public administrative authority was to be based on tested, relevant grounds. But, as pointed out in Berger (H.C.297/82; The Jerusalem Post, July 24, 1983), the degree of discussion and probing depended on each situation. Not every member of a public authority was required to express his opinion on every issue, but the discussion was to be conducted in good faith and without attempts to disrupt the proper democratic process.

She also warned against exces-25,000. sive reliance on the principle that decisions of public administrative bodies were presumed to be lawful. Citing precedents, she accepted the rule that where there was real doubt as to a decision's legality, it was for those supporting its legality to prove their case.

In her view, the facts in each case before the court created real decisions made. Not only had the three councils not dispelled that doubt, but their explanations made the illegality even more convincing. JUSTICE TAL also agreed with Justice Mazza. He added that the Jerusalem decisioo was probably based on coalition considerations, and he wondered whether, since the city council was a political body, such a basis was perhaps permissible.

He was of the opinion that where unlawful reasons for disqualifying a candidate had been stated, and he was rejected on coalition considerations, it was for those who supported the rejection to voice their grounds for so doing. If they remained silent, they were to be regarded as having accepted the unlawful reasons stated

For the above reasons, the petitions were allowed, and an order issued as held by Justice Mazza. The Haifa Municipality was ordered to pay the Meretz faction costs in the sum of NIS 15,000; the Tivon Local Council was ordered to pay the Meretz and Tal factions NIS 7,500 each; and the Jerusalem Municipality was ordered to pay Meretz NIS

Rabbi Uri Regev appeared for the petitioners, Renato Yarak for the Haifa Municipality, Avraham Segal for the Tivon Local Council, Ya'acov Kaminetzky for the Jerusalem Municipality, and Yehuda Shefer, senior assistant state attorney, for the religious affairs minister. The judgment was given on

An American author takes a fresh look at antisemitism in the Elizabethan era. Peter Greenbaum reports or centuries, he has statked across the world's theater stages and demanded from each generation his pound of flesh. Of all Shakespeare's creations, the character of Shylock in The Merchant Of Venice remains the most disturbing and controversial. In Shakespeare and the Jows

(Columbia University Press), author James Shapiro examines the Elizabethan era in which the character of the Jewish moneylender was created. His cultural history of the Jews in England's early modern period offers a fresh look at an old problem: What are the origins of antisemitism and wby does it persist? The questions that are at the Merchant of Venice are not simply about Jews as usurers or Jews as religiously different," says Shapiro. "They are about Jews as different in a lot of complex ways. The questions that interested Shakespeare then are still around today. One of the things | try to do is understand why people thought these things about Jews and what the implications are."

Shapiro, who teaches Shakespeare, literature and humanioes at Columbia University in New York, spent six years writing Shakespeore and the Jews. His research took him to archives in Israel, Oxford, Cambridge, the Briosh Museum in London, the Huntington Library in California and the Jewish Theological Seminary near his home in Brooklyn. In the course of his research, learned Sbapiro how Shakespeare's contemporaries perceived Jews, even though it is unlikely they had ever met one. Many thought Jews had an unpleasant smell and committed ritual murder. Some even believed that Jews were black and that Jewisb men menstruated.

"It shows you how inventive these notions of difference are," says Shapiro. "One of the things I'm trying to come to terms with is how intelligent people can believe myths about others in order to confirm their own sense of identity."

In 1290. King Edward I expelled all Jews from England. Historic tradition has maintained that no Jews lived there during Shakespeare's lifetime. But Shapiro argues that by the 16th century, there were at least a couple of hundred Jews living in England.

"Jews don't figure largely in Shakespeare's canon, but they do in other Elizabethan works," says Shapiro. "It was a culture obsessed with Jewish questions. and in some ways not much different from our own. When I went into the archives 1 was interested in discovering whether there were Jews in Shakespeare's England and what kind of Jews they were. Before I could get really far with that question, I had to ask, 'Who or what was a Jew?' I began to see ways in which Shakespeare and his contemporaries saw these pressing questions, because they had to do not only with what Jews were, but what they themselves were,

Shakespeare and the Jews paints a potrait of early modern England as a country at odds with its own racial makeup. In the balf century or so after the Reformation, English masqueraded as Jews, Jews masqueraded as Christians and individuals of both faiths moved back and forth between religious groups. According to Shapiro, some Protestant sects identified very closely with the Old Testament as truth and recognized Sabhath worship and other Jewish practices. Shakespeare and the Jews is filled with curious tales. like the story of Traske, a radical Puritan who believed he was Jewish. Traske and his followers kept kosher, obeyed Jewish law and even practiced circumcision. Eventually, they were viewed by the state as a threat. Traske was arrested, imprisoned and had the letter J branded on his forehead. Soon after, he recanted.

"It was a very strange period in English religious history. observes Shapiro. "Our notions of race were emerging and developing for the first time, and Jews were right at the center of those definitions.

"Shakespeare's England teaches us to think twice about confusing myths and history. We live in a world in which there is tremendous nationalist and ethnic strife wherever we look, and it's not going to go away. What his play and culture's treatment of Jews tell us is that we like to turn myths into history." By the 18th century, the debate about whether Jews could ever fit in with the English establishment had intensified. The Merchant Of Venice, which seemed to embody the worst prejudices, had become a focal point.

"One of the things I discovered was a "Jew Bill" of 1753, which caused a very bitter debate that preoccupied all of England during an election year." says Shapiro. "It was about whether foreign-born Jews could be naturalized. But it was really about whether Jews could be English as well. These questions once again put a lot of pressure on what it meant to be English. At the center of this controversy was The Merchant of Venice, which even then became a way of positioning issues about Jewishness and Englishness."

Currently, Shapiro is at work on a literary history that traces issues of Englishness and Jewishness in literature from Chaucer through the present day. It will be his third book

"I live in the 16th century most of the time," confesses Shapiro. It's easier for me to think like an Elizabethan. I'm trying to understand how I can be both a Shakespearean and a Jew at the same time, which is not very easy.

What about Shakespeare himself? Was he anosemitic?

"They say that Sbakespeare's words are not for an age but for all time," says Shapiro, "I think it's impossible to know what bis intentions were. There will be interpretations of the work that see it in a positive light and in a negative light.

"We know he cared about understanding the nature of people's differences, and that's why we still read him. As long as we're a culture that's driven by questions of racial, national and religious differences. they [his words] will be for all times. When his words no longer excite and disturb us, it will be time to find a new author."

۱e

y. ol

Ψ,

se e-of a t's

he ch

ve

ъ."

ed

ds

18-

_

doubt as to the legality of the January 1, 1996. Industrial giants aim for zero pollution getting closer to an ambitious goal: creating the world's first zero-waste and zero-emission industrial facility.

Since launching the project in the late 1980s, the company has introduced some notable anti-pollucion measures. By elimioaring some chemicals and reduc-ing the use of others. DuPont officials say, they have cut the output of cancer-causing air pollntants from the company's facilities by almost 70 percent, from 8.4 million pounds in 1987 to 2.6 millioo pounds in 1994. They are seeking a further 20 percent reduction by the year 2000.

Using leftover milk jugs and other disposable plastic containers, the team iovented Tyvek, a durable polyethylene material. Also used to make the hard-to-tear envelopes sold by the US Postal Service, the compound has helped slasp the amount of plastic. DuPoint discards by 25 percent:

DuPont sciencists have inveoted new processes for recycling the company's products. The latest, called the Petretec regeneration technology, reduces polyester to its components by adding methanol. In a process introduced several years ago, ammonia is used to break down nylon carpeting to chemicals

Cientists and engineers at DuPont Co., the from its battery-making process a few years ago. Delaware-based chemical manufacturer, are making it possible to recycle batteries.

Union Carbide Corp. replaced solvents with carbon dioxide in spray paint, reducing emissions of volatile organic compounds by more than 70%.

At DuPont, researchers have used factories as laboratories for testing new manufacturing concepts. At a Waynesboro, Virginia, Spandex factory, they cut waste by increasing the yield of the synthetic fabric produced from raw materials by 15% over the past five years. Researchers also cut emissions of the toxic gas carbonyl sulfide by an average of 70% at five facilities by altering the process for manufacturing a white pigment used in paint, David Roe, an attorney with the Environmental Defense Fund, praised DuPont for leading the campaign to cut waste and emissions.

This seems to be a serious effort at addressing a major environmental problem," he said. "We are anxious to see how successful it turns out to be." DuPont executives acknowledge that the goal of zero waste and zero emissions still eludes them. "But having the goal forces us to be more and more creative in our research efforts, said Paul Tebo, the com pany's vice that can be recycled. DuPont is not the only industrial giant trying to eliminate waste. Polaroid Corp. removed mercury president for health, safety and the environment. The more we focus on it, the more we find that eliminating waste really means finding novel uses for things we used to throw away."

(Washington Post)

Living fossils are now endangered species

ea horses are a very ancient species, one of the true living fossils of the world. They are found in warm, quiet waters along the shores of all the continents and come io varying sizes.

Here they are a strictly protected species, but in some other countries they are extremely popular as a salt-water aquarium fish. This trade in itself accounts for some losses of sea horses, but what really decimates these unique little members of the pipe-fish family is their valuable use in the pracoce of tradicional medicine in the Far East.

The trade is so brisk that an estimated 20 million sea horses are used annually, with 16 million of these consumed as traditional. remedies or n health-food additive . in China, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Singapore alone.

The demand for dried sea horses has increased tenfold in the past decade, according to a report by Oxford University senior researcher Amanda Vincent, wbo reports to Traffic - the group that monitors endangered species. In the seas around Bali and sea borses surviving in nature bave been halved in the past five years alone.

Java, Vincent says the number of Understanding the 20th Century -

EARTHLY CONCERNS D'VORA BEN SHAUL

Sea horses are fished in the coastal regions of the Middle East to India, the Far East, Australia and South America, and there are few areas where they enjoy the protection of the law.

The demand is high and the rewards are great. In Hong Kong. bleached, dried sea borses sell for $1,200 per kilogram, approximately seven times the price of silver.

Sea horses are easy to catch, since they are slow-moving and remain for long periods attached by their prehensile tails to a stem of water vegetation.

In addition, it is the male sea horse that bears the young, and they are somewhat larger than the females.

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF REVOLUTIONS AND REVOLUTIONARIES

From Anarchism to Zhou Enlai - Martin van Creveld, Editor-in-Chief

The female lays her eggs into an abdominal pouch on the male. The pouch contains sperm which fertilizes the eggs, and the male carries the young sea horses, a small brood of them, for up to six weeks. During this period, his abdominal pouch becomes very large, As he is a very awkward swimmer, he is the easiest sea borse to catch.

But Vincent does not think much good would be accomplished by banning this trade, because she says it will simply go underground, become more lucrative and be almost impossible to monitor.

Instead, she says the future of the sea horses lies in the creation of reserves in the areas where they are caught so they will naturally repopulate the surrounding areas.

This, she says, is a matter of educating people that if they do not have reserves, there may soon be no sea borses at all. She also advocates setting up a few large captive breeding sites so that captive bred sea horses can be released back into the oceans in their familiar hannts. The sea horse is just one of the many creatures whose lives seem to be forfeited in the practice of traditional medicine around the world. The list also includes rhinoceros, sea turtles, geckos and a host of others.

Amos Mar-Haim, Chainman of the Jerusalem Development Authority • Ya'acov Efrati, Dir.-Gen. of the Jerusalem Municipality Amnon Lorch, Chairman of the East Jerusalem Development Co. Novi Cartes, architect · Advocate Yehuda Rave

Guest Speaker: Benny Gaon, Managing Director of Koor Industries Ltd.

Moderator: Gad Lior, Head of the Jerusalem Bureau. Yediot Aharonot

Honorary Executive Committee (in alphabetical order):

Shaika Altuvia, Ministar Uzi Baram, Yoram Balizovsky, Eliahu Ben-Elissar MK, Naomi Blumenthal MK, Doron Cohen, Ran Cohen MK, Mosha Dovrat, Ya'acov Efrati, Avi Golan, Shlomo Halevi, Tzahi Hanegbi MK, Yonatan Harpaz, Dalia Itzik MK, Yehuda Levy, Gad Lior, Amos Mar-Haim, Yehoshua Matza MK, Shmuel Meir, Eli Mizrahi, Eli Moyal, Meir Nitzan, Mayor Ehud Olmert MK, Yosef Pearlman, Adv. Yehuda Rave, Adv. Yosef Richter, Uri Scharf, Silvan Shalom MK, Adv. Yossi Shapiro, Minister Shimon Shatreet, Matti Tal, Ariel Weinstein MK, Rafi Wianer, Avi Yehudaiof, Mordechai Yona, Moshe Zigdon, Emanuel Zissman MK, Shimon Zurieli

Chairman	Legal Advisors	Advisor for Planning	Accountant
Israel Isaacs	Adv. Ze'ev Weil	and Land Development	Matti Ganor
	Adv. Yitzhek Mina	Adv. Tamar Raveh

The seminar is intended for:

Entrepreneurs, company presidents and directors, board members, director generals, tourism and airline companies, travel agencies, urban planners, lawyers, industrialists, deputy director generals, financial managers, architects, economists, engineers, accountants, land assessors, investment advisers, contractors, advertising agents, marketing consultants, owners of investment companies, prolessionals and key figures in the economy.

Phose intending to participate in the Forum are requested to fill out the following form:

To: The Economic Forum, I plar Reg	i srael Accountants Association
	Place of work	Position
Address
Tel.(w)	TeL (h)	Fax,Fax,	Association
	nomic Forum Only, 2 Shruvel Hanagid, Jenu erican Express 🖸 Isracard 🔾 D	salem 94592, POB 1369, Tel. 02-244789, Fax. 02-24688 inters 🖸 Visa	of Engineers,
No	Exp date	LD No	Architects and
No		I.D. No	Architects and University Graduates In Technology
ירושלים.			University

To: Books, The Jerusalem Post, I	Background to history and current events are covered alphabetically in this unique, first-of-its-kind encyclopedi profiling periods of unrest and change from antiquity to the present: individuals, movements, events. Jerusalem Publishing House/Facts on File Publication. B & willustrations throughout, hardcover, 496pp., extensive bibliography, index, chronological index. JP Price: NIS 179 + NIS 5 for mailing in Israel For door to door delivery (where available) please add NIS 15
Disease C. sand C. dollars The En	muclonedia of Revolutions and Revolutionaries.
Enclosed is my check, payable to T	he Jerusalem Post, or see my creak data detaile.
🖸 Visa 🗇 Isra/MCD 🖸 Diners	O AmEx
CC No	Exp
Name	Address
City	CodeID No
TeL/Fax (day)	Signature

an an the second states of the second

				-	•
-

BUSINESS & FINANCE

Bezeq awaits India's ruling on privatization

Court's verdict expected today

NEW DELHI (Reuter) - Bezeq is awaiting the verdict nf India's Supreme Court today nn key petitions against the government's mnve in privatize the state-run telecommunications monopoly.

· A court statement said yesterday that Justice N.P. Singh, one of three judges hearing the case, would announce the verdict, ending weeks of waiting for foreign investors keep to make inroads in the lucrative sector.

The 10 petitions target the governmeot's ambitious hut embattied program to npen up the nation's basic telephone services to private companies, a symbol of Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao's economic refirms.

Backers of the petitioos ioclude seveo Upper House deputies of the Janata Dal party, a socialist opposition group.

Some Markist and oationalist technocrats also helieve India should not give up its monopolies in infrastructure.

Chief Justice A.M. Ahmadi, heading the three-member panel, said last month that the court would oot examine the governmeot's constitutional right to privatize the telecommuoications sector.

In December, the courl ordered the government to put a hold on awarding any licenses to firms to operate basic telephone services, the backbooe of the privatizatioo program, until it had ruled on the petitions.

The court's stay came at the height of an oppositioo protest which all but paralyzed parliameot during its mooth-long sessioo in December.

Oppositioo lawmakers accused the government of favoring one

Ahmadi told counsel for nne nf the peotinners, the Delhi Scieoce Fnrum, not to argue against the validity of the government's decision in 1994 to eod the state's mnnopoly.

"If you challenge the policy of the governmeot to privatize telecom circles, the court will immediately withdraw its interim orders dated December 15 last year asking the government nnt to grant any licenses to India and muttinational companies till further orders," Ahmadi said.

After an initial teoder last year, the government chose the winners in five of the country's 20 200CS.

But the licenses have not yet been given, and no winners have beeo selected for the 15 other regions.

Only six firms hid for five regions which were oo the auctioo block last mooth, passing up the chance to huy licenses for eight other zones. Oppositioo parties claim the government favored HFCL Bezeq Telecom Ltd, which emerged as the highest bidder in nine regions hy offering $15 hillioo to $25h. more thao all others combined. ...

They claim the government passed up a chance to pocket far more mooey in license fees by allowing the consortium lo choose the three zooes it would cootrol.

Tender

ño.

30/98/015/0

09/96/511/0

1. Pre-condition

March t2, t996).

A court judgmeot against the The baoks are to close governmeol could paralyze the branches oo Fridays as of March privalizatioo scheme ootil after 1, after having reached an agreemeot with the Histadrut oo a-fiveelections expected in April. The goveromeot lasl month day work week.

promulgated a presideotial ordi-Heads of the banks' workers committee said they plan to ignance to set up an autocomous Telecom Regulatory Authority of nore Turbovitz's iostructioos, India (TRAI) to supervise future which in the case of the smaller privatization plans. hanks mean most workers will The ordinance has to be apwork a six-day week since - such proved hy parliament, due to banks have on mnre than one meet from Fehruary 26. branch in each city.

Description of Requirements

Integrated

Fax/Voice Announcer

Data Transfer

Applications

for A.T.M. Network

The following general conditions apply:

Bids sent by fax or telegram will not be considered.

Queries should be addressed to Tel. 02-395429, 616.

Radio Jerusalem Greater Jerusalem

Radio Haifa Carmel and Bay region

Beit Shemesh and surrounding areas

My neighborhood Radio Station

All other conditions remain unchanged

Non Stop Radio

Radio Darom

Voice of the Red Sea

Radios

BEZEQ. The Israel Telecommunications Corp. Ltd.

c. Compilance with the "minimum" conditions, given in the tender documents

Bank Leumi Leisrael. The fee for the tender documents is non-refundable.

afterwards (phone numbers as above), to obtain confirmation of receipt of the fax.

3. Bids abould be placed in the tenders box at 15 Rehov Hazvi, Jerusalem, not later than 6 p.m.

4. No undertaking is given to accept the lowest or any bid, or to order the entire work from one source.

The last date for submitting bids for the above tender has been changed to April 2, 1996, at 6 p.m. (previously

Gush Dan

Sharon

Negev

Eilat

2. The tender documents can be ubtained from the Tenders and Ordering Department of the Options

200% of

stated quantity

trader, and hold valid licenses to trade, and must comply with all relevant standard specifications. b. Willingness to provide a guarantee, as explained in the tender documents.

Purchasing Division, 15 Rehov Hazvi, Jerusalem, between 9 a.m. and 12 noon, Sunday to Thursday.

The tender documents will be provided on submitting a receipt for payment for the above sum.
In Israel, payment should be made into Bezeq's Postal Bank account no. 5-311757.

a. Parties submitting bids must comply with all taws, including the requirement to kee account books, be an authorized

Overseas suppliers should make payment into Bezeq's account no. 12-90 t-97633/64, at the Jerusalem main branch of

The receipt, with details of your company, and authorized trader's number may be faxed to 972-2-378113. Please phone

Submission of Bids for Tender 67/95/006/0 for a Multimedia Instruction System

101 FM

89.5 FM

103 FM

100 FM

97 FM

102 FM

107.5 FM

Last Date for

Submission Bids

12/3/96

at 6 p.m.

2/4/96

at 6 p.m.

Clal Industries to buy 50% stake in Yotvata

CLAL Industries has reached an GALIT LIPKIS BECK agreement in priociple to purchase a 50 perceot stake in Yotvata Dairy for NIS 100 millinn,

the company informed the Tel

Aviv Stock Exchange yesterday.

of Clal Industries, said the pur-chase is in the framework of the

Clal (Israel) group's plan to in-crease its investments in the food

Laser said oegotiations com-

The compaoies are currectly formulating a final agreement which will include an understanding on Clal's involvement in the

According to Laser, there will be no major changes in Yotvata's meoced several months ago.

company's management.

to a five-day work week.

At the end of last week, Turbo-vitz inld Supervisor of Baoks

Ze'ev Abeles that all banks will be able to cut by one day their six-day work week provided at least 5% to 10% of each bank's branches will remain opeo oo Fridays, as will at least one branch in each city where a bank operates,

top management.

market.

Meir Laser, general manager

Laser said Clal's decision to invest in Yotvata is mainly due to the milk product manufacturer's high quality products and the company's potential in sell to Jordan and Egypt.

The companies are also considering exportiog Yotvata's products to Europe.

'We decided to invest because nf the quality of the company, which is known to everyone in Israel. The company has high quality penple and products," said Laser.

According to Laser, Clal will contribute to Yotvata's development of new products which are distributed and marketed through Tnuva.

Yotvata officials were unavailable for comment.

Several weeks ago, Clal negotiated to purchase a 21% stake in Elite Industries from the Federman grou

But the negotiations fell though after Elite general manager David Federmao reached a partnership agreement with Strauss

Today, Clal'a holdings in the food industry ioclude a 57% stake in frozen food manufacturer Sunfrost, which suffered losses last year; and a 25% share in Hypershuk, which merged with Co-Op North and is also losing money

Clai's most profitable investment is its 25% share in Jaf-Ora. the soft-drink manufacturer.

Bank of Israel may require some banks to open on Friday

many places like io Kirvat Shmona, Ofakim and other towos, the hanks operate ooly one hranch."

Chairman of United Mizrahi Bank workers committee Sarah Laserovitz said it will be very difficult to implement Turbovitz's instructions, explaining that bank secrecy regulations make it impossible for a branch manager to obtain information about customers with accouots io aoother

"Turbovitz's iostroctioos sound good, but they can't be implemented with the existing communicatioo systems. The implication of having_only_ a few branches open is that there will be no telephone communication link, making it impossible for bank clerks to receive information about customers with an acBUSINESS BRIEFS

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 199

: بفتری

ی کاری جو تعری در این در این در این

Jerusalem-based Encotone announced yesterday it has received an order from Spanish bank La Caixa for 500 units of its TeleID acoustic identification and authentication device. This initial order will be used in the first stage of La Caixa's computer banking service. The second stage will extend the system to all computer banking customers, about 50,000 institutions

Once a phone banking service is put into operation, customers wil be able to conduct transactions by phone. La Caixa is expected to equip 500,000 customers with TeleID units over the next three years. Encotone said yesterday the deal could eventually be worth over $12m. Encotone is a 26% Rachel Neiman subsidiary of ECI Telecom.

Dutch software firm EDI-TIE and its Israeli distributor Shai Information Systems have established a jointly held subsidiary, Rochel Neimor EDI-TTE Middle East.

Eleo subsidiary Eleomat has been awarded a $3.3m, contract to supply the Israel Electric Corporation with three-phase power supply meters. The meters will be produced in cooperation with Swiss firm Landis & Gyr in order to meet Rochel Neiman IEC's timetable.

Algorithmic Research has signed an up-to $8m. cooperative agreement with French smartcard developer GemPlus. Algorithmic Research will research and develop GenPlus' next generation of so-called electronic wallets over the next several years, as well as provide consultancy services for Rachel Neiman current products.

Beit Hashita has been named sole provider of olives to Domino'a Pizza in Israel by local licensee Omni Brand Names. The contract - for 50 tons of olives per year - is estimated at NIS 400,000. Rachel Neiman

Walden Israel announced yesterday it has executed a $1.6m. investment in SmartLight, financed by investors including venture capital firms Mofet, Evergreen and Quantum, Private investors in SmartLight include Uzia Galil of Elron and Zvi Alon of Netmanage.

SmartLight, a privately held company, is developing a medical diagnostic imaging apparatus based on electro-optic techniques. The apparatus would be used to enhance the quality of reading and interpreting medical x-ray films by radiologists. The company, headquartered in Haifa, was founded in 1995 by two former Elscint senior managers together with a third partner. Rachel Neiman

Profits up at Israel Gen. Bank

COMPANY RESULTS

GALIT LIPKIS BECK

ISRAEL General Bank, a memrose to 6.5% from 6.2%. ber of the Edmond de Rothschild group, yesterday reported a 109 percent growth in net profits for doubtful debts, increased 30.3% the foorth quarter, compared last year, to NIS 37.8m. from with the same period in 1994. General Bank is the first local. NIS 29m. bank to publish its carnings for of the Zur Shamir group, reportthe year, completing 1995 with an 11% rise lo oet profits to NIS 998,000. NIS 13.3 millioo from NIS 12m. The company, founded at the in 1994. end of 1994, completed last year Anooal oet return oo equity with a net profit of NIS 404,000.

Profit from financing operations, before provisions for

. . . .

••••

4 . S. S.

· • • •

.

.

14 A. . . .

· · .

Sec. 1

N. 6

. . .

4

۲.

1.4

4

×.

14 C

14-14

.

- e ² N 8.1

1

÷.,

4

Hungarian

FM quits

A.

.

. · · .

MORE thao 30 perceot of all GALIT LIPKIS BECK bank hranches will remain opeo Friday if the Bank of Israel adopts Supervisor of Mooopolies Yoram Turbovitz's directives on the hanking sector's planned shift branch.

firm and bungling the program. Lawyers said the court was likely to focus on the rules of privatization and oot the policy to

.seek private investment. טרגס TARGET (מטרה) Mutual Fund for Foreign Residents

Date: 15.2.96 Purchase Price: 147.83 Redemption Price: 145.54

. לאתי פיא pia לאתי Contraction and the second states and second se

PRIME פריים PRIME Mutual Fund for Foreign Residents פריים 15.2.96 Date: Purchase Price: 108.72 Redemption Price: 107.26 • leumi pia איס יסאל

for current Information en securities in Israel and the U.S., including high-yielding U.S. tovernment-hacked debentures, call:

MEYERSON & CO., INC. Frank 1 / 7m

A Public to Tracked Company NASDAO Symbol MHMY Bosters of Dealers in Securities Interer

30 Montgomery Street enery City, New Jersey 07302, USA Corporate & Institutional Inquiries: Jeffrey E. Meyerson, V.P. netwood theating through 1-201-332-3515

Fax: 1-201-332-1263 Retail Customer Inquiries: Eric J. Logan, V.P. Natural Sales Mangar

1-201-352-4801 - 1-800-888-8118

Fast 1-201-434-1008 Our specially trained sales personnel will be available to

. .

.

· . ·

mi's workers committee, said, "Turbovitz does oot understand what he is saying.

Cost of

Tender

Documents

NIS 100

NIS 1,000

In practice, it means banks will be open six days a week, since in 9.0

Telephone

02-395616

02-395616

d5-7444

MINISTRY OF FINANCE - Accountant General

Bids are invited for the supply of goods and services, required by government agencies located throughout Israel:

Tender No. 3/96 - Steel Doors with Security System

In accordance with the tender regulations:

originating in areas designated to receive national priority.

Last date for submitting bids: Thursday, March 28, 1996, at 12 noon.

Bid forms are available from the Tenders and Purchasing

Department, The Accountant General's Office, Room 714 or 715, Min. of Finance Building, 1 Rehov Kaplan, Jerusalem.

Additional details can be obtained from 02-317428, 02-317418.

Nn undertaking is given to accept the lowest or any bid.

Preference will be given to Israeli manufactured goods.

2. Preference will also be given to goods and services,

428

615

-Abeles's recommendations are the basis for Turbovitz's directives on the banks. (Tav Or)

Louis Roth, head of Bank Leucouot io ooe of the closed branch," said Lascrovitz.

A Bank of Israel spokesman said many of Turbovitz's instructions, including keeping 5%-10% of all banks open, are based oo Abeles's recommendations.

He said the Bank of Israel is in the midst of calculating the cost of moving to a five-day work week.

According to the Banks Association, banks will loss NIS 500 million per annum if they move to a five-day work week.

Turhovitz has emphasized to the Bank of Israel that if he does oot fnrmulate new bank work directives, each bank will have to receive approval before making the change. Turbovitz said the banks' move to a shorter work week is also subject to finding a solution for trading foreign currency.

"A fax for you" All you want to know about your counts, on your tax, within 15 minutes is minutes

D ISRAEL DISCOUNT BANK

and Im

gone

• Direct Insurance a subsidiary ed a fourth quarter net profit of

ISRAEL MONEY MARKETS
Patch (foreign currency deposit rates) (14.2.96) Currency (deposit for:) a MONTHS 12 MONTHS U.S. dolar ($250,000) 4.375 4.250 4.250 Pound storing ($100,000) 4.375 4.250 4.250 German mark ($M 200,000) 1.750 1.750 2.000 Swits trace ($F 200,000) 0.250 0.3625 Yen (10 million yan)
(Rates vary higher or lower than indicated according to deposit)
Shekel Foreign Exchange Rates* (16.2.96) CHECKS AND TRANSFERS BANKOLOTES Rep. Buy Sett Buy Sett Rates ⁴⁴ Currency basket 3,747 3,5308
U.S. dollar 3.0742 3.1238 2.02 3.17 3.1050 Gorman mark 2.0839 2.1277 2.05 2.16 2.1145 Pound starting 4.7607 4.8131 4.65 4.68 4.7533 French tranc 0.6060 0.6179 0.69 0.63 0.6142 Japanase yon (100) 2.9061 2.8530 2.855 3.00 2.8067 Dutch florin 1.8085 1.8997 1.83 1.93 1.6687 Swedenk lconss 0.4448 0.4613 0.465 0.468 0.4485 Norwegian lcons 0.4793 0.694 2.62 2.25 2.6007 Swedenk lconss 0.4793 0.4671 0.47 0.50 1.485 Portecian lconse 0.6714 0.4571 0.47 0.50 1.4842
Pandah mark 0.6702 0.8811 0.865 0.70 6.6774 Canadian dollar 2.2294 2.2654 2.19 2.30 2.2511
Belgian wanc (10) 1.0175 1.0941 1.00 1.05 1.0181
1900 1900 1900 1900 19701 19701 1970 1000 100
ECU 3.8432 3.9452 0.87 0.95 0.9781
Spenish peests (100) 2.4847 2.8248 2.44 2.56 2.5108
" Uness rates very according to bank. "" Benk of larget. SOURCE: BANK LEUMI.
the second s
Real Estate &
: Investments in Israel 1996
Just before Pessach
The Jerusalem Pess
Will Publish special supplements devoted to
• real estate and investments in Israel.
The supplements will be published in the International Editions of March 4, 11 and 18 and in the daily paper on April 5.
For more information and to advertise in these supplements, please contact: Udi Bash 03-6390333 Fax: 03-63902

Jerico 120

.....................

The Jerusalem Post Monday, February 19, 1996

Change

1.1

Key Representative Rates

Gold

prices

soar

as rand falls

COMMODITIES

ROUNDUP

THE South African rand fell to an all-time low against the dollar and gold prices soared Friday in an abbreviated session following rumors (which were later denied) that South Africa President. Nelson Mandela had suffered a heart attack and that foreign currency exchange laws in South Africa would soon be eased. April gold ended $1.50 higher at $407.50 an ounce and Comex silver closed Friday's abbreviated

Traders attributed the rise to fund buying late in the day, as well as the weak rand against the session with strong gains.

dollar,

BUSINESS & FINANCE

'Rand's plummet shows worry among investors in S. Africa'

US, Canada reach lumber deal

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) -The dramatic fall of the rand on currency markets at the end of last week showed that investors were still nervous about South Africa's future, the Sunday Times said.

It said Friday's dramatic plunge - to an all-time low against the US dollar of 3.90 rand - showed that while the country had made a peaceful transition to majority rule and foreign countries showed "benign feelings" to the new democracy, the country carried the burden of Africa's failures. "...It sounds a warning that foreign opinion, as well as much local opinion, is deeply nervous about the future," the newspaper said. "Among investors, faith in this continent is paper-thin, and the specter of a South Africa torn to shreds by sectional harreds has not yet been erased."

The slide began on Thursday after numors, later denied, that President Nelson Mandela had suffered a mild beart attack. Speculators also baled out over fears that an easing of foreign exchange controls could trigger capital flight and the fall gathered pace on Friday as major investment funds in Europe and the US sold the rand. It lost more against the dollar in a single day than in the whole of 1995 and at one stage a dollar cost 3.90 rand, against 3.65 on Thursday.

It recovered slightly to around 3.80 by the time the local foreign exchange market closed.

The newspaper said the currency's battering also reminded the nation of the importance of Mandela to South Africa's success.

"It was a reminder, also umely, that his extraordinary stature as a peacemaker and conciliator remains the pivot of international confidence in our future.

"There is nobody else to provide that assurance. The paper said Mandela's "anointed crown prince." Deputy President Thabo Mbeki, did not inspire confidence.

...Markets are as ruthless in passing judgment as they are swift, and the idea that Mr. Mandela may be replaced by Mr. Mbeki inspires great nervousness." it said.

Mandela and Mbeki's ruling African National Congress would have to convince the world that it was able and willing to carry on the policies of reconciliation that had made Mandela an international symbol of peace, it added.

STOCK indexes fell to their lowest levels in two months amid concern the Bank of Israel will raise interest rates, increasing companies' borrowing costs and drawing investment toward savings plans.

Last Thursday the Central Bureau of Statistics announced that January's Consumer Price Index rose a relatively high 0.9 percent from December. The announcement came after the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange had closed for the day. "After the high CPI, everyone's afraid that interest rates will go up," said Avi Meir, an investment manager at Israel General Bank. "Nobody wants to huy stocks today." The Bank of Israel last increased interest rates on February 1, when the rate at which it lends to banks rose to 14% from 13.7%.

Losses were led by Koor Industries Ltd., the most active share on the exchange, which fell 0.75 as NIS 3.5 million worth of shares changed hands.

Koor's American Depositary Receipts in New York rose 1/4 to 197/8 on Friday from Wednesday. the last day of trading on Wall Street to influence Tel Aviv.

The Maof Index fell 1.29% to 209.29 and the Two-Sided Index decreased 1.04% percent to 201.18. Of 998 issues trading across the exchange, nearly twice as many shares fell as rose. More than NIS 70.3m, worth of shares traded, NIS 8.8m. below this month's

indexes TEL AVIV STOCK MARKET FELICE MARANZ

CPI rise

pushes down

trading level.

Declining shares included Teva Pharmaceuticals Ltd., which fell 3%. The decline followed losses in Teva's ADR's, which fell | 1/8 to 42 1/4 on Friday from Wednesday in New York.

Osem Investments sank 4% after foreign investors were seen as uninterested in purchasing the stock, said Israel General Bank's Meir. Bank Hapoalim fell 3% and Bank Leumi dropped 1%.

Other falling shares included holding company Clal (Israel) Ltd., which fell 0.5% and Clal Electronic Industries Ltd., which dropped 2%.

Clal Industries Ltd. closed unchanged after Kibbutz Yorvata announced it is negotiating to sell a stake in its dairy business to Clal Industries Ltd.

Clal Industries is in the final stage of negotiating to purchase 50% of Yotvata Dairy for about NIS 100m. The kibbutz produced 12.5 million liters of chocolate and mocha flavored milk drinks last year.

Investors felt Clal "got a good price for Yotvata," said Meir. Gaining shares included chemi-·с cal companies. Israel Chemicals Ltd. rose 0.25% and its subsidiary Dead Sea Works Ltd. went up 1.5%

On the Two-Sided Index, Mofet Israel Technology Fund Ltd. rose iy id 0.5%, following gains to VocalTec Ltd., which went up to 14 1/8 Friday from 13 1/2 on Wednesday rs /e on Wall Street. Mofet owns a 10% stake in (Bloomberg) VocalTec.

15

ЭT

35

ıt

sk

d٢

ae

jo

Ukraine miners suspend strike over energy crisis

KIEV (Reuter) - Ukraine's coal miners suspended a two-week-old strike on Friday, but government in the suburbs of Kiev. Vasyl Prime Minister ed Yevtukhov said the strike had ed only served to worsen an already critical situation. Russia was unlikely, he said, to hook up Ukraine to the energy grid in the next few days. "The miners' strike in Ukraine has ended, and the only result is hig losses to the economy," Yevtukhov said. "It was absoluteue ly unnecessary. The damages total several million tonnes of coal that we need. I see no pluses for the miners - only minuses. Their slo-23 gans were sheer populism." ise Trade union leaders said they rewould continue to press for talks oi with the government on economic Ca) demands. They did not say when the strike might resume. The government has doled out ihe $79 million in hack pay - about ich two-thirds of what miners were ive demanding - but mindful of obligations to the International n.' (ed Monetary Fund, says it will prords vide no more funds from the hud-115get. The strike began fizzling out over the past week after a strong start in most pits in the Donhass coal mine in eastern Ukraine. On Thursday, trade unions said 33 of Ukraine's 250 mines were not working and 93 were refusing to load coal.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) - The United States and Canada reached an agreement over the weekend on Canadian softwood lumber imports, ending a bitter bilateral trade dispute that has been smoldering for more than a dozen years. Calling the agreement an "his-toric accomplishment," US Trade Representative Mickey Kantor said the deal will provide the March silver settled 7.7 cents higher and closed at $5,722 an ounce. Comex copper futures closed lower on Friday, as LME stocks soared to their highest ber from Canada. level in over a year, sources said. The March contract ended 1.15.

cents lower to 112.50 cents a pound. Cbot corn futures hit new 15-year highs during Friday's trading session.

Bullish fundamental news, including active exports and some weather concerns for the US Midwest, propelled corn futures to a higher close with the most active March contract up 1-3/4 at $3.80 per hushel.

Cbot wheat futures ended lower on Friday, due to position squaring ahead of the loog weekend (Today is Presidents' Day in the US, and all markets there will be closed).

The market is currently under-pinned by talk of idear-term US exports, traders said: March "" $5.23-1/4.

The concerns about weather patterns in the US Midwest also

"necessary relief and the level playing field" that US lumber companies and workers "bave songht for so long" and will significantly reduce imports of lum-

The US lumber industry has long charged that Canadian shipments of softwood lumber into the United States have jumped dramatically in recent years because of an unfair Canadian lumber policy that subsidizes its producers and enables its lumber to be sold in the US at cheap prices. Kantor noted that since 1991, the Canadian humber share of the lucrative US market has grown to over 36 percent, up from 26%, and that thousands of US jobs have been lost as a result of the declining American lumber indus-

In blunt language, Kantor specifically criticized the sale of

IndDevBK IndDevDC IndDvPrD MenicunC OHH Trade Trade Trade

GL FIST Name Adardin Carnoll Carnoll Carnoll Findhab IndepMB IndepMB J Info Jianghak LeurohB Mizihir Telapoth Talapoth

at below market prices, and the practice of restricting log exports from British Columbia and other provinces He said these practices have enabled Canadian lumber producers to purchase lumber at cheap prices, export at low prices, and have made US producers uncompetitive. Under the five-year agreement, which takes effect April 1, Canada's largest lumber exporting province, British Columbia, will tax its lumber exports to the US once they reach a certain level, and Quebec and other lumber producing provinces will increase the so-called stumpage fees producers are charged to cut timber. The agreement will result in "an impressive reduction in lumber imports from Canada," Kantor said. Kantor estimated that imports from Britisb Columbia, which make up 60% of the Canadian shipments, will drop by 14%, and that Quebec imports, which account for another 20% of imports from Canada, will be reduced to 89% of last year's lev-

The agreement calls for British Columbia to implement an export and a $100 charge if exports reach 9.2 billion board feet.

British Columbia Forest Minister Andrew Petter 10ld reponers in a conference call that the fee would be imposed only if the market price of lumber was less than $320 per thousand board

"If lumber is US$320 or greater, then we are released from these constraints," he said.

Petter said the US stance over lumber went against the spirit of a free trade agreement between Canada and the US, but, given the alternative of a trade war, the pact announced Friday was Canada's best interests.

On the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, lumber futures fell ahead of the announcement as progress in the talks was seen as lessening the threat of immediate US government action against Canadian imports. March lumber ended $8.80 lower at $300.50 per thousand board feet.

Quebec agreed to increase its stumpage fees by about $100 million.

It will then implement a backup mechanism if necessary to ensure that a reduction in Quebec

89% of last year's level. Kantor said the parties in Alberta and Ontario have also agreed to comparable mechanisms, but did not give any details.

Kantor pledged that if the agreement failed. Washington would not hesitate to take other action. including pursuing a formal trade complaint against Canada and slapping tariffs on incoming Canadian lumber.

US and Canadian officials have met all week to reach an agreement over Canadian lumber imports, and to resolve US charges that Canada unfairly subsidizes its lumber shipments.

The negotiators have talked until well after midnight almost every night this week. a source close to the talks said,

The US lumber industry, represented by the Coalition for Fair Lumber Imports, had threatened to ask Washington to impose duties on Canadian imports if an agreement was not reached o its liking.

US industry officials at the press conference announcing the agreement said they were pleased with the agreement, that it was strong, and pledged to rebuild the faltering US lumber industry.

view served a mark them to TEL AVIV STOCKS 1001 400 0.5 584 0.0 797 -5.0 158.50 0.8 465 -5.0 196.50 0.8 455 -5.0 196.50 0.8 355 -5.0 14100 -1.0 197.0 196.00 0.4 357 -12470 -4.0 201 -4.5 200 -0.9 12470 0.0 201 -4.5 200 -0.9 200 -0.0 20 1287 1412 1143 139,00 2543 825 259 1842 984 905 702 72,00 494 82,00 494 82,00 494 82,00 494 82,00 495,40 82,50 Criter Wardinon Wardi NaciAviv Ocifivi Ocifivi Diolisio Oz Pargos 168.50 -0.3 126278 -9.3 469 143.50 0.3 Industriais Price %chg Mortgage Banks & Finance E Proce %ctag 434457 1.0 410 270 41382 - 0.5 61780 138.50 0.4 48410 5884 -2.0 174012 -2.5 177857 -3.0 -0.8 Investment Companies Name P destant aver a Actavit A Act Price % chig -1.9 315 -14 572 -0.9 88,00 -1.4 185,50 276 3.0 662 392 296 -1.0 357,50 3.0 15366 0.2 3617 -1.0 Financial Institutions Atsurration Atsurration Appione Appione Elanci El 198.00 -1.5 914 800 0.6 2741 -2.5 2842 -0.8 527 -0.8 357 Property, Suilding & Agriculture Name Price Science adorinetic BLOD bandono SIR pandor 62.00 bandor 62.00 bandor 62.00 bandor 192.50 -45 pandor 62.00 bandor 192.50 -45 pandor 62.00 bandor 192.50 -45 Arbur 192.50 -44 Activ 192.50 -43 Arbur 192.50 -44 Activ 192.50 -43 Arbur 192.50 -43 Arbur 192.50 -44 Arbur 192.50 -43 Arbur 192.50 -55 Baydisc 27119 -25 Baydisc 2719 -25 Bay -28 -15 -04 05 -10 -0.2 0.5 -25 -08 -03 11.7 198,50 0.8 21.00 -1.2 4577 77,50 -0.5 3.0 Oil Exploration Name Price % -1.0 PARALLEL LIST Trade & Services Property, Building Name Price Very Gauricit ScandiaC UnicomG1 308 115.50 173.00 UniconsG1 12 Industrials Neme (MaxC3 12 NacaG1 OrasiC 10 PolygonC 10 Tiorwal 14 0.9 -1.6 -1.2 30 13 49 -31 Investo Oil Exploration

to end bitter bilateral trade dispute Five-year agreement will take effect on April 1 timber owned by Canadian provinces to Canadian producers tax of $50 per thousand hoard feet lumber shipments to the US to on lumber shipments when exports reach 9 hillion board feet.

oushed new crop November soybean prices higher, while the other contracts closed mixed on Friday, analysts said.

Although it may be early in the season to worry about bad weather for the November crop, US grain stocks are currently very tight and there is very little margin for error.

The March contract closed down 2-1/2 at $7.30 a hushel. Cotton futures settled higher in a dull trading session ahead of the long US weekend.

The March contract rose 0.46 cents to close at 84.98 cents a pound. Csce March sugar reached a fresh one-year settlement high on short covering on Friday, traders said. The March contract closed at 12.66 cents a pound, up 0.17 cents.

Some analysts have predicted a sizable surplus of sugar will bit the world market later this spring. Csce Arahica coffee finished a short trading session lower in dull trading, with the most active May contract falling 0.40 cents to 122.50 cents a pound.

Csce cocoa settled the week weaker on mixed speculative and industry-related selling. The May contract closed at $1,315 a tonne, down $10 on the day.

Courtesy of Michael Zwebner, CommStock Trading Ltd.

مت -

Hungarian FM quits

BUDAPEST (Reuter) Hungarian Finance Minister Lajos Bokros resigned yesterday, saying his cabinet colleagues had failed to back his reform drive.

"The finance minister handed meshis resignation after today's government meeting," Prime Minister Gyula Horn said, adding that he had accepted the departure with effect from February 29.

Discussions on a replacement for Bokros would begin soon between Horn's Hungarian Socialist Party (HSP) and its coalition partner, the Alliance of Free Democrats, he added.

"As the government doesn't support and trust me, I don't see that reform of the state budget is possible." Bokros said.

At its meeting yesterday, the cabinet rejected introduction of a social insurance tax, and decided against bikes in value added tax and consumption tax.

Ministers rejected a proposal to transform the health insurance contribution into a tax.

. .

..

The second second

and the second المحمد بالمحاجر والمحمد محمد محمد

Τv	vo-sid	ed trad	ling
		NOON		MORNING
Name Price	5 Change	Volume Shares	Phote	% Volume Change Shares
afnarht	-0.2	14000	680	24159
electrac	-0.7	4320	3856	-0.5 2682
Ackerén 377	20	19000	160.0	1.5 10532
Ackenin	20	25	347593	-1.7 95
Ans: 30885	-0.5	42	309661	-0.2 37
Agan	-0.2	2450 2400	5407 2583	16053 2.0 4824
Azorim	-0.5	10000	3566	-0.5 935
ALPM	-0.5	900 1400	12038	-0.S 5949 3182
Baran	-0.5	171600	830	21018
Cables 1648	-0.2	1100	1648	-0.2 8800
Clai Ele	-2.0	4050	39068 858	-1.3 1969 -1.8 6678
Clai Tra	-0.5	11500	6033	1.0 18757
Claims	-1.0	11000	1506	-1.0 11602 13500
Clinds		61500	1786	0.5 78175
Claims	1.0	1800	2225	1.0 39015
Dead Sea 918	-22	800 38000	1957 920	-2.5 1800 2.0 82429
Degem1	1.5	18900	593	9285
Delek 8559	-1.2	2420	8531	-1.5 B89 -0.2 535
DevtM8 18484 Discinv 20890	-12	4560	21154	2531
EAR 1534/	-8.5	3630	15789	-2.0 958
Elico	-1.2	980 3000	13100 1265	-1.0 496 124506
Eiron	0.7	960	12160	1.0 2954
Export 1307	-0.7	3000	1304	-1.0 5990
FeuchtW5	-0.5	250 320	7382 43003	-0.8 401 -0.8 562
Formula		1800	1988	10827
Fristint 1	-1.0	300	34184 34263	-1.0 212
Frutarom	-1.0	2200	813	63756
General	1.5	3080 374500	8053 457	·1.8 122555
Hapolm	-3.0	7040	8843	-0.8 2671
IndBlog 351	-1.0	165000	351	-1.1 69943
Isramco 1.8 IsrCorp1 22652	1.0	1980000	18	-2.0 375
LarCorp5 20025			20025	210
IsChem 259	0.2.	375000 115600	263 1078	1.9 447511 -0.5 127291
1D2Dev	-12	12950	5455	0.3 4514
LDC	-1.0 2.0	$000	897 1134	-0.8 24647 2 0 61077
JEC	3.0		838	2.9 2208
JOEL	-3.5 -0.7	22500	91 5 351	-3.7 159472 25583
Kandan5	-0.7	9600	576	30797
Koor	-0.7	9720	30585	-0.3 1943
Leum	-1.0	238500 15300	400 2039	-0.5 65763 23920
Malinu5	1.7		790	1.8 3868
Mamer 807 Marit1 1140	-0.5	30000 1500	504 1140	4220 -2.7 18185
Mashov	1.2	4000	419	1.2 39956
Mehadrin	-2.0	1150	7187 586	-2.0 359 3854
Mishkan			31889	254
Mivisit	20	3600	1370	2.0 10582
Nacio S	-3.0	1140000	32	-3.0 1706053
Nice1		600	3251	10345
Ocaf	1.2 -0.5		7865	1.2 516 -0.4 32918
Osem 1986	-4.0	19000	1966	-4.0 9730 396
Periclas	1.0	600	11456 2005	395 1.0 10765
Petronem	-0.7	13200	1586	-0.8 19706
Pinyon	-2.0	400	8702	-2.0 575 99607
Poigais	-0.2	750	157 0 2262	2816
Secon	-1.0	24000	279	1.1 20117
SelaPump	10.0	450	35.1 11102	10.0 301356 -1.3 722
Steel	-12		258	-1.1 23169
SupersiB $733	-0.5	7290	6767	2971
Tamboue	-0.2		867 1275	-0.2 10140
Teva	-3.0	1512	132305	-3.0 821
TAT5 154.0	2.5 0.7		154.0 455	2.7 17039 0.7 7600
Undan 0	0.7	15400	435	0.7 7600

THE REORLE YOU CAN THIN TO.

ISRAEL DISCOUNT BANK

leaders said the stoppage had already seriously damaged the country's crisis-ridden energy sector.

Strike leaders named the deepening energy crisis in Ukraine as a key reason for suspending the strike, called on February 1 to demand months of back pay and subsidies to the ageing and lossmaking sector.

"We'll fully stop the strike when our demands are satisfied," strike leader Nikolai Podgorny said. "But the strike will create job cuts in industry and the stores of coal at thermal stations are very low. This, combined with the lengthy cold spell, could lead to catastrophe."

An unusually freezing winter has left Ukraine with thermal stauons desperately short of coal and fuel oil. Nuclear power plants, which provide about 50 percent of Ukraine's electricity in winter, were working at full force.

The government ordered large factories to shut down to save energy after neighboring Russia uncoupled Ukraine from a joint power grid this week. Rotating power cuts leave people in the dark for hours at a time in many parts of the country, even

Chrysler ruled negligent in design of van brakes

BOSTON (Reuter) - Chrysler Corp has been ordered to pay S19 million damages to a man whose family was killed in one of their vans, his lawyer said over the weekend.

In a far-reaching case, a jury ruled the US carmaking giant was grossly negligent in its design of the brakes in its 1986 Plymouth Voyager. Paul Santos' wife and three children were killed when their van spun out of control on a slick New Hamsphire highway in February. 1990, after the van's rear brakes locked.

Santos broke into tears when the verdict was announced, his law ver Leo Boyle said. The jury also returned additional punitive damages of $15,705 to cover the cost of the van.

"Chrysler has got a huge problem on its hands." Boyle said. 'An American jury has determined that Chrysler was grossly negligent in the design of the braking system of the most popular car in America, the Chrysler minivan.

"We knew from our research that there was a huge problem with this vehicle," he said.

The jury rejected Chrysler's reported argument that Santos was speeding on snowy roads and her windscreen wipers were broken, possibly inhibiting her view. Under normal circumstances, the van's front and rear brakes lock at the same time. Boyle said. But a tiny misodjustment or maintenance problem can result in disaster.

Boyle said the ruling could be far-reaching. The brake design was used in the Dodge Caravan and the Chrysler Town and Country van from 1984 to the early 1990s.

His law firm is cooperating with the plaintiffs in two other lawsuits pending against Chrysler. one in Pennsylvania and one in Georgia, he said.

The vans are now equipped with anti-lock brakes, he said.

SPORTS

MACCABI Rishon Lezion overcame troubles on and off the court

last night to heat a stubborn

Maccabi Jerusalem, 91-85 in the Rishon played without guard Gilad Simhoni, who left the club after being accused by management of suggesting to Interior

Ministry authorities that his fellow guard, Yugoslavian-born Alexander

Nikolitch, may have hoodwinked

Nikolitch's conversion to Judaism .

However, thanks to late heroics by

Motti Ben-Bassat, Nickolitch's 18

poiots and Brian Oliver's 31.

Rishon was able to rise above the unfortunate episode to climb back

In other games, Maccahi Tel Aviv routed visiting Hapoel Gafil Elyon, Hapoel Tel Aviv earned an important away win against Hapoel Safed, Maccabi Ramat

Gan staved off Hapoel Eilat, and

Bnei Herzliya beat Hapcel Gvat. Mac. R. Lezion 91, Mac. J'lem 85 money in the capital. Behind Uri Cohen-Mintz (17 poiots, including three three-pointerst and buoyed by into the Final Four picture.

the authorities concerning

National Basketball League.

England victorious but loses White to injury

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (Reuter) -England cruised to an eight wicket win against the United Arah Emirates yesterday but its celebrations were overshadowed by an injury to Craig White which ruled him out of the rest of the World Cup. The Yorkshire all-rounder injured an intercostal muscle after bowling only nine balls, forcing the England management to apply to the tournament's technical committee for permission to send for a replacement.

10

Despite White's early depar-ture England still dominated its group B match against the UAE, sealing its victory with 15 overs to spare.

The UAE, the ICC Trophy holders, decided to bat after winning the toss hut mustered only 136 all out in 48.3 overs.

Off-spinner Neil Smith, making his World Cup debut, captured three for 29, while seamers Dominic Cork and Phillip DeFreitas - recalled on his 30th birthday - took two wickets apiece.

England replied with 140 for two in 35 overs, Graham Thorpe top-scoring with an unbeaten 44 Smith was named man of the match for a fine all-round performance in his first Cup appearance. He helped to get the England innings off to a good start but had to retire with his score at 27 when he became ill oo the field.

Cricket World Cup ő Group 8 South Africa United Areb Emirates

The win was England's first in the tournament after they were defeated by New Zealand in their opening match last Wednesday. The UAE have lost their first two matches.

He said the England manage-meet would meet to decide who they would call up to replace White and hoped to announce their decision this morning.

England was expecting clarification on whether the new player could come from outside the original provisional squad of 20 which each side had to submit two months before the tournaтелт

Rlingworth gave no indication

i	UAE
1	S.Azhar Ibw b DeFreites	9
s	G.Mylveganam c Fairbrother b DeFreitas	0
2	Z.Hussain b N.Smith	- 33
	V.Mehra c Russell b N.Smith	1
1	M.Aslem b Gough	23
5	A Laig b N.Smith	0
	S. Raza b Cork	10
-	J.Samarasekera run out	29 2 15
r	S.Zarawani b Cork	2
	S.Oukanwala low b lingworth	15
	LAbbasi not out	1
	Extras (64 lb4 w4 rb1)	13
	Total (all out 48.3 overs)	136
•	Fall of wickets: 1-3 2-32 3-48 4-49 5-49 6-8	07-88
	8-100 9-135 10-136.
	Bowling: Cork 10-1-33-2 DeFreitas 9.3-	3-16-2
	Gough 8-3-23-1 White 1.3-1-2-0 N.Smith 9.3	2-29
	3 Kingworth 10-2-25-1.
	England
	A.Stewart c Mylvaganam b Laiq	23
	N.Smith retired al	27
	G. Thorpe not out	44
	M.Atherton b Saeed	20
	N.Fairbrother not out	12
	Extras (b4 lb2 w2 nb6)	14
	Total (for two wickets 35 overs)	140
	Fall of wickets: 1-52, 2-109
	Did not bat: J.Russell C.White O.Cork P.Def	reitas
	D.Gough R.Illingworth,
	Bowling: Samarasekera 7-1-35-0 Larg 7-0	25-1
	Raza 5-1-20-0, Saeed 10-1-26-1, Zarawan	i 8-0-26-0.
	Result: England won by eight wickets	s

2-1 FA Cup win over City

Liverpool makes quick work of Shrewsbury

when he pointed to the spot but he of who they were considering, except to say the new man would preferably be an all-rounder. If the player has to come from the original squad, Warwickshire captain Dermot Reeve or Lancashire's Mike Watkinson, both of whom played in the recent one-day series in South Africa, would be in costention. But if there is no restriction, Essex's Ronnie Irani, who toured Pakistan with England A recently, would be in the frame. Engalod's Mike Atherton said

Graeme Hick and Rohin Smith were not fully fit to play on Sunday, although either could have turned out if necessary. Kenya-India Sachin Tendulkar gave Kenya's bowlers a harsh introduction to the World Cup by smashing an unbeated 127 to ensure a seven-wicket win for host lodia in their opening group A

Kenya M.Chudasama c Mongia b Prasad K.Coieno c Mongia b Raju S.Tikolo c Kumble b Raju M.Odumbe st Mongia b Kumble H.Modi c Jadeja b Kumble T.Ooyo C Prabhakar b Kumble E.Odumbe not out A.Kain not out E.Frima (R.2 Ib-11 w-7 ob-11)
 AKarin not out
 8

 Extras (b-2 b-11 w-7 nb-1) 21

 Total (six wickets 50 overs)
 198

 Fall of wickets: 1-41 2-65 3-161 4-161 5-165 6-184
 196

 Drin of wickets: 1-41 2-65 3-161 4-161 5-165 6-184 190

 Bowling: Prabhalser 5-1-19-0, Sinath 10-0-38-0 10-0-38-0

 San 10-0-34-2; Tendulkar 5-0-26-0.
 1ndla

 India
 A.Jadega c Ali b Karim
 53

 S.Tendulkar not out 127
 S. Tendulkar not out N.Sidhu c Suji b S. Tikolo V.Kambli c D. Tikolo b M.Odumbe N.Manga not out Extras (R-3 w-7 nb-2) Zatel (R-3 w-7 nb-2)

Total (times wickets 41.5 overs) 203 Fall al wickets 1-163 2-167 3-162 Dol not bat: M.Azarhuddin, M.Prabhakar, V.Prasad, John St., A.Kumble, V.Raju Bowing: Al 5-0-25-0 (1w), E.Odumbe 3-0-18-0 (1w, 1r0), Suji 5-0-20-0, Odoyo 3-0-22-0 (1nb, 2w), Karim 10-1-27-1 (3w), S.Tikolo 3-0-26-1, N.Odumbe 9.5-1-41-1, O.Tikolo 3-0-21-0. Result: India won by seven wickets

Sharpe volley leads United to Gilliam led the Nets with 28 points and 11 rebounds. Childs had 20 points and nine assists and Shawn Bradley added 11 points and 15 rebounds. New Jersey outrebounded New York 63-43.

Chapman's second miss was intentional and the Heat grabbed the rebound, but no one was able to get ashot off before time expired.

to narrowly win his showdown with Miami's Alonzo Mourning, who had 27 points and 15 rebounds. O'Neal

ARYEH DEAN COHEN

Rishon moves into top four solid interior defense, Jerusalem led 60-53, and still led 71-70 with four minutes to play. However, a technical foul gave Rishon the opportunity to run off seven straight points led by Motti Ben-Bassat, and Jerusalem never recovered.

مانىتەرىدە بەرەچەت يەرەپ مىم مەرەپ بەرەپ بەرەپ بەرەپ بەرەپ بەرەپ بەرەپ بەرەپ بەرەپ

Jerusalem managed to whinle the lead down to 87-83 before Nikolitch sink several clutch free throws down the stretch to give Rishon (10-5) the important road victory, which boosted them past Galil Elyon into the fourth spot and gave them impetus going into Wednesday night's State Cup game with Maccabi Tel Aviv.

As for Simhoni, Rishon coach Roni Bosani said after the game he hoped management and his point-guard would be able to overcome their differences to allow for his return.

Mac. TA 89, Hap. Galit Elyon 69 Maccahi had much less to wurry about than some expected, although coach David Blan's young Galil club kent it close in the early going, trailing iust 45-40 at the tailf. However, led by Doron Jamehi – who scored only two in the first half but ended up with 22 points on 8-12 shooting and a perfect 5-5 from the foul line – and Moti Daniel's 16 points Led by its own Jordan, playmaker Adonis Jordan, Maccabi Jerusalem gave Oliver and Co. a nuo for their and fine defense. Maccabi (14-1) pulled away to turn the game into a laugher. For Galil Elyon (9-6), the loss was the club's second defeat in a row. Hap. Tel Aviv 86, Hapoel Safed 74 Coach Moshe Weinkrantz's rebuilding of Hapoel Tel Aviv (6-9) continued to pay off last night, thanks to fine teamwork and defense that held Safed's Melvin Neubern to just 18 points.

The Jerusalem Post Monday, February 19, 1996

Safed had an early 30-20 lead, but once again Nano Markovitch (27, points) was unstoppable, and Meir Tapiro chipped in with 17. The only positive note for Safed, which slipped to 7-8 in a rate home loss, was forward and team captain loss, was forward and lean captain Erez Hazan scoring his 5,000th league point. The feat put Hazan in rare com-pany, as he became only the 13th player to break the 5,000 mark in League history. Mac. Ramat Gan 66, Hap. Ellat 63 After last week's controversial one point win over Happet Holon, it looked like Eilat would just settle for being trounced this week, as coach Gadi Kedar's rejuvenated Ramat Gan

Club rolled to an early 20-9 lead. Ramat Gan just added to that bulge in the second half, pushing its advan-tage to 21 points before Eilar (5-10) got a wate-up call Raigh Filenic club. wake-up call. Ralph Klein's club. sparked by Ari Rosenberg, held Ramar Gan (4-11) to just six points in the next 8:40 to start their comeback. and when guard Guy Kantour hit a basket and two foul shots, it was 64-63 with just 11 seconds left. However, Ramat Gan managed one more hoop to close out the victory Baei Herztiya 96. Hapoel Gyat 74

CRITIC

AVETIC COM

مرضا فالتا

1000

1. 1. 1. 1.

· · · 1 - **-

1.14

1.14

1. A. A. A.

Led by Derrick Gervin, Gvat looked like they were about to pull off the upset of the year in Herzhya, as they grabbed a 44-37 lead behind his 23 first-half points, However, coach Muli Kazarin's club responded well to what Katzurin's club responded well to what must have been a serious half-time tongae-lashing, using a 15-2 spurt to demotish the visitors, who played with-our foreigner Stevie Theoryson, who sat out the game with an illness. For Herzliya, Amir Katz scored 33 points while Lior Arditi led Herzliya's definite on the other merunand form

fense as the club recovered from last week's dishearnening home loss to Maccabi Tel Aviv. Tonight, Hapoel Holon hosts Hapoel Jerusalem. The game will be shown on Sports Channel beginning at &45 pm.

		. W.	ΞL.	Pts
	Maccabi Tel Aviv	14	1	- 29
	Hapoel Jerusalem	13	1	27
	Bnet Herziya	10	5	25 .
	Maccabi Rishon	10	5	25
•	Hepcel Galil Elyon	9	8	24
	Haposi Safed	7	8	22
	Happed Tel Aviv	. 8	9	21 .
	Happeel Eilet	5	. 10	20
•	Hapoel Holon	5	9	19
	Maccabi Jerusalem	4	11	19
	Maccabi Ramat Gan	4	11	19 .
	Hapoel Gvat	2	13	17
_

Childs sparks New Jersey	over New '	York
--------------------------	------------	------

EAST RUTHERFORD, NJ (AP) Chris Childs scored five points in the final 52 seconds and made a steal to set up two go-ahead free throws by Armon Gilliam as New Jersey rallied to beat the New York Knicks 82-77 Saturday night. The Nets scored the final 10 points and held the Knicks scoreless for 2:24 in winning their third straight game, which matches their season high.

All three wins have come since the end of the All-Star break against quality teams, including two against Indiana.

The loss was only the third in the last 10 games for New York. all on the road.

Patrick Ewing had 19 points for New York, Derek Harper 16 and

Anthony Mason 15. Magic 95, Heat 93 Rex Chapman of host Miami missed two free throws with 2.1 seconds left, allowing Orlando to break a four-game road losing streak.

Shaquille O'Neal scored 31 points and even made

FLYING HIGH - Philadelphia's Vernon Maxwell goes for the hoop as Cleveland's John Crotty looks on.

host Detroit sent Toronto to its 18th loss in 19 games against divisional

The game was preceded by a 65minute ceremony to retire the uniform No. 11 worn by former Pistons captain and current Raptors general manager

Isiah Thomas. Detroit led 53-46 at the helf and broke the game open with a 16-2 run early in the third.

The Pistons led by as many 22 in the period before Alvin Robertson led a 10-point run that helped Toronto pull to 80-66 with 12 minutes to play.

The comeback ended as Michael Curry hit a 3-pointer then added a dunk to put Detroit ahead 87-68 with 10:03 to play. Grant Hill added 27 points for Detroit and Joe Dumars had 12 points and 14 assists. Clippers 100, Trail Blazers 96 Host Los Angeles ended its nine-game losing streak, getting 22 points from Loy Vaugin and 20 from Rodaey Rogers in a victory over Portland.

SATURDAY'S RESULTS: New Jersey 82, New York 77 Orlando 95, Miani 93 Cleveland 97, Philadelphia 82 Detroit 108, Toronto 95 L.A. Clippers 100, Portland 96

EASTERN CONFERENCE

725 -21 15 10 29 31 _380 Central Divis Chicago could not faze Cantona who minute left-foot volley from Lee Sharpe gave Manchester United a stepped up and smacked home his 2-1 win over Manchester City in a 10th goal of the season past thrilling FA Cup fifth round derby Immel. match yesterday to keep United Ryan Giggs and overlapping defeoder Philip Neville set up the on course for a third successive wincer for United, who won the Cup in 1994 and were beateo by final appearance. German striker Uwe Rosler put Manchester City into a 1-0 lead wheo he chipped United's Danish goalkeeper Peter Schmeichel after only 11 mioutes as City searched for their first wio at Old Trafford

LONDON (Reuter) - A 77th

Everton last year, with Neville crossing perfectly for Sharpe to crack the ball home first time. Earlier yesterday. Liverpool breezed past Second Shrewshury 4-0 in a fourth round tie, yet it took a 70th minute own goal to turn the match firmly their The win took Liverpool into a a fifth round home tie against First Division title contenders Charlton Athletic on February 28. Shrewsbury went into the twicepostpooed game at their Gay Meadow home seeking a result to match their giant-killing triumph over Manchester City in 1979, but their chances were virtually stran-

Liverpool took time to build on its early boost and Shrewshury briefly threatened early in the second half before the Premier eighth-minute goal.

gled at hirth by Stan Collymore's

League aristocrats finally produced a semblance of the ruthless-ness that destroyed Rochdale 7-0 in round three. A Dave Walton own goal gave them some welcome breathing space in the 70th minute. alton turned for 22 years.

But the fates turned against City in the 38th minute after they had largely dominated the first half.

After City's German goalie Eike Immel had made an outstanding save for a corner, their new German defender Michael Frontzeck held down Eric Cantona right in front of the referce from the ensuing comer kick. Although neither man seemed to be interfering with play, the referee stunned most of Old Trafford

RATES

DAY (package) - NIS 234.00 for 10 words (mlnimum),each additional word - NIS 23.40.

then compounded his anguish five minutes later when he gave the ball away on the edge of the box to Robbie Fowler, who rounded keeper Paul Edwards and practically walked in his 26th goal of the season. It was not until four minutes from time that Jason McAteer finished off a more Liverpool-like goal after Collymore and Steve McManaman had provided the build-up.

SSIFIEDS

KIKAR-MEDINA, 4 + terrace. Ramet Aviv Gimmel, 4 , very high standard. YAEL REALTOR (Maldan) Tel. 03-642-6253.

DWELLINGS

Sharon Area

RENTALS

HERZLIYA PITUAH NEAR sas front, unfumished, 4 bedroom cottage, central alr conditioning, immadiate. MORAN PEAL ESTATE Tel. 09-572-759.

HERZLIYA PITUAH, CHARMING HOUSE, 3.5 small bedrooms, 2 bath-nooms, very quiet area, garden, $2,200. II-tam Real Estate, 09-589611.

SALES

UNIOUE COTTAGE IN Tal Mond, 9 bedrooms, 500 sq.m. lot. Tel. 09-967-276.

DWELLINGS

Halta and North

SALES

CAESAREA, NEW HOUSE for sale, al-most 300 meters built on 550 meters of land, corner, beautiful, enclosed parking, near the golf course, available 4/96.

DWELLINGS

HOLIDAY RENTALS

SCOREBOARD

CL

SATURDAY'S NHL RESULTS: NY Islanders 4, San Jose 2; Hartford 2, Buffalo 1 (OT); Tampa Bay 5, Philadelphia 2; NY Rangers 2, Ottawa 1 (OT); Montreal S, Calgary 1; Boston 4, Vancouver 1; Anaheim 2, Los Angeles I (OT).

GERMAN COLONY- (ITALIAN CO-LONY) Locury, 2-5 rooms, furnished/un-furnished, Long term possibla. "Israbuild" a Phil B six consecutive free throws in the secheader past his own keeper and ond half. Mourning has scored 35 and 33 in his past two games against O'Neal but missed 16 of 27 shots this time before fouling out with two minutes left.

Cavaliers 97, 76ers 82 Host Cleveland extended the NBA's longest current winning streak to seven games, beating Philadelphia behind 25 points from Terrell Brandon.

Brandun, who also had nine assists, was one of six Cavs who scored in double figures.

Verion Maxwell scored 26 and Jerry Stackbouse 22 for the Sixers, losers of three straight and 14 of their last 17 games.

Philadelphia has lost 20 of its last 21 meetings with Cleveland, includ-

SERVICES

Tel Aviv

HEALTH

FOR HEALTHY BODY & a happy mind, have a professional massage or shlalsu. Tel. 03-5602328.

COMPUTERS

Jerusalem

FOR SALE

GREAT BARGAIN. MACINTOSH SEI

30 + modern + HP inkjet prinker, Fast '030 processor, latest system, Eng/Heb w/ soft-ware, Tel. 02-865-247 IS.

SITUATIONS VACANT

Jarusalem

SALES PERSONNEL

WANTED: MARKETING/SALES PEO-

PLE for exclusive product, salary + com-mission. (02) 652-1111 Michal

SITUATIONS VACANT

Tel Aviv

HOUSEHOLD HELP

FORGET THE RESTIL We are the best!! The biggest and oldest agency in Israel. For the highest quality ine-in jobs phone Au Pair international. 03-6190423.

oo 3-for-14 shooting, nine rebounds and five assists in 37 minutes. Denrick Coleman returned for the

Atlanta Detroit Pistons 108, Raptors 95 Allan Houston scored 29 points an

Knicks trade Christie, Williams

The New York Knicks continued to ashape their roster and en The New York Kiness counties to insulap-later to as reason yesteration of the salary cap mancuverability for next season yesteration of the pleting a four-player trade with the Toronto Raphins. The deal sends Doug Christie and First Williams to the Kennel in exchange for Willie Anderson and Victor Alexander in the Kennel in the season in the second major hade in 10 days for the Kennel is swapped Charles Smith and Monty Williams to San Andres in the before last week's All-Star game, acquiring TR. Reid: Bedde of the second in the second major the second in t and a No. 1 draft choice from the Spring

T) -	Cleveland	29	. 20	1.592	15%
is '	Atlanta:	27-25	223	- 551.	17% 19-Charlotte Milwaukee	24	25	,490	201/2 25
đ	Toronto	• • 14	36	280	31
_	WESTE	FIN CO	ONFE	RENC	E .
	and a second	tweet	Divis	ion
-		w	L	Pct	GB
	Utah	34	16	.680	-
	San Antonio	32	. 16	.667	1
£.	Houston	38	18		11/2
	Denver	20	30	.400	14
	Datas	16	33	.326	171/2
2	Minnesota	14	34	292	19
	Vancouver	11	38	224	221-2
3	Pa	relfic E
8	Seattle	37	12	.755
1	LA Lekers	30	19	.612	7
¥.,	Secramento .	24	23	.511	12
× .	Portiand	24	27	.471	14
2	Phoenix	23	26	.469	14
1	Golden State	23	27	.460	141/2
	LA. Clippers	17	33	.340	201/2
Ξ.

Travis Knight had 12 points and 10 rebounds for UConn. but

A.

UConn takes all the fight out of the Irish

OFFICE STAFF

STORRS, Conn. (AP) - Third-AMERICAN COSMETIC COMPANY, In Tel Aviv, seeking secretary, Typing, composing letters in English required. Send resume to Fax. 09-564-861. ranked Connecticut simply wore down Notre Dame until there was Irish.

afternoon.

Four.

TYPIST: ENGLISH MOTHER tongus spoken Hebrew, pretensity knowledge of Clear for Tel Aviv Hi-Tech company 8:30-17:00. Send CV to Mandel, Rehov Ye-hoshua Ben Nun 51, Tel Aviv 62745

FIRST-CLASS ENGLISH TYPIST. "WORD", lawyers office, 7:30 am - 3:30 pm. Tel. 03-5242119,

SITUATIONS VACANT

Tel Aviv

ing the last seven.

76ers after missing six weeks because of a sprained ankle. He had 10 points

Interesting position in well known company for young go-ahead SECRETARY With spoken Hebrew. Word processing essential. Call Orli 03-5270925 KEDUMIM PERSONNEL

Jerusalem ARIE PALOGE - OUALITY CARS:

no fighting left in the Fighting After a slow start, the Huskies turned up the pressure and turned around the game, taking com-mand with a 12-0 run and never

relinquishing cootrol on the way to an 85-65 victory on Saturday SATURDAY'S RESULTS: No. 1 UMass 74, No. 10 Virginia Tech 58 7 No. 2 Kentucky 90, Tennetsee 50 No. 3 Connecticut 85, Notre Dame 65 No. 4 Villanova 67, Pittsburgh 64 No. 5 Kansas 61, No. 22 Jowa State 50 No. 6 Cincinnati 87, DePaul 60 No. 7 Utab 88, San Diego State 74 Georgia Tech 64, No. 8 Wales Forest 63 No. 11 Purdue 66, No. 9 Penn State 49 No. 12 Texas Tech 93, Houston 84 No. 13 Arizona 86, USC 72 Ray Allen scored 28 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and had three of UConn's season-high 13 blocks as UConn (24-1, 14-0 Big East) extended its winning streak Connecticut also matched the

No. 13 Arizona 86, USC 72 No. 14 Georgetowa 81, No. 15 Memphis 68 No. 17 North Carolina 71, Virginia 66 No. 18 UCLA 87, Arizona State 70 na Sta No. 10 UCLA 57, Arizona State 70 Oregon 64, No. 20 Stanford 62 No. 21 Bettor Call 79, Printford 68 (07) No. 23 E. Michigan 91, Ball State 75 Ministry 71, No. 25 Ministry St. 54 joined Villanova and Georgetown io the NCAA tournament's Final

TENNIS BRIEFS

Halard beats Majoli in Paris Open June Halard of France upset top-seeded Iva Majoli, 75, 7-6(7-4) in the final of the Paris Open yesterday to stop the Croatian's bid for a second consecutive tournament victory. It was the sixth career this for the French woman and second of the year, winning in Hobart, Australia, in Janatiry. Reuter

Agassi, Sampras in Sybase finals

Andre Agassi delivered his end of the deal, setting up a match with Pete Sampras for tennis' No. 1 ranking with a 6-2, 5-7, 6-4 victory over Michael Chang in the Sybase Open semifinals Saturday night

Sampras, who beat Jan Kroslak 7-6(8-6), 6-3 in the other semifinal, and Agassi played late last night to determine the world No. 1 ranking. Sampras began 1996 as No. 1, A'gassi took it over on January 29 and then lost it on February 12 to Thomas Muster, who lost a first-round match last week in the Dubai Open. ÁP

DWELLINGS General SALES FOR SERIOUS: NORTH, new, 5, 150 sq.m., architectural design, immediate. WHERE TO STAY JERUSALEN LODGES LTD. * Short sq.m., archite 03-8993472 term rentals " Bed and breakfast * P.O.Box 4233, Jerusalem 81044. Tel. 02-611745, EXCLUSIVE! OPERA TOWERI 2, high, impressive sea view, KAV HAYAM, Tel. 03-523-9988. DWELLINGS

Outside Israel

HOLIDAY RENTALS

HOLIDAY APARTMENTS IN EU-ROPE, main cities and holiday resorts. Ideal for families. Tel/Fax 02-767692 DWELLINGS

Jerusalem

RENTALS

MUSRARA 3 ROOMS fully furnished, ed. Tel 02-860426

REHAVIA, 4 + DINING AREA (WOLF-SON), immediate, long-tarm, $1100. Keys at Ma'ayan Properties, Tel. 02-236656.

PRICES ARE AS FOLLOWS - All rates include VAT: Single Weekday - NIS 99,45 for 10 words SALES (minimum), each additional word NIS 9,94 FRICAY ANO HOLLOAY EVE - NIS 152.10 10 words (minimum), each addi-tional word NIS 15.21. MONOAY, WEDNESDAY and FRI-ITALIAN COLONY- Hildesheimer Hats-fira Street, luxury apartments, 4-5, balco-nies, besement, garden, parking. Tel. 02-617866, 02-666571. REHAVIA, 5, GROUND FLOOR, im-madiate antry. Tel. 09-7653959; 02-233228

DWELLINGS

Tel Aviv

23.40. WEEK RATE (6 insertions) - NIS 315.90 for 10 words (minimum), each additional word - NIS 31.59. FOUR FRIOAYS (packaga) - NIS 409.50 for 10 words (minimum), each ad-ditional word - NIS 40.95. MONTHLY (24 insertions) - NIS 643.50 for 10 words (minimum), each additional word - NIS 64.35. Rates are valid until 31.5.93. RENTALS NORTH, 3, LUXURIOUS, fully fur-nished, Tel. 03-523-7918, 03-6990150.

Tel 02-666571

DEADLINES offices: Jerusalem - weekdays: 12 noon the day before publication; for Friday and Sunday: EXCLUSIVE! ARNON 4. large. vated, quiat, $1100. "KAV HAYAM" 03-6 p.m. on Thursday. Tal Avity and Halfa - waakdaya: 12 noon, 2 days before publication; for Friday and Sunday: 4 p.m. Thursday in Tel Aviv and 12 noon Thursday in Haifa.

NEVE TZEDEKII NEW cottage, empty, 5 + terrace + view. Immediate, $1.7001 Tel. 03-544-0204.

RAMAT GAN, 4, new luxury building, pool $1,200 month. Tel. 02-632-192.

Ellat and South

TEL 06-343777

EVES. IS. 4, LUXURIOUS, + expensive contents, elevator + parking, ground floor, (munici-pality) "Girsh" 03-5444331

RAMAT AVIV, 41/2, view, high floor, elevator, parking, 5410.000. Yael Realtor, 03-6426253. (Maldan).

EXCLUSIVE! EXCELLENT for invest-mentil 2 apartments, divided. Renovated, furnished completely. KAV-HAYAM. Tal. 03-523-9968.

FOR THE SOPHISTICATED only! North Tel Avivil Fantastic penthouse!! 460 sq.m. on one level + 280 sq.m. Roof apt. designed to the highest standardsli KAV HAYAM Tel. 03-523-9988.

EXCLUSIVEI GAN HA'(R TOWER, 257 sq.m. high, decorated, " KAV HAYAM" TEL. 03-5239688.

BUSINESS OFFERS Jerusalam BUS. PREMISES

FOR SALE: BAGUETTE shop in Geula. Great "parnessa". Tal. 02-383-980, 02-384-476(Rami).

.

IMMEOIATE! PERMANENT POSt-TION in bank as SWIFT operator, Eng-lish, Tel. 03-S164933.

to 23 games. best start in the Big East to this point. SL John's began 14-0 in VEHICLES 1984-85, the memorable year it buying, selling, leasing, tradi 02-6523735, 050-240977.

PASSPORT

1994 SUBARU, EXCELLENT condi-lion, one owner, NIS 38,000, tel 02-248847 (day)02-246920 (evening)

VEHICLES Sharon Area

PASSPORT

ALFA ROMEO 146, 1995, guaranteed 2.5 years, 5,500km, loaded, Tel 09-771-0318.

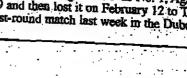

......

Equipment for making concrete blocks and interlocking building stones - machines and materials.

in California

Tel. 07-710255, 050-203661 - Shaud M

For Sale

Jericolico

proved more trooblesome to Notre Dame with a season-high seven blocks. Kirk King added 13 points and Dorou Sheffer had 10 ; points for the Huskies. TOP 25 COLLEGE HOOPS ATURDAY'S RESULTS:

The Jerusalem Post Monday, February 19, 1996

CRITIC'S CHOICE

. • •

r,

, s

 $\langle n \rangle_{i}$

. 1 - 1

1 1 1 1 40

THEATER HELEN KAYE

ENGLISH

DO scienosts have a moral responsibility to the society in which they work, asks Friedrich Dürrenman in his very black comedy The Physicists. The Tel Aviv Community Theater production directed by newcomer Yvonne Both will try to answer this question, from tomorrow and through Thursday at Yad Labanim at 8:30 p.m.

CLASSICAL MUSIC

MICHAEL AJZENSTADT

TENOR Christoph Homberger opens a week of numerous vocal music concerts tomorrow night at the Tel Aviv Museum (8:30) presenting Schubert's captivating song cycle "Die Schöne Müllerin" with Ulrich Koelle at the piano.

On Saturday, st 5:30, at the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra's guest house in Ramat Aviv, the two perform Schubert's Winterreise. Next Sunday and Tuesday Homberger joins the . IPO in a choral program featur-

 $\mathcal{L}_{\mathcal{L}}$

僃

I. C.

220

:,÷

- - 1

- 1

2 . 1

. • • 7 . 3

V

. 1

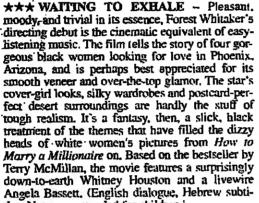

ing music by Vivaldi and Rossini.

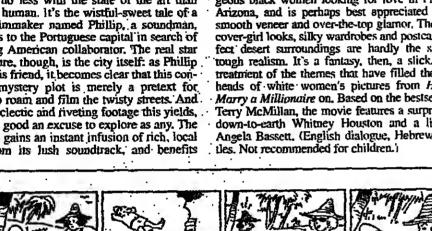

Also at the Tel Aviv Museum this week, pranist Natasha Tadson, violinist Andrei Kubliansky and cellist Oleg Stolpher perform trios by Beethoven and Schubert, Saturday (8:30).

FILM

ADINA HOFFMAN .

* LISBON STORY - Like all Wim Wenders's films, this is e moviemaker's movie, concerned no less with the state of the art than with being human. It's the wistful-sweet tale of a German filmmaker named Phillip, a soundman, who travels to the Portuguese capital in search of his missing American collaborator. The real star of the picture, though, is the city itself: as Phillip . hunts for his friend, it becomes clear that this conventional mystery plot is merely a pretext for Wenders to roam and film the twisty streets. And . given the eclectic and riveting footage this yields, . it seems as good an excuse to explore as any. The movie also gains an instant infusion of rich, local feeling from its lush soundtrack, and benefits for children.)

WHAT'S ON

TELEVISION

CHANNEL 1

6:30 News 6:45 Exercise Hour 7:00 Good Morning Israel

EDUCATIONAL TV

8:00 Ravolutions in the Modern World 8:30 Reading 8:45 Natural Science 9:00 Nature 9:10 Music 9:26 Young childran's programs 10:00 On Second Thoughts ~ mar-10:00 On Second (noughis ~ mar-keting the self and public relations 10:30 Science and Technology 10:50 English 11:10 History 11:40 English 12:05 Physical Geography 12:15 Society 12:50 Tolerance 13:30 Stories about animals 13:40 Our Friends - an animals 13:40 Our Friands - new animated series 13:45 Kitty Cat and Tommy 14:00 A Thousand and One Americas 14:25 Mother Goose 15:00 Autoto

CHANNEL 1

15:32 Land Without Tima 15:55 Model School 16:20 At The Tip of the Brush - new series on art, styles. movements, and painters 16:59 A New Evening 17:35 Zaplot to Hosting 18:15 News in English ARABIC PROGRAMS 18:30 Sport magazine 19:00 News

18:30 Every Evening with Merav Michaeli 20:00 News 20:45 Popolitica 22:00 Sanderson - comedv 23:00 Backtrack - with Ehud anor 23:30 News magazine 00:00

13:00 Talking About It - Danny Roup talks to people with interesting stones 14:00 All for One - adventure series about a co-ed footbail team 14:30 Tick Tack 15:00 Pinocchio – with Hebrew dubbing 15:30 Dreams with Uzi Hitman 16:00 The Bold and the Beautiful 17:00 News magazine with Rafi Reshet 17:30 A Matter of Time drama tor youth 18:00 Santa Barbara soap opera 19:00 Baywatch 20:00
News 20:30 It's a Deal – game show
21:05 Zehu Zeh – comedy 21:40 Dan
Shilon live 23:16 Sirans – police drama serias 00:00 News 00:05 Sirens (continued) 00:20 Studs – dat-ing game 00:45 Starsky and Hutch – police series 01:35 Settle the Score (1989) – suspensa drama with Jacqueline Smith and Howard Duff 03:05 Poem of the Day

10:00 Sinbad - cartoon 10:55 The

WHERE TO GO

NIS23,08 per line, including VAT, Insertion every day of the month costs NIS520,65 per line, including VAT, per

JERUSALEM

Conducted Tours HEBREW UNIVERSITY, Tours of the Mount Scopus campus, in English, daily Sun-Thur., 11 a.m. from Broniman Reception Centre, Sherman Administration Bidg, Buses 4a, 9, 23, 26, 28, For Info, call 862319, HADASSAH, Visit the Hadassah Install-Name Changel Withows Tol Conditional Conducted Tours

TEL AVIV

Crystal Maze 11:45 The Bob Mornson Show 12:10 Movie: Gun Smoke, starring James Ames5 and James Bielin 13:40 Circus 14:10 The Ronn Lucas Show 14:35 Thunder Alley 15:00 Huli High -musical drama 15:00 Movie: Taking Care of Business, starring James Belushi and Charles Grodin 17:00 French Programs 19:30 News Headlines 19:35 The Good Life comedy 20:00 Give Us a Clue 20:30 Mini series, Black Fox, starting Christopher Reeve and Raoul Trujillo 22:00 News in English 22:25 Murphy Biown 22:50 Movie: Onoinal Intent. starring Martin Shaen and Kris Knstoffarson 00:45 Tapestry Revisied. A Tribute to Carole King

局 MIDDLE EAST TV

14:00 The 700 Club 14:55 Film 16:30 Moomins 16:55 Heathcliff 16:30 Moomins 16:55 Heathchi 17:20 Inspector Gadgel 17:45 Supercook 18:10 Snowy River 19:10 Magnum P.I. 20:30 World News Tornght (Arabic) 20:30 CNN Headline News 21:00 The Bitt Cosby Shov: 21:30 Diagnosis Murder 22:20 A Quest 23:10 700 Club 00:00 Special Program

CABLE

E FAMILY CHANNEL (3)

B:00 Falcon Crest 9:00 One Life to Live 8:45 The Young and the Restlass 10:30 Second Time Around Restlass 10:30 Second Time Around 10:56 Not Far From Homa 11:25 Celeste 12:10 Neighbors 12:35 Perry Mason 13:30 Starting at 1:30 14:05 The Trials of Rosie O'Neilt 14:55 Falcon Crest 15:45 ENG 16:40 Neighbors 17:10 Antonella 18:00 One Life to Live 18:45 Tha Young and The Restless 19:30 Local broadcast 20:00 Celeste 20:50 Married with Children 21.15 Nanny comady 21:40 Mad About You 22:05 Fraser - comedy 22:30 Liberated Fraser - comedy 22:30 Liberated Woman 22:50 The Office 22:50 Mad about you 23:45 Sisters 00:35 Counter Chensive 1:25 Knots Landino

MOVIE CHANNEL (4)

10:30 Murder C.O.D. (1950) -sophisticaled hit man overhears a marital ergument concerning the civision of property and decides to murder the husband (91 mins.) 12:10 The General (1926) - classic Buster Keeton comedy set during the American Civil War about sol-diers from the south who steal a Irain, (76 mins.) 13:25 See the Stars 14:15 Street of Dreams (1988) -suspense drama with Morgan Fairchild and Ben Masiers. Simpleminded private eye falls in love with mysterious woman while on a case. (90 mins.) 15:50 Red King White Knight (1989) - Tom Skemitt stars in this Cold War drama as en American intelligence agent sent to eliminale a killer planning to assassinate a Soviet leader (100 mins.) 17:35 Soviet leader (100 mins.) 1735 Nightmare (1991) - suspense drama about a girl who trames the man who kichaps and threatens her. When he is released from jail the real night-mare begins. Starring Victorta Principal and Jonathan Banks (90 mins.) 19:10 The Passage (1987) drama set in the Roaring Twenties about a beautiful young woman from a wealthy family who falls in love with a laborer against har father's wishes. (102 mins.) 21:00 Dance with a Stranger (1995) - British drama based on the life of Ruth Ellis, the last woman to be executed in Britain (97 mins.) 22:40 My First Love (1988) - romantic comedy about a widow who, to the great dismay of her friends, seeks cut her college swaethaari after many years. Starring Beatrice Arthur, Richard Kelly and Joan Van Ark (89 mins.) 00:15 Inside Monkey Zatterland

7:30, 10 TEL AVIV MUSEUM =

6931297 27 Shaul Hamelakh Boulevard Chungking Express 5, 8, 10 HAIFA CINEMA CAFÉ AMANI © 325755 The

GINEMA CAFE AMANII © 325755 The Bridges of Madison County 9:15 * Smoke 7:15, 9:15 * Haunted Soul 7 ATZMON 1-5 © 673003 Fair Game@Jade@Sudden Oesth 4:30. 7, 9:15* Show Girls 4:30, 7, 9:15 * Heat 6:15, 9:15 CINEMA CAFE MORIAH © 2003/77 Same Bella 7:20, 0:20 Cibi

± 242477 Senza Pelle 7:30, 9:30 CIN-EMATHEQUE Blade Runner 7 *

Close Encounters of the Third Kind 920 ORLY Waiting to Exhate 7, 9:15 PANORAMA 1-3 = 382020 American

PANORAMA 1-3 * 382020 American President@Home for the Holidays 4:30, 7.9:30 * Something to Talk About 4:30, 7 * White Men's Burden 9:30 RAV-GAT 1-2 * 674311 | The Crossing Guard@Money Train 4:45, 7, 9:15 RAV-MOR 1-7 * 8416893/6 [OS] Seven 4:30, 7, 9:15 * White Man's Burden@The Usual Suspects 4:45, 7, 9:16 * Dangerous Minds 4:45, 7, 9:15 * The Crossing Guard 4:45, 7, 9:15 *

(1992) - comedy set in L.A. about a young Jewish comedian who attempts to get his career off the ground while dealing with his eccenmc lamily and crazy friends. Starring Patricia Arquette, Sandra Bemhard and Bo Hopkins. (88 mins.) 1:45 Judgemeni Day: John List (1993) -psychological cliffhangar based on the true story of John List, the psy-chotic killer who murdered his wife cholic killer who murdered his and three children (93 mins.)

G CHILDREN (6)

6:30 Cartoons 8:05 The Magical World of Dinosaurs 8:30 White Fang 9:00 The Smalt University 9:05 Encyclopedia 9:40 Heart 10:15 Encyclopedia 5.40 rean 10.15 Punky Brewsler 10:45 Lois and Ctark 11:45 Loony Toons 12:00 Saved by the Bett 12:30 Hugo 13:00 Surprise Garden 13:35 Alvin and the Chipmunks 14:00 Detective Boogie 14:35 Once Upon a Time 15:10 Heart 15:45 Family Ties 16:15 Black Stallior. 16:35 Ocean Girl 17:15 Loony Toons 17:30 Saved by tha Bett 18:00 Hugo 18:35 White Fang 19:00 The Magical World of Dinosaurs 19:30 Three's Company 20:00 Married with Children 20:25 Family Ties 20:55 Mork and Mindy 21:25 Cheers Chipmunks 14:00 Detective Boogle

SECOND SHOWING (6)

22:00 Le Cri du Hibou (1987) - suspense film by the French director Clauda Chabriol abcut a peeping Tom infatuated with a young married woman (104 mins.) 23:50 The Adventures of Tom Savyer (1938) - based on the Merk Twain novel with Tommy Kelly es Tom (74 mins.)

DISCOVERY (8)

6:00 Open University: Management, Marketing and Economics 12:00 Human Nature 13:00 Beyond 2000 14:00 Open University 16:00 Human Nature 17:00 Beyond 2000 18:00 Open University 20:00 Balance of Nature 21:00 China, The Awakening Dragon 22:00 Nice Guys Finish Last 02:00 Balance of Nature 23:00 Balance of Nature

3 ITV 3 (33)

17:00 Cartoons 17:30 Haram Alak 16:30 Panorama with Zaidan Atshe 19:00 News in Arabic 19:30 Songs Wa Loved 20:00 Mabat News 20:45 Opening Shots - series about talented young exponents in all fields of art 21.15 T-Bone and Weasel (1992) starring Gregory Hines and Ned Beatty, Following his release from prison, T-Bona looks up Weasel, a Peatty. loser who rents rooms to ex-cons. T-Bone persuades him to join him in a ries of bank robberies (89 mins.) 00:00 Clasedown

Ø ETV 2 (23)

15:30 Hey Dad 16:00 Math enrich-ment 17:00 At the Bottom of the Sea With Delphi 17:30 Time Out 18:00 The Herodian Kingdom 18:30 Family Relations 19:00 Basic Arabic 19:30 Betore incuction - program about army service 20:00 A New Evening (with Russian subtitles) 20:30 Preparation for Bagrut 21:00 Medicine Demystified 21:30 Korea -The Unknown War 22:30 Spirited The Unknown War 22:30 Spinted

B SUPER CHANNEL

6:00 The Selina Scott Show 7:00 Europe 2000 7:30 ITN News 8:00 The Today Show 10:00 Super Shop 11:00 European Money Wheel 15:30 The Squawk Box 17:00 Portrait of

11

3 ict

ve

ng of 36-

លដ

the

at.

.ed

the ന)-

115.

ges ion

jed

last cu-

last susis,

en-

ing

-

r

3d." oth-

dice

'hen

the cest-

s to airs

atice

the who aint.

ation

tion.

d hy

and ibers

eave fairs

imor

n as relat-

took

រណាប

6:00 Bevarly Hillbillies 6:30 Look and Cock 7:00 Video Fashion Monthly 7:30 Gabrielle 8:30 Santa Barbara 9:30 The Bold and the Beautiful 10:00 Oprah Winlrey 11:00 Remington Sleels 12:00 Look and Cook 12:30 Video Fashion News 13:00 Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles 13:30 Small Wonder 14:00 The Black Stallion 14:30 Batman 15:00 15:30 Home and Away 15:30 Entanament Tonight 16:00 M*A*S*H 18:30 Inspector Morse Mystery Movies 18:30 The Bold and the Beautiful 19:00 Sania Barbara 20:00 Hard Copy Star Trek 20:30 Hearts Afire 21:00 Grace Under Fire 21:30 Bamaby Jones 22:30 Entertainment Tonight 23:00 Oprah Wintrey 00:00 Hard Copy 00:30 Home and Away 1:00 The Sullivans

CHANNEL 5

STAR PLUS

6:30 Bodies in motion 7:30 Basic Training 16:00 Bodies in motion 16:30 NBA action 17:00 Horse Show in Ramat Hasharon 17:30 College Basketball 18:45 South Amarican basketball 19:45 Name of the Gama 22:30 Premiar teague soccar roundup 23:30 Collage Basketball 00:30 National Volleyball leagua

EUROSPORT

9:30 Motorsports Magazine 10:30 Alpine Skiing 14:45 Boxing 15:45 ATP Tennis 17:15 Alpine Skiing Skiing 19:30 Alphe Skiing 19:30 Motorsports Magazine 20:30 Eurogoals 21:00 Speed world 23:00 Alpine Skiing 23:30 Professional Wrestling 00:00 Eurogoals

PRIME SPORTS

6:00 NBA Basketball 7:30 Asian Sports Show 8:00 Golf 8:30 Baseball magazine 9:00 Triathion 10:30 Metorcycle Racing 11:30 Auto Racing from Florida 15:30 Rugby 17:00 Cricket 18:00 Asian Sports Show 18:30 Cricket 20:30 Golf 21:00 Utindeuring magazine 21:30 21:00 Windsurfing magazine 21:30 Basabali magazine 22:00 Asian Sport magazine 22:30 Cricket 00:30 Motorcycle Racing 01:30 Basebalt megazine 02:00 WWF Wrestling 03:00 Cricket

BBC WORLD

Newa on tha hour 6:00 BBC Nawsday 6:05 The Monay Programme 10:15 Tha Money Programme 11:30 Food and Drink 14:05 Assignment 16:15 World Business Report 16:25 Science for the Future 17:15 The Money Programme 18:30 Time Out: The Clothes Show 19:30 Tomorrow's World 22:05 Tha Money Programme 23:30 Holiday 00:00 BBC World News and Business Report

W VOICE OF MUSIC

lfare 6:06 Morning Concert 9:05 Sibelius: the 6 Humoresques for violin and orch; works by Finnish and tsraeli comand id do Signund Romberg: Songs from The Student Ponce, Tha Desert Song. p the New Moon 13:00 Melos Quartet -. times New Moon 13:00 Needs Outlet + Bruckner: Quintel in F for strings (with Santiago), Intermezzo in D minor for strings 14:06 Encore 15:00 Cycle of Works – Beethoven's plano fered opted sonatas 16:00 Early music 17:00 Etnahta - live broadcast from Henry n Crown Auditonium, Jerusalem. Ne Israeli Wind Quintet - Eyal Ein n Habar (tlute), David Carmel (obo8), Chen Halevi (clarinel), Mauricio Paez (bassoon), Hezi Nir (hom), with Bloch and Dvorak 21:00 A Matter of Agreement 23:00 Just Jazz escue t July. ontrol LOD STAR Sudden Death 7:15, 9:45 * Oasperado 7:15, 9:45 * The Uaual Suspect 7:15, 9:45 * The Invisible Kid 5 UPPER NAZARETH G.G. GIL Fair Game@Home for the H o I I d a y a \oplus D a ng e r o u a Minds@Virtuosity@Sudden Death 4:45, 7, 9:30 * Show Giris@Seven 4:30, 7, 9:45 NESS ZIONA G.G. GIL 1-4 = 404729 Heat 4:15, 7, 9:30 * Sudden Death 5, 7:30, 10 * Show Ciris 4:30, 7:15, 10 * Virtuosity 4:30, 7:30, 10:15 NETANYA G.G. GIL 1-5 = 628452 Heat 4:15, 7, 9:30 * Virtuosity 4:30, 7:30, 10:15 * American President 10 * Fair Game 5, 7:30 * Virtuosity 4:30, 7:30, 10:15 * Sudden Death 5, 7:30, 10 RAV CHEN The Crossing Guard 5, 7:30, 8:45 * Seven 9:45 * Money Train@Dangerous Minds 5, 7:30, 9:45 * II Postino 5, 7:30 OR AKIVA RAV CHEN Fair Geme@Money Train@American President 7, 9:30 OR YEHUDA G.G. GIL Virtuosity@Smoke 5, 7:30, 10 * Show Girls 4:50, 7:15, 10 * Seven 4:45, 7:15, 10 > new crease) fireime of ysical nent's 1. She which essive ution. raised word5 rious-S ٧ ives [4:45, 7:15, 10 PETAH TIKVA G.G. HECHAL Heat 4:15, 7, 9:30 * Virtuosity 4:30, 7:30, 10:15 * Show Gits 4:30, 7:15, 10 G.G. RAM 1-3 * rа 18. 9340816 America 9340816 American President@Dangerous Minds@Sudden Death 5, 7:30, 10 RA'ANANA PARK Money Train 7:15, 10:15 * Hast 7, 9:30 * Blue in the Face 6:30 * Sevan 7:45, 10:15 * Virtuosity 8 * Show Girls 10:15 * Desperado 5, 10:15 * Clueless 5 * Father of tha Brida II 5 * Dangerous Minds 5 * An Indian In the Cupboard 5 * Virtuosity 8 RAMAT GAN RAV-GAN 1-4 * 6197121 The Crossing Guard 5, 7:30, 9:45 * Dangerous Minds 7, 7:30, 9:45 * Dangerous Minds 7:30, 9:45 * Show Girls 4:45, 7:15, 9:45 REHOVOT CHEN 1-4 = 362864 Heat 7, 9:30 * Dangerous Minds 7:30 * Seven 10 * Data 1-5 = 9619659 Show Girls 4:30, 7:15, 10 * Suddan Data 1-5 = 9619659 Show Girls 4:30, 7:15, 10 * Suddan IDS: President@Dangerous Minds@Sudda Γ. ж, ing ning ome /ered ife λ. ١g GAL 1-5 = 9619669 Show Girls 4:30, 7:15, 10 * Suddan Destrið Virtuosity@American President 5.7:30, 10 * Seven 5, 7:30, 10 HAZA-HAV Fair Game 4:30, 7:30, 9:45 * The Usual Suspects 9:45 * Father of the Bride II 5 * Dangerous Minds 5, 7:30 STAR 1-4 = 9619985-7 27 Lishinsky St. Money Train 7:30, 10 * Dead Man 282 1212 SIAH 1-4 = 9619985-727 Lishmsky St. Money Train 7:30, 10 ± Dead Man Walking 7:30, 10 ± Lovesick on Nana Streel 7:30, 10 ± Lovesick on Nana Streel 7:30, 10 YEHUD RAV-CHEN Savyonim The Crossing Curved 5 7:20 9:16 ± Denamous Minds Guard 5, 7:30, 9:45 * Dangerous Minds 5, 7:30, 9:45 * The Usual Suapects 9:45 A Money Train 5.7:30. 9:45 * Fether of the Bride II 5.7:30 Phone reservations: Tel Aviv 5252244 Phone reservations: Haita 728878 All times are p.m. unless otherwise in Arabic HEBREW PROGRAMS Sisterhood is powerful in the new film 'Waiting to Exhale.' Varse of tha Dav from the light slapstick that distinguishes so much CHANNEL 2 of the action. As Phillip hops on and off trolleycars with his fuzzy microphone. lopsided smile and hroken leg, he suggests a cheerful, verbal descendent of Buster Keaton in The Cameraman. (German, English and Portuguese dialogue. Hebrew and English subtitles. Not recommended

JORDAN TV

Notices in this feature are charged at tions, Chagall Windows, Tel. 02-416333, 02-776271.

CRYPTIC CROSSWORD

24 W-H-E-A-T? (5)

ACROSS

- 1 In which the fieldfare, say, may be hampered? (6-6) 9 Worker chaent to see Rugby play (4-3) 10 One who instigates some Hindu ceremonies (7) 11 Irishman's first in
- residence, settled (4)
- 12 Cronin's doctor does not begin to purfle (5)
- 13 Try one run over airstrip
- 16 Foreign lady soaring over?
- 17 Cover the wrong wey round on novel? What a
- predicamentl (7) 18 Drinks with bib
- semi-askew (7) 21 Whine about this Roman punk hairstyle_ (7)

25 Prune garnish? (4) 28 Chemical salt approved after dark, we hear (7) 29 Decimal point of extreme force (7) 30 Turn one's head, perhaps, to discover where secret is kept (5,4,3)

DOWN

1 Quiet finish? Not yet decided! (7) 2 Composer, drops in, fell (4) 8 Visitor from Spain, curious to see most unuauel mut-tree (7) 4 Gangster group carrying equipment (7)

5 Team putting spin on the ball (4)

6 Demand to support former 23 ... hard work to Italian (4) wife makes one cry out! (7) 7 One who works with counter-intelligence? (4,9) 8 Possibly the first hlunder or main error (7,6) 14 Do but correct such lack of

38 faith (5) 15 High mark in examination for brightest star (5)

19 Listen to UK composer (7) 20 Drink more, perhaps, as overlord? (7)

21 Feeling of uncase in men in Kuala Lumpur, we hear (7) 22 Nothing in ice-cream wafer

can be put on the head (7) 26 The third man's fruit? (4)

27 University hospitel leaders admit soldiers in this state (4)

SOLUTIONS

CARUE JACKSTRAW O E O O U E E NOCONNE MASCARA I B U O D A C R EVER VICAR AROV N S A N P E DISTINGUISTED S E HI FOO R ANTRODISTED S E HI FOO R ANTRODOMINE O C DACHA CHUT O C U S N A S ROVINSO FELISSE S U S N A T E E TRANCED SUFAR

Yesterday's Quick Solution ACROSS: 1 Maidens, 5 Peach Mufti, 9 Accuser, 10 Aerzied, 11 Dingo, 13 Scotch, 14 Aragon, 17 Alpha, 19 Actuary, 22 Minster, 23 Brink, 24 Nylon, 25 Enthral. DOWN: 1 Stamba, 2 Inferno, 3 Erist, 4 Shandy, 5 Picador, 3 Arnon, 7 Harpoon, 12 Swagman, 13 Chasten, 15 Ginzier, 18 Barrie, 18 Panel, 20 Tibet, 21 YokaL

TPIP	QUICK CROSSWORD
	ACROSSDOWN1 Wild pig (4,3)1 Sea mammal (5)5 Rowing crew (5)2 Ladder in stocking (3)9 Breastbone (7)3 Vacation (7)10 Makeshift, appropriate (9)3 Vacation (7)10 Makeshift, appropriate (9)4 Spurting oil well (6)12 Be in debt (3)5 Make an effort (8)13 Sufferer for a cause (6)7 Storm (7)14 Severe, correct (6)7 Storm (7)15 Doctor junior to a consultant (9)15 Mosaic tile (7)20 Forsake (7)18 Area of high pressure (5)23 Premium Bonds computer (5)19 Bake in oven (5)24 Unyielding (7)22 Beverage (3)

MUSEUMS TEL AVIV MUSEUM OF ART. Micha Bar-Am - The Last War, Photographs. Tiranit Barzilay, 1995. Eight in November Gilksberg, Gross, Reisman, Shelesnyah. Almog, Berest, Gat, David. Pater Brandes Jeaac: Paintings. Prints. Caractic Issac: Paintings. Prints, Ceramic Sculpture. Prize-Winning Art. Yaacov Dorchin - Biockad Well. The Museum Collections. HELENA RUBINSTEIN Collections. HELENA RUBINSTEIN PAVILION FOR CONTEMPORARY ART. A Passion for the New: New Art in Tel Aviv Collections, Hours: Weekdays 10 a.m.6 p.m. Tue. 10 a.m.-10 p.m. Fri. 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Sat. 10 - 3 p.m. Meyerhoff Art Education Center, Tel. 6919155-8. WIZO, To visit our projects call Tal Avv 6923619; Jerusalam 256050; Havia 388817; Jerusalam 256050; Havia

388817. HAIFA WHAT'S ON IN HAIFA, diat 04-374253.

EMERGENCY PHARMACIES

JERUSALEM CINEMATHEOUE Priest 5, 9:30 * You Only Live Once 9:30 G.G. GIL Jerusalam Mall (Malha) * 768448 Virtuosity 4:30, 7:15, 10:15 * Heal 4:15, 7, 9:15 * Clueless 4:45, 7:15 * Something to Taik About 9:45 * Felr Game@American President@Family on Holidzy@Sudden Death 4:45, 7:15, 9:45 * Show Girla 4:30, 7, 8:45 JERUSALEM THEATER A Man of No Importance 7 * Georgia 9:30 RAV CHEN 1-7= 792799 Credit Card Resarvations= 794477 Rav.Mecher Bukding, 19 Ha'Oman St., Talpiol Seven 4:30, 7:15, 9:45 * The Crossing Guard@Blue in the Face@The Usual Suspects@Dangerous Hinda 5, 7:30, 9:45 * Money Train 5, 7:30, 9:45 * Waiting to Exhale 9:45 * Father of the Bride II 5, 7:30 TEL AVIV CINEMATHEQUE Eat, Drink, Man, Woman 5, 7:30, 10 * 81/2 7 * La PTIAHMACIES Jerusalem: Center Pharm, 20 Yad Henutzim, 731475: Belsam. Salah e-Dn, 272315: Shuafat, Shuafai Road, 910108: Dar Aldawa, Heiod'a Gale, 282058. Tel Avhv: Britt, 28 King George, 528-3731: Superpharm, 40 Einstein, Ramat Aviv, Till 3 a.m. Tuesday: Ben-Yehuda, 142 Ben-Yehuda, 522-3535. Till midnight: Superpharm Ramat Aviv, 40 Emstein, 841-3730. Be'anana-Ktar Sava: Avner Gitad, 34 TELAVIV CINEMATHEQUE Eat, Drink, Man, Woman 5, 7:30, 10 ± 81/2 7 ± La Famigita 9:30 DIZENGOFF A Man of No Importance 11 a.m., 1, 3, 5, 7:45, 10 Prizest 11 a.m. + Fresh 3 ± Lisbon Story 1, 5, 7:45, 10 ± Show Girls 11 a.m., 1, 3, 5, 7:45, 10 DPIVE IN Desperado 10 ± Sex Film midnight GAN HA'IR = 5279215 Priscitla 2:30, 5, 7:30, 9:45 GAT The Crossing Guard 5, 7:30, 9:45 GAT The Crossing Guard 5, 7:30, 9:45 GAT The Crossing Guard 5, 7:30, 10 ± Show Girls 11 Unbelievable Truth 6 ± Trust 9 ± Amateur 8 HAKOLNOA Carrington 2, 5, 7:30, 10 ± Cluetess 2, 5, 7:30, 10 ± Home for the Holidays 2, 5, 7:30, 10 ± Cluetess 2, 5, 7:30, 10 LEV 1.4 = 5288288 White Man's Burden 12:15, 2:15, 5, 9, 10 ± Georgia 12, 2, 7:45 ± Farinelli 12, 7:30, 9:45 ± Denise Catls Up 7:45, 10, G.G. PE'ER Heat 4:15, 7, 9:30 ± Home for the Holidays 4:30, 7:30, ± American President 5, 7:30, 10 ± Passover Fever 5, 7:30, 10 RAV-CHEN= 5282288 Dizengolf Center Money Train 5, 7:30, 8:45 ± Seven 4:45, 7:15, 9:45 ± The Usual Suspects 11:30 a.m. 2:30, 5, 7:30, 9:45 ± Dangerous Minds@Father of the Bride II 11:30 a.m. 2:30, 5, 7:30, 9:45 ± Desperado 5, 7:30, RAV-OR 1.5 ± 5102674 Opera House Smokeell Postino@Unstrung Herces@Blue in the Brace 5, 7:30, 9:45 ± Waiting to Exhale 5, 7:15, 9:45 G.G. TAYELET 1-3 ± 51779522 Yona Hanavi St. Something to Talk AboureHaunted Sout@Goldon Eye 7:15, 10 G.G. TEL AVIV # S2511a1 65 Pinsker 8; Sudden Deather Fair Game 5, 7:30, 10 TEL AVIV MUSEUM ± 641.3730. Re'anana-Kfar Sava: Avner Gilad. 34 Weizmann, Kfar Sava, 428826. Netanya: Porat, 76 Petah Tikve. 340967. Krayot area: Niv Ala, 18 Hankin, Kiryai

Ata, 844-1626. Haifa: Balfour, 1 Massada, 862-2289

Herziya: Clai Pharm, Beit Merkazim, 6 Maskit Icnr. Sderol Hagalim). Herziya Pituah, 558472, 558407. Open 9 a.m. lo

Upper Nazareth: Clai Pharm, Lev Ha'ir Mail, 570458. Open 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

DUTY HOSPITALS Jerusalem: Hadassah Ein Keretn (inter-nal, aurgery, orthopedics, ENT): Misgav Ladach (obstetrics); Bikur Holim (cedi-atrics); Shaare Zedek (ophthalmology): Tel Aviv: et Aviv Medical Center (cedi-atrics), Ichilov (intarnal, surgery). letanva: Laniado. 100 POLICE . 102 FIRE FIRST AID 101 PIRST AND Magen David Adom In emergancies dial 101 (Hebrew) or 911 (English) in most parts of the counity. In Ashdoor 551333 Kiar Sava' 902222 Ashdoor 551332 Naharya' 902252 Beersheba' 274767 Natanya' 604444 Ber Stemen 53133 Beth Ticka' 901111 addition: Ashdod 551333 Klar Sova 902222 Ashdod 551333 Nahariya 912233 Beesheba 274767 Netanya 60444 Bee Shemeen 523133 Pethot Tika 901111 Dan Region 573333 Pethot Tika 901111 Dan Region 573333 Pethota 451333 Ekit 322444 Riston 5642533 Jansalam 523133 Sated 920333 Jansalam 523133 Tel Avri 5460111 Kamiel 8065444 Tabonas 192444 Mobile Intensive Care Unit (MICU) sorvice in the area, around the clock.

Medical help for tourists (in English) 177-022-9110 Tha National Poison Control Center at Rambern Hospital 04-8529205, for entergency calls 24 hours a day, for information in case of poisoning. Eran - Emotional First Aid. Jorusalem Eran ~ Emotional First Ald. Jerusalem 610303, Tel Aviv 5481111 (children youth 6961113), Haita 8672222/3, Beersheba 281128, Netanya 625110, Karmiel 9988410, Klar Sava 7674555, Hadera 346789.

Wizo hottines for battered women 02-6514111, 03-5461133 (also in Russian), 07-376310, 08-550506 (also in Amharic). Rape Crisis Center (24 hours) Te Ave 5234819, 5449191 (men), Jerusalam 255556, Haite 8660111, Eilei 31977. h Medical Organization -Israal Cancer Association latephone support entce 02-247676.

the Century 18:30 FT Business Tonight 19:00 ITN News 19:30 Frost's Century 20:30 The Selina Scott Show 21:30 Frontat 22:30 ITN News 23:00 Supersport 00:00 Best of the Tonight Show 1:00 Late Night with Conan O'Brien

CINEMA

Money Train 4:45, 7, 9:15 * Father of the Bride II 4:45, 7, 9:15 RAV-OR 1-3 * 246553 Dangerous Minds 4:45, 7, 9:15 * Seven 4:30, 7, 9:15 * The Usual Suspects 9:15 * Father of the Bride II 4:45.7 AFULA RAV CHEN The Crossing Guard 7, 9:30 * Show Girls 9:30 * Il Postino 7, 9:30 * Father of the Bride II 7 ARAD ARAD STAR = 950904 Seven 7, 9:30 * Haunted Soul 7:15 * Sudden Death 7:15, 9:30 * Tha Usual Suspects 9:30 ASHDOD G.G. GIL Money Train@Sudden Oeath 5, 7:30, 10 * Seven 4:30, 7:15, 10 * Fair Game 5, 7:30 * American President 10 G.G. ORI 1-3= 711223 Home for the HolidewebDangarout Minris 5, 7:30, 10 G.G. ORI 1-3# 711223 Home for the Holidaya@Dangerous Minda 5, 7:30, 10 * Show Girls 4:30, 7:15, 10 ASHKELON G.G. Gill American President@Fatr Game@Sudden Death 5, 7:30, 10 * Show Girls 4:30, 7:15, 10 RAV CHEN # 711223 II Postino@Whita Man's Burden@Money Train 5, 7:30, 9:45 * Seven 9:45 * Father of the Bride II 5, 7:30

7:30 BAT YAM RAV CHEN = 5531077 Money Train@Father of the Bride II 5, 7:30, 9:45 * Show Girls@Seven 4:45, 7:15, 9:45 * Dangerous Minds 5, 7:15, 9:45 * Heat 6:30, 9:15

Dangerous Minds 5, 7:15, 9:45 * Heat 6:30, 9:15 BEERSHEBA G.G. GIL Heat 4:15, 7:9:30 * Sudden Death 4:45, 7:15, 9:45 * Show Girls 4:30, 7, 9:45 RAV-NEGEV 1-4 \pm 235278 Money Train@Dangerous Minds 5, 7:30, 9:45 * The Uauel Suspects 9:45 * Seven 4:45, 7:15, 9:45 * Father of the Bride if 5, 7:30 DIMONA HECHAL HATARBAUT Fair Geme 8 ELAT

ELAT KOLNOA ELLAT show Girls 7:30, 10 * Money Trein 7:30, 10 * Seven 7:30,

10 HADERA LEV 1-4 Oangarous Minds@White Man's Burden 5:15, 7:15, 9:45 * Show Girls 7:15, 9:45 * Denise Calls Up 5 * Money Train 5, 7:15, 9:15 HERZLIYA COLONY CINEMA 1-2 (MANDARIN) SCIENCES # Posting@The Usual

COLONY CINEMA 1-2 (MANDARIN) © 6902666 11 Poetino®The Usual Suspects 6, 8, 10 STAR= 589068 Virtuosity 9:45 * Meet 6:45, 7:30, 9:45 * Show Girls 9:45 * American President 7:30 * 7:30, 9:45 DANIEL HOTEL 7:30 * 7:30, 9:45 DANIEL HOTEL Home for the Holidays 7:30, 8:45 KARMIEL CINEMA 1–3 = 587277 Sudden Geathemioney Train@American

CINEMA 1-3 ± 587277 Sudden Orath@Money Train@Amarican President 7. 9'30 KFAR SAVA G.G. Gill. Heat 4:15.7, 9:30 * Vituosity 4:30, 7'30, 10:15 * Sudden Death 5, 7:30, 10 * Show Girla 4:30, 7'15, 10 * American President 10 * Father of the Gama 5, 7:30 * Dangerous Minds@Home for the Holidays 5, 7'30, 10 KIRYAT BIALIK G.G. KIRYON 1-9 ± 779166 Show Girls@Fair Game@Sudden Death 4:45, 7, 9:30 * Home for the Holidays 4:45. 7,9:30 * An Indian in the Cupboard

1930 * An Indian in the Cupboard 4:45 * American Prosident@Virtuosity 4:45, 7, 9:30 * Santa Clause 4:45 * A Goofy Movie 4:45 * Jade 7. 9:30 * Heat 7.9:15 KIRYAT SHEMONA

G.G. Gill Dangerous Minds 4:30, 7. 9:30 * Virtuosity 4:30, 7, 9:30 * Show Girls 4:30, 7, 9:30